ITALY AND JUGO SLAVIA IN AGREEMENT.

The long controversy between Italy and Jugo Slavia over Fiume and the boundary between the two states on the eastern side of the Adriatic was settled at Rapallo, Italy, on Nov. 12, 1920, when a full agreement was reached. Italy was represented by Count Sforza, the foreign minister; Signor Bonomi, minister of war, and Signor Salata, head of the bureau of liberated territories. The Jugo Slav negotiators were Premier Vesnitch, Foreign Minister Trumbitch and M. Stoyanovitch, minister of finance. Under the agreement Fiume was given the status of a new state with territorial contiguity to Italy. Sushak, the Croat suburb of Fiume, was to belong to Jugo Slavia, but was given the right to join its port to that of Fiume if it so desired. Volosca and Abbazzia, in the Gulf of Fiume, and also the Fiume-San Pietro railway were to remain within Italian territory, insuring to Italy territorial contiguity with the Fiume state. In Dalmatia only Zara was placed under Italian sovereignty, with a hinterland covering a radius of more than six miles. On the frontier Jugo Slavia received part of the Longatico basin and part of the Castua region. She also maintained her claim to most of the Adriatic islands, except Cherso, Lussin and Lagosta, which were to belong to Italy.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, who on Sept. 17, 1919, took possession of the port of Fiume with a small army of his own and defied Italy to dispossess him, announced that he would not recognize the Spalato agreement and he was still holding the city when this record closed Dec. 10, 1920. He had in August established what he called "The Italian regency of the Quarnero composed of the town of Fiume and the islands which belong to Venice by the tradition of centuries."

The controversy over Fiume and the Dalmatian frontier had its origin in the secret treaty of London, dating from April 26, 1915, under which Italy in return for helping the allies in the war was to receive territorial concessions on the eastern coast of the Adriatic. The Jugo Slavs objected strenuously to the arrangement when the treaty was made public by Nikolai Lenin, who had found it in the Russian imperial archives. President Wilson was drawn into the controversy and several sharp notes were exchanged between him and the allied premiers who aimed to enforce the secret pact. On Feb. 10, 1920, he declared that if the agreement of Dec. 9, 1919, were not adhered to he would be compelled to withdraw from all future settlements in Europe. He subsequently made some concessions and the final agreement represented in large part his understanding of where the boundary line should run.

SECOND WOMAN ELECTED TO CONGRESS.

Miss Alice Robertson, aged 66, a cafeteria owner in Muskogee, Okla., and a republican, was elected Nov. 2, 1920, to represent the 2d Oklahoma district in congress. She was the second woman thus honored, the first being Miss Jeannette Rankin, who was elected as one of Montana's two representatives on Nov. 7, 1916, and served one term in Washington. Miss Robertson was born near her present residence, her father being a missionary among the Indians. She herself spent a large part of her life as a teacher in the Indian schools. In recognition of this work she was appointed postmistress of Muskogee by President Wilson. The congressional district in which she lives has always been democratic, but she easily defeated W. W. Hastings, her democratic opponent. During the war with Germany she was active in patriotic work and adopted the policy in her cafeteria that no soldier or sailor in uniform should pay for food.

NORTHERN SCHLESWIG REUNITED TO DENMARK.

That part of Schleswig comprising the first or northern plebiscite zone voted on Feb. 10, 1920, to rejoin Denmark, from which it was separated in 1864 by the treaty of Vienna. The balloting took place under allied supervision and resulted in 75,023 votes for reinclusion in Denmark as against 25,087 opposed. The second or middle zone of Schleswig voted March 14 to remain German. With only a few districts missing the vote stood 48,148 for German control and 13,025 for Danish control. In the third or southern zone no plebiscite was carried out, as it was conceded to be overwhelmingly German in population. Northern Schleswig was occupied by Danish troops on May 5 and on July 5 the treaty returning the zone to Danish sovereignty was signed in Paris, France.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

Dec. 7, 1920.

Because of continued ill health President Wilson did not appear in person before congress to deliver his message at the opening of the third session, but sent the document by messenger. It was read in both houses Dec. 7, 1920, and was as follows:

"When I addressed myself to performing the duty laid upon the president by the constitution to present to you an annual report on the state of the union, I found my thought dominated by an immortal sentence of Abraham Lincoln's:

"'Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us dare to do our duty as we understand it'—a sentence immortal because it embodies in a form of utter simplicity and purity the essential faith of the nation, the faith in which it was conceived and the faith in which it has grown to glory and power. With that faith and the birth of a nation founded upon it came the hope into the world that a new order would prevail throughout the affairs of mankind, an order in which reason and right would take precedence of covetousness and force, and I believe that I express the wish and purpose of every thoughtful American when I say that this sentence marks for us in the plainest manner the part we should play alike in the arrangement of our domestic affairs and in our exercise of influence upon the affairs of the world. By this faith, and by this faith alone, can the world be lifted out of its present confusion and despair.

"It was this faith which prevailed over the wicked force of Germany. You will remember that the beginning of the end of the war came when the German people found themselves face to face with the conscience of the world and realized that right was everywhere arrayed against the wrong that their government was attempting to perpetuate. I think, therefore, that it is true to say that this was the faith which won the war. Certainly this is the faith with which our gallant men went into the field and out upon the seas to make sure of victory.

MISSION OF DEMOCRACY.

"This is the mission upon which democracy came into the world. Democracy is an assertion of the right of the individual to live and to be treated justly as against any attempt on the part of any combination of individuals to make laws which will overburden him or which will destroy his equality among his fellows in the matter of rights or privileges, and I think we all realize that the day has come when democracy is being put upon its final test. The old world is just now suffering from a wanton rejection of the principle of democracy and a substitution of the principle of autocracy as asserted in the name, but without the authority and sanction of the multitude.

"This is the time of all others when democracy should prove its purity and its spiritual power to prevail. It is surely the manifest destiny of the United States to lead in the attempt to make this spirit prevail.

"There are two ways in which the United States can assist to accomplish this great object.

"First, by offering the example within her own borders of the will and power of democracy to make and enforce laws which are unquestionably just and which are equal in their administration—laws which secure its full right to labor and yet at the same time safeguard the integrity of property and particularly of that property which is devoted to the development of industry and the increase of the necessary wealth of the world.

"Second, by standing for right and justice as toward individual nations. The law of democracy is for the protection of the weak, and the influence of every democracy in the world should be for the protection of the weak nation, the nation which is struggling toward its right and toward its proper recognition and privilege in the family of nations. The United States cannot refuse this role of champion without putting the stigma of rejection upon the great and devoted men who brought its government into existence and established it in the face of almost universal opposition and intrigue, even in the face of wanton force, as for example against the orders in council of Great Britain and the arbitrary Napoleonic decrees which involved us in what we know as the war of 1812.

"I urge you to consider that the display of an immediate disposition on the part of congress to remedy any injustices or evils that may have shown themselves in our own national life will afford the most effectual offset to the forces of the chaos and tyranny which are playing so disastrous a part in the fortunes of the free peoples of more than one part of the world. The United States is of necessity the sample democracy of the world, and the triumph of democracy depends upon its success.

"Recovery from the disturbing and sometimes disastrous effects of the late war has been exceedingly slow on the other side of the water and has given promise, I venture to say, of early completion only in our own fortunate country; but even with us the recovery halts and is impeded at times, and there are immediately serviceable acts of legislation which it seems to me we ought to attempt to assist that recovery and prove the indestructible recuperative force of a great government of the people. One of these is to prove that a great democracy can keep house as successfully and in as businesslike a fashion as any other government.

"It seems to me that the first step toward proving this is to supply ourselves with a systematic method of handling our estimates and exenditures and bringing them to the point where they will not be an unnecessary strain upon our income or necessitate unreasonable taxation; in other words, a workable budget system, and I respectfully suggest that two elements are essential to such a system—namely, not only that the proposal of appropriations should be in the hands of a single body, such as a single appropriations committee in each house of the congress, but also that this body should be brought into such co-operation with the departments of the government and with the treasury of the United States as would enable it to act upon a complete conspectus of the needs of the government and the resources from which it must draw its income.

"I reluctantly vetoed the budget bill passed by the last session of the congress because of a constitutional objection. The house of representatives subsequently modified the bill in order to meet this objection. In the revised form I believe that the bill, coupled with action already taken by the congress to revise its rules and procedure, furnishes the foundations for an effective national budget system. I earnestly hope, therefore, that one of the first steps taken by the present session of the congress will be to pass the budget bill.

GAIN IN FINANCES.

"The nation's finances have shown marked improvement during the past year. The total ordinary receipts of $6,694,000,000 for the fiscal year 1920 exceeded those for 1919 by $1,542,000,000, while the total net ordinary expenditures decreased from $18,514,000,000 to $6,403,000,000. The gross public debt, which reached its highest point on Aug. 31, 1919, when it was $26,596,000,000, had dropped on Nov. 30, 1920, to $24,175,000,000. There also has been a marked decrease in holdings of government war securities by the banking institutions of the country, as well as the amount of bills held by the federal reserve banks secured by government war obligations.

"This fortunate result has relieved the banks and left them freer to finance the needs of agriculture, industry and commerce. It has been due in large part to the reduction of the public debt, especially of the floating debt, but more particularly to the improved distribution of government securities among permanent investors. The cessation of the government's borrowings except through short term certificates of indebtedness has been a matter of great consequence to the people of the country at large, as well as to the holders of liberty bonds and victory notes, and has had an important bearing on the matter of effective credit control.

"The year has been characterized by the progressive withdrawal of the treasury from the domestic credit market and from a position of dominant influence in that market. The future course will necessarily depend upon the extent to which economies are practiced and upon the burdens placed upon the treasury, as well as upon industrial developments and the maintenance of tax receipts at a sufficiently high level.

"The fundamental fact which at present dominates the government's financial situation is that $7,500,000,000 of its war indebtedness matures within the next two and a half years. Of this amount $2,500,000,000 are floating debt and $5,000,000,000 victory notes and war savings certificates. The fiscal program of the government must be determined with reference to these maturities. Sound policy demands that the government expenditures be reduced to the lowest amount which will permit the various services to operate efficiently and that government receipts from taxes and salvage be maintained sufficiently high to provide for current requirements, including interest and sinking fund charges on the public debt, and at the same time retire the floating debt and part of the victory loan before maturity.

"With rigid economy, vigorous salvage operations and adequate revenues from taxation, a surplus of current receipts over current expenditures can be realized and should be applied to the floating debt. All branches of the government should co-operate to see that this program is realized.

"I cannot overemphasize the necessity of economy in government appropriations and expenditures and the avoidance by the congress of practices which take money from the treasury by indefinite or revolving fund appropriations. The estimates for the present year show that over a billion dollars of expenditures were authorized by the last congress in addition to the amounts shown in the usual compiled statements of appropriations.

GREAT ECONOMY NEEDED.

"This strikingly illustrates the importance of making direct and specific appropriations. The relation between the current receipts and current expenditures of the government during the present fiscal year, as well as during the last half of the last fiscal year, has been disturbed by the extraordinary burdens thrown upon the treasury by the transportation act, in connection with the return of the railroads to private control. Over $600,000,000 has already been paid to the railroads under this act—$350,000,000 during the present fiscal year—and it is estimated that further payments aggregating possibly $650,000,000 must still be made to the railroads during the current year. It is obvious that these large payments have already seriously limited the government's progress in retiring the floating debt.

"Closely connected with this, it seems to me, is the necessity for an immediate consideration of the revision of our tax laws. Simplification of the income and profits taxes has become an immediate necessity. These taxes performed an indispensable service during the war. The need for their simplification, however, is very great in order to save the taxpayer inconvenience and expense and in order to make his liability more certain and definite. Other and more detailed recommendations with regard to taxes will no doubt be laid before you by the secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue.

HELP FOR SOLDIERS.

"It is my privilege to draw to the attention of congress for very sympathetic consideration the problem of providing adequate facilities for the care and treatment of former members of the military and naval forces who are sick or disabled as the result of their participation in the war. These heroic men can never be paid in money for the service they patriotically rendered the nation. Their reward will lie rather in realization of the fact that they vindicated the rights of their country and aided in safeguarding civilization. The nation's gratitude must be effectively revealed to them by the most ample provision for their medical care and treatment as well as for their vocational training and placement.

"The time has come when a more complete program can be formulated and more satisfactorily administered for their treatment and training, and I earnestly urge that the congress give the matter its early consideration. The secretary of the treasury and the board for vocational education will outline in their annual reports proposals covering medical care and rehabilitation which I am sure will engage your earnest study and command your most generous support.

"Permit me to emphasize once more the need for action upon certain matters upon which I dwelt at some length in my message to the second session of the 66th congress: The necessity, for example, of encouraging the manufacture of dyestuffs and related chemicals; the importance of doing everything possible to promote agricultural production along economic lines, to improve agricultural marketing and to make rural life more attractive and healthful; the need for a law regulating cold storage in such a way as to limit the time during which goods may be kept in storage, prescribing the method of disposing of them if kept beyond the permitted period, and requiring goods released from storage in all cases to bear the date of their receipt.

COLD STORAGE GOODS.

"It would also be most serviceable if it were provided that all goods released from cold storage for interstate shipment should have plainly marked upon each package the selling or market prices at which they went into storage, in order that the purchaser might be able to learn what profits stood between him and the producer or the wholesale dealer. Indeed, it would be very serviceable to the public if all goods destined for interstate commerce were made to carry upon every package case whose form made it possible a plain statement of the price at which they left the hands of the producer. I respectfully call your attention, also, to the recommendations of the message referred to with regard to a federal license for all corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

"In brief, the immediate legislative need of the time is the removal of all obstacles to the realization of the best ambitions of our people in their several classes of employment and the strengthening of all instrumentalities by which difficulties are to be met and removed and justice dealt out, whether by law or by some form of mediation and conciliation. I do not feel it to be my privilege at present to suggest the detailed and particular methods by which these objects may be attained, but I have faith that the inquiries of your several committees will discover the way and the method.

LOAN TO ARMENIA.

"In response to what I believe to be the impulse of sympathy and opinion throughout the United States, I earnestly suggest that the congress authorize the treasury of the United States to make to the struggling government of Armenia such a loan as was made to several of the allied governments during the war, and I would also suggest that it would be desirable to provide in the legislation itself that the expenditure of the money thus loaned should be under the supervision of a commission, or at least a commissioner, from the United States, in order that revolutionary tendencies within Armenia itself might not be afforded by the loan a further tempting opportunity.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

"Allow me to call your attention to the fact that the people of the Philippine islands have succeeded in maintaining a stable government since the last action of the congress in their behalf and have thus fulfilled the condition set by the congress as precedent to a consideration of granting independence to the islands. I respectfully submit that, this condition precedent having been fulfilled, it is now our liberty and our duty to keep our promise to the people of those islands by granting them the independence which they so honorably covet.

"I have not so much laid before you a series of recommendations, gentlemen, as sought to utter a confession of faith, of the faith in which I was bred and which it is my solemn purpose to stand by until my last fighting day. I believe this to be the faith of America, the faith of the future, and of all the victories which await national action in the days to come, whether in America or elsewhere. WOODROW WILSON."

ADDRESS TO SENATE BY PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING.

President-Elect Harding was in the senate chamber on the opening day of the last session of the 66th congress, Dec. 6, 1920. Before the senate adjourned for the day Senator Lodge rose and said:

"Mr. President, before making a motion to adjourn I cannot refrain from calling attention to the fact that this is a memorable occasion. For the first time in the history of the country a member of this body has been elected president of the United States. He is here with us to-day, still a senator, and I venture to suggest that he may be recognized by the chair to speak informally to the senate before he leaves his service here." [Great applause on the floor and in the galleries.]

Mr. Harding was escorted to the vice-president's desk by the vice-president, and he addressed the senate as follows:

"Mr. President and Members of the Senate: I am grateful for this greeting on the part of the membership of this body. I am the more pleased that it affords me an opportunity to say to you rather informally some of the things in my heart which I could utter probably in no other way. I am conscious of the fact that I am here to-day under somewhat unusual circumstances, and I am not unmindful that there is a delicacy about my position which one cannot escape except through some form of self-effacement which does not seem quite possible.

"No member of this body could be more reluctant to leave it than am I. I may say to the senate that I came here with very high respect for this body, and I am leaving it with greater respect than that with which I came. If one could always direct his own political fortunes to his liking, I should have preferred my membership here to any office a citizen may hold in this republic or elsewhere in the world. I like the freedom, the association, the patriotic sense of responsibility which abides here. I am conscious of the great place which congress holds in this government under our constitution, and from my service here I am particularly sensible to the obligations of the senate. When my responsibilities begin in the executive capacity I shall be as mindful of the senate's responsibilities as I have been jealous for them as a member, but I mean at the same time to be just as insistent about the responsibilities of the executive. Our governmental good fortune does not lie in any surrender at either end of the avenue, but in the co-ordination and co-operation which becomes the two in a great and truly representative popular government.

"This brings me to the thought particularly in my mind. Something has been said about the senatorial oligarchy. Of course, every one here knows that to be a bit of highly imaginative and harmless fiction. But I do recognize how essential is the helpfulness of congress, and particularly of the senate, in the making of a successful national administration. I want to express to-day the wish of a colleague for the confidence and the co-operation of the members of this body in the four years which begin next March 4. I do not limit this sincere request to this side of the aisle. One cannot promise agreement in all things with an opposite party which is sometimes insistently wrong; but we may find common ground in the spirit of service; and I hope, sirs, for that agreeable and courteous and ofttimes helpful relationship with the opposite side which has added to the delights of fellow service during the last six years.

"We are facing no easy task. We have our full part in the readjustment of human affairs after the world tumult. We have our tasks at home; we have our part in the inevitable work of the civilized world. I am sure that the necessity of wise solution will inspire us to work together, to take common counsel, to be tolerant of one another, and to give the best which is in all of us to attain the ends which become our republic at home and will maintain its high place among the nations of the earth.

"With propriety I cannot venture upon any suggestions now, even though I am speaking as a member of this body. Three months of the present administration remain, and I would have house and senate join cordially in making them fruitful rather than wasted months. There is so much to be done and we have already had so much of delay that I should like unanimous recognition that there are no party ends to serve, but precious days are calling for service to our common country.

"I cannot resist, Mr. President and Senators, the repetition of my regret that my association on this floor and in committee rooms is ending to-day. It has been a happy and a proud experience. Let me express the hope to one and all that though there comes a change in official relationship, it will not interrupt our co-operation nor deprive us of the personal fellowship which I have found to be a great compensation for the sacrifices of conscientious public service." [Applause.]

PRESIDENT WILSON AND ARMENIAN MEDIATION.

At the conference of the powers members of the league of nations in Geneva, Switzerland, in November and December, 1920, there was a strong disposition to have the United States assist in the settlement of the Armenian question. The offer of a mandate had been refused by the senate in Washington, but it was felt by many that progress could be made toward a settlement of the question by means of mediation and the opinion was general that the United States could properly act in such mediation. A resolution to that effect was passed by the assembly and Paul Hymans, president of the council of the league, sent a message to President Wilson urging him to use his good offices in the struggle between the Armenians and the Turkish nationalists. To this message President Wilson, on Nov. 30, sent the following reply:

"M. Paul Hymans, President, Council of the League of Nations, Geneva, Switzerland:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your cabled message setting forth the resolution adopted by the assembly of the league of nations requesting the council of the league to arrive at an understanding with the governments with a view to intrusting a power with the task of taking the necessary measures to stop the hostilities in Armenia.

"You offered to the United States the opportunity of undertaking the humanitarian task of using its good offices to end the present tragedy being enacted in Armenia, and you assure me that your proposal involves no repetition of the invitation to accept a mandate for Armenia.

"While the invitation to accept the mandate for Armenia has been rejected by the senate of the United States, this country has repeatedly declared its solicitude for the fate and welfare of the Armenian people in a manner and to an extent that justifies you in saying that the fate of Armenia has always been of special interest to the American people.

"I am without authorization to offer or employ the military forces of the United States in any project for the relief of Armenia, and any material contribution would require the authorization of the congress, which is not now in session and whose action I could not forecast.

"I am willing, however, upon assurances of the moral and diplomatic support of the principal powers and in a spirit of sympathetic response to the request of the council of the league of nations to use my good offices and to proffer my personal mediation through a representative whom I may designate to end the hostilities that are now being waged against the Armenian people and to bring peace and accord to the contending parties, relying upon the council of the league of nations to suggest to me the avenues through which my proffer should be conveyed and the parties to whom it should be addressed.

(Signed) "WOODROW WILSON."

THE POLISH-RUSSIAN WAR.

Soviet Russia fought many enemies in 1920 and defeated all except the Poles. The latter, after a series of victories in the direction of Kiev, were swept back by the reds to the gates of Warsaw. Here they made a stand and by brilliant maneuvering drove the bolsheviki back to their own frontier, finally dictating peace at Riga to the chagrined foe. Elsewhere the soviet troops had things very much their own way. They defeated Admiral Kolchak in Siberia, Gen. Denikin in southern Russia and Gen. Peter Wrangel in the Crimea. They even helped the Turkish nationalists to overrun Armenia and established a soviet government there. In eastern Siberia the Japanese held some ground, but were on the defensive. With these victories to boast of the soviet leaders, Leon Trotzky and Nikolai Lenin, managed to hold the reins of power in Russia in spite of many predictions that their downfall was imminent.

It was, however, not a prosperous year for Russia. The economic conditions were chaotic. Money had no value, food was scarce and health conditions were deplorable. The allies on Jan. 15 officially declared the blockade of Russia at an end, but it made little difference. Russia had little or nothing for sale and the outside world did not care to encourage the reds by trading with them. Even attempts to help the innocent victims of the reds were failures, because the food, medicine and clothing would go to the soviet soldiers and not to starving and destitute civilians. To give even an outline of the many events in the history of Russia and her immediate neighbors in 1920 would require a volume in itself. Mention can be made only of some of the most striking developments of the year in the form of a brief chronology:

Jan. 15—Blockade of Russia nominally raised by the allies.
Jan. 17—Gen. Semenoff assumes supreme command in Siberia.
Jan. 18—American troops and Red Cross workers withdrawing from Siberia.
Jan. 24—Admiral Kolchak a prisoner in Irkutsk.
Feb. 2—Peace treaty between Esthonia and soviet Russia signed at Dorpat.
Feb. 7—Admiral Kolchak executed at Irkutsk by reds.
Feb. 8—Bolshevist troops enter Odessa.
March 2-4—Gen. Denikin's forces in southern Russia routed by reds.
March 7—Bolsheviki open an offensive against Poland.
April 5—Japanese troops occupy Vladivostok.
April 5—Gen. Baron Peter Wrangel takes Gen. Denikin's place in south Russia.
April 6—Gen. Denikin, wounded, arrives in Constantinople as a fugitive.
April 28—Gen. Pilsudski leads Polish army in drive toward the Dnieper river.
April 30—Poles defeat bolsheviki in southern Ukrainia, taking 15,000 prisoners.
May 1—Polish troops reach suburbs of Kiev.
May 4—Red troops forced to evacuate Kiev.
May 8—Polish cavalry enter Kiev.
May 11—Polish and Ukrainian forces drive bolsheviki back along the Beresina river.
May 12—Ukrainians capture Odessa from the reds.
May 20—Soviet troops attack Poles and driv them back along a front of forty miles government of Vitebsk.

May 29—Russian offensive gains in strength; Poles fall back.
June 6—Poles make successful attack on northern front.
June 11—Poles forced to evacuate Kiev.
June 15—Gen. Wrangel's troops win on Crimean front.
July 7—Polish front from the Pripet marshes to the Carpathians broken; Poles lose Rovno.
July 8—Call for volunteers to defend Poland from reds issued.
July 13—Russians take Minsk from the Poles.
July 14—Lithuanians attack Poles.
July 16—Reds crushing Poles in Vilna region.
July 22—Reds advancing rapidly along northern front.
July 23—Reds cross the Niemen and enter Poland proper; new Polish cabinet proposes peace.
July 24—Truce is arranged for meeting of peace envoys.
July 30—Polish retreat on Brest-Litovsk-Lemberg line general; Polish defense commission rejects some of red truce terms.
Aug. 3—Many Poles flee from Warsaw.
Aug. 8—Soviet government refuses British demand for a ten day truce with Poland.
Aug. 8—Outer forts of Warsaw under bombardment.
Aug. 10—President Wilson in note to Italian government gives his views on Russ-Polish situation; defends Poland and denounces soviets as without honor. "The responsible leaders of the [soviet] regime have frequently and openly boasted that they are willing to sign agreements and undertakings with foreign powers, while not having the slightest intention of observing such undertakings or carrying out such agreements."
Aug. 10—Gen. Maxime Weygand of France becomes adviser to Polish forces.
Aug. 11—Polish-Russ peace parley at Minsk.
Aug. 12—Peace negotiations delayed by the reds in the hope of taking Warsaw.
Aug. 13—Gen. Wrangel's forces capture 32,000 reds in the Crimea.
Aug. 14—Soldau captured by reds; Warsaw hears bolshevist guns.
Aug. 15—Reds west of Warsaw.
Aug. 16—Poles turn on reds in new offensive and inflict heavy losses.
Aug. 17—Four bolshevist divisions defeated by President Pilsudski's forces along the line of the Wilga river; reds being driven back at all points.
Aug. 18—Double Polish drive shatters soviet lines.
Aug. 19—Polish offensive within fifteen miles of Brest-Litovsk; enemy loses seven divisions; Warsaw saved.
Aug. 20—Poles capture 30,000 prisoners between Siedlice and Brest-Litovsk.
Aug. 21—Poles take Soldau; soviet forces fleeing into East Prussia.
Aug. 25—Four or five soviet armies on Polish front routed; Russ casualties in Polish invasion placed at 90,000.
Aug. 25—United States asks Poland not to invade Russia.
Aug. 26—Gen. Wrangel occupies Donetz coal basins; takes many towns.
Aug. 26—Polish lines to be halted by order of President Pilsudski.
Aug. 27—Poles take fortress of Ossowitz.
Aug. 30—Peace negotiations at Minsk halted.
Sept. 1—Riga chosen as place for resumption of peace negotiations.
Sept. 1—Gen. Budenny's red cavalry driven beyond Bug river.
Sept. 8—Lithuanians advancing to attack Poles at Augustowo.
Sept. 20—Peace treaty between Russia and Finland signed at Dorpat.
Sept. 21—Peace meet at Riga begins.
Oct. 3—President Pilsudski in personal command on northern front; sixteen bolshevist divisions routed.
Oct. 5—Agreement to sign armistice terms reached at Riga.
Oct. 7—Fighting practically ceases along whole front.
Oct. 12—Preliminary peace treaty signed at Riga.
Oct. 15—Soviet troops on Polish front sent to attack Gen. Wrangel.
Nov. 1—Reds crush Gen. Wrangel's armies in the Crimea.
Nov. 14—Gen. Wrangel forced to abandon Crimea with the remnant of his armies.
Nov. 16-Dec. 10—Thousands of Crimeans take refuge in Constantinople and are sent to northern Africa.

THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR OFFICE.

The international labor office, a body created by the treaty of Versailles in connection with the league of nations, is located in Geneva, Switzerland. The governing body composed of twenty-four members, twelve representing the various governments, six representing employers and six representing labor, was organized at the international labor conference held in Washington, D. C., Oct. 29 to Nov. 29, 1919. The government representatives were to be nominated by Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Argentina, Canada, Poland and, pending the appointment of the United States representative, Denmark.

The employers' representatives chosen were Sir Allan Smith, Great Britain; Mr. Louis Guerin, France; Mr. Pirelli, Jr., Italy; Mr. Jules Carlier, Belgium; Mr. F. Hodacz, Czecho-Slovakia,; and pending the appointment of a representative of the United States employers, Mr. Schindler, of Switzerland.

The workers' representatives selected were Mr. Leon Jouhaux, France; Mr. J. Oudegeest, Netherlands; Mr. Stuart-Bunning, Great Britain; Mr. H. Lindqvist, Sweden; and, pending the appointment of a representative of the United States, Mr. Draper of Canada. Reservation was made in each group for the United States representative and in the labor group for the German representative.

The governing body elected Mr. Albert Thomas of France provisional director-general of the international labor office under the league of nations and Mr. Arthur Fontaine, France, permanent chairman. The office was located provisionally in London. The governing body held a meeting in Paris in January, 1920, at which Mr. Albert Thomas was unanimously elected director-general. The organization adopted the six conventions and six recommendations voted by the Washington conference. They were referred to the secretary of the league of nations, who was to transmit them to the various governments for ratification. These conventions related to the eight-hour day, unemployment, employment of women before and after childbirth, employment of women during the night, minimum age for admission of children to industrial employments and night work of young persons employed in industry. The recommendations related to unemployment, reciprocity of treatment of foreign workers, prevention of anthrax, protection of women and children against lead poisoning, the establishment of government health services, and the application of the Bern convention of 1906 on the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

AMERICAN RIGHTS UNDER MANDATES.

MESOPOTAMIAN OIL QUESTION.

The right of the United States to be consulted on the terms of mandates as provided for in the league covenant of the treaty of Versailles was insisted upon in a note from the American government relative to Mesopotamian oil. The note, which was made public Nov. 25, 1920, was written five days previously and was addressed to Earl Curzon, the British foreign minister. In view of the importance of the subject and the attention it aroused the text of the note is given herewith in full.

"My Lord: I have the honor to refer to your note of Aug. 9, regarding the application of the principle of equality of treatment to the territories of the near east to be placed under mandates, and specifically to the petroleum resources of those territories as affected by that principle.

"Before considering the observations of his majesty's government on the general principles advocated by the United States and agreed to by the allied powers for application to the mandates over former Turkish territory, as outlined in the notes of May 12 and July 28, addressed to you on behalf of this government, I think it will clarify the discussion to indicate certain of your statements and assurances which this government has been pleased to receive.

"Thus, I note that the assignment to Great Britain of the mandate for Mesopotamia was made and accepted, subject to no friendly arrangement whatever with any third government regarding economic rights, which, of course, would have been wholly at variance with the purpose and contemplation of any mandate.

"It is also gratifying to learn that his majesty's government is in full sympathy with the several propositions formulated in the note of May 12, above referred to, which embody or illustrate the principles which this government believes should be applied in the mandated regions and which are essential to the practical realization of equality of treatment.

"The statements of your note to the effect that the British government has refrained from exploiting the petroleum resources of the mandated territories in question; that the operations referred to have been conducted for purely military purposes under the immediate supervision of the army authorities and at army expense, and that no private interests whatever are in any way involved, are accepted with a full sense of the good faith of the British government.

"The government of the United States notes that his majesty's government has found it necessary to suspend, during the period of occupation, the grant of facilities and opportunities to British as well as to other private interests to investigate the natural resources of the country either for the purpose of acquiring new claims or strengthening old ones and that there is no reason for assuming that the administration either of Mesopotamia or of Palestine has at any time failed to carry out the assurances of his majesty's government.

"This government welcomes your pledges to the effect that the natural resources of Mesopotamia are to be secured to the people of Mesopotamia and to the future Arab state to be established in that region, and that it is the purpose of the British government, fully alive to its obligation as a temporary occupant, not only to secure these resources to the Mesopotamian state but also its absolute freedom of action in the control thereof, and in particular that it is far from the intention of the mandatory power to establish any kind of monopoly or preferred position in its own interest.

"The government of the United States appreciates, likewise, the concurrence with its view that the merits of all claims to rights alleged to have been acquired in the mandated territories before the outbreak of hostilities must be duly established before recognition of such claims will be accorded.

"Adverting at this point to the views of his majesty's government regarding the nature of the responsibility of mandatory powers under the league of nations, I desire to call the attention of his majesty's government to the fact that while the draft mandate, form A, was not adopted at Paris it was the understanding of the American representative there present that the British government entertained and had expressed convictions favorable to said form and that presumably its representatives would exercise their influence in conformity with those convictions.

EQUAL TREATMENT FOR ALL.

"I need hardly refer again to the fact that the government of the United States has consistently urged that it is of the utmost importance to the future peace of the world that alien territory, transferred as a result of the war with the central powers, should be held and administered in such a way as to assure equal treatment to the commerce and to the citizens of all nations.

"Indeed, it was in reliance upon an understanding to this effect, and expressly in contemplation thereof, that the United States was persuaded that the acquisition under mandate of certain enemy territory by the victorious powers would be consistent with the best interests of the world.

"It is assumed, accordingly, that your statements with reference to mandate A, together with the statement that the draft mandates for Mesopotamia and Palestine have been prepared with a view to secure equality of treatment for the commerce and citizens of all states which are members of the league of nations, do not indicate a supposition on your part that the United States can be excluded from the benefits of the principle of equality of treatment.

"This government is pleased to find that his majesty's government is in full sympathy with the principles formulated in its communication of May 12 and July 28. But it is unable to concur in the view contained in paragraph 15 of your note—that the terms of the mandates can properly be discussed only in the council of the league of nations and by the signatories of the covenant.

"Such powers as the allied and associated nations may enjoy or wield, in the determination of the governmental status of the mandated areas, accrued to them as a direct result of the war against the central powers.

"The United States, as a participant in that conflict and as a contributor to its successful issue, cannot consider any of the associated powers, the smallest not less than itself, debarred from the discussion of any of its consequences or from participation in the rights and privileges secured under the mandates provided for in the treaties of peace.

"This government notes with interest your statement that the draft mandates for Mesopotamia and for Palestine, which have been prepared, with a view to secure equality of treatment and opportunity for the commerce, citizens and subjects of all states which are members of the league of nations will, when approved by the interested allied powers, be communicated to the council of the league of nations.

"The United States is undoubtedly one of the powers directly interested in the terms of the mandates, and I therefore request that the draft mandate forms be communicated to this government for its consideration before their submission to the council of the league. It is believed that his majesty's government will be the more ready to acquiesce in this request in view of your assurance that his majesty's government is in full sympathy with the various principles contained in the two previous notes of this government upon this subject.

THE MANDATE PRINCIPLE.

"The establishment of the mandate principle, a new principle in international relations, and one in which the public opinion of the world is taking a special interest, would seem to require the frankest discussion from all pertinent points of view. It would seem essential that suitable publicity should be given to the drafts of mandates which it is the intention to submit to the council, in order that the fullest opportunity may be afforded to consider their terms in relation to the obligations assumed by the mandatory power and the respective interests of all governments which are or deem themselves concerned or affected.

"The fact cannot be ignored that the reported resources of Mesopotamia have interested public opinion of the United States, Great Britain and other countries as a potential subject of economic strife. Because of that fact they become an outstanding illustration of the kind of economic question with reference to which the mandate principle was especially designed and, indeed, a peculiarly critical test of the good faith of the nations which have given their adherence to the principle.

"This principle was accepted in the hope of obviating in the future those international questions that grow out of a desire for the exclusive control of the resources and markets of annexed territories. To cite a single example, because of the shortage of petroleum, its constantly increasing commercial importance and the continuing necessity of replenishing the world's supply by drawing upon the latent resources of undeveloped regions, it is of the highest importance to apply to the petroleum industry the most enlightened principles recognized by nations as appropriate for the peaceful ordering of their economic relations.

"This government finds difficulty in reconciling the special arrangement referred to in paragraphs 18 and 19 of your note, and set forth in the so called San Remo petroleum agreement, with your statement that the petroleum resources of Mesopotamia and freedom of action in regard thereto will be secured to the future Arab state, as yet unorganized. Furthermore, it is difficult to harmonize that special arrangement with your statement that concessionary claims relating to those resources still remain in their prewar position and have yet to receive, with the establishment of the Arab state, the equitable consideration promised by his majesty's government.

"This government has noted in this connection a public statement of his majesty's minister in charge of petroleum affairs to the effect that the San Remo agreement was based on the principle that the concessions granted by the former Turkish government must be honored. It would be reluctant to assume that his majesty's government has already undertaken to pass judgment upon the validity of concessionary claims in the regions concerned and to concede validity to certain of those claims which cover apparently the entire Mesopotamian area. Indeed, this government understands your note to deny having taken, and to deny the intention to take, any such ex parte and premature action.

"In this connection I might observe that such information as this government has received indicates that, prior to the war, the Turkish petroleum company, to make specific reference, possessed in Mesopotamia no rights to petroleum concessions or to the exploitation of oil, and in view of your assurance that it is not the intention of the mandatory power to establish on its own behalf any kind of monopoly I am at some loss to understand how to construe the provision of the San Remo agreement that any private petroleum company which may develop the Mesopotamian oil fields shall be under permanent British control.

"Your lordship contrasts the present production of petroleum in the United States with that of Great Britain and some allusion is made to American supremacy in the petroleum industry. I should regret any assumption by his majesty's government or any other friendly power that the views of this government as to the true character of a mandate are dictated in any degree by considerations of the domestic need or production of petroleum or any other commodity.

"I may be permitted to say, however, for the purpose of correcting a misapprehension which your note reflects, that the United States possesses only one-twelfth, approximately, of the petroleum resources of the world. The oil resources of no other nation have been so largely drawn upon for foreign needs, and your lordship's statement that any prophecies as to the oil-bearing resources of unexplored and undeveloped countries must be accepted with reserve hardly disposes of the scientific calculation upon which, despite their problematical elements, the policies of states and the anticipations of world production are apparently proceeding.

"The government of the United States assumes that there is a general recognition of the fact that the requirements for petroleum are in excess of production and it believes that opportunity to explore and develop the petroleum resorces of the world, wherever found, should, without discrimination, be freely extended, as only by the unhampered development of such resources can the needs of the world be met.

STRICT TRUSTEESHIP WANTED.

"But it is not these aspects of oil production and supply in so far as they are of domestic interest to the United States with which I am concerned in this discussion. I have alluded to them in order to correct confusing inferences liable to arise from certain departures which I believe I discern in your lordship's communication from the underlying principles of a mandate as evolved and sought to be applied by the allied and associated powers to the territories brought under their temporary dominion by their joint struggle and common victory. This dominion will be wholly misconceived, not to say abused, if there is even the slightest deviation from the spirit and the exclusive purpose of a trusteeship as strict as it is comprehensive.

"Accept, my lord, the assurances of my most distinguished consideration.

"BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

REPUBLICAN LANDSLIDE.

As will be seen from the election returns on other pages of this volume, the national political campaign of 1920 resulted in an overwhelming victory for the republican party. The chief issue was that relating to the adherence of the United States to the league of nations. James M. Cox of Ohio, following the lead of President Wilson, was in favor of having the country become a member of the league with some reservations, while Senator Warren G. Harding took almost as strong a stand against any such step. The other parties did not cut any great figure in the campaign. The socialists polled a fair number of votes, but did not do as well as they had predicted. The farmer-labor party did not show much strength nor did the prohibitionists, whose cause had already been won. They were all swept aside by the republican landslide.

PRELIMINARY CAMPAIGN.

Before the national nominating conventions were held the usual presidential preference primaries took place in various states, but it may be said at once that they had little or nothing to do with the final choice of candidates. That was decided in the inner circles of the conventions after the popular candidates had failed to get enough votes from the uninstructed delegates to nominate them. The struggle was the warmest in the republican party, in which the leading candidates were Gen. Leonard Wood, Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, the last named being known as an "irreconcilable" opponent of the league of nations. In South Dakota Wood led with 31,024 votes to 26,992 for Lowden and 26,194 for Johnson. In New Jersey Wood was the favorite, getting 52,909 votes to 51,962 for Johnson. He also led in Indiana, where he received 85,708 votes to 39,627 for Lowden and 78,840 for Johnson. Illinois voted for Lowden first, Wood second and Johnson third. Michigan was for Johnson, Wood and Lowden in the order named. In North Dakota, Nebraska and Montana Johnson was the choice of most of the republicans. California gave Johnson 370,905 votes to 210,561 for Herbert Hoover. Harding carried Ohio.

WILSON JACKSON DAY LETTER.

Though ill and unable to make more than one speech in public, President Wilson made his political views known on various occasions by means of letters, statements and appeals to the public. At the Jackson day dinner in Washington, D. C., the following letter from the president was read:

"It is with keenest regret that I find that I am to be deprived of the pleasure and privilege of joining you and the other loyal democrats who are to assemble to-night to celebrate Jackson day and renew their vows of fidelity to the great principles of our party, the principles which must now fulfill the hopes not only of our own people but of the world.

"The United States enjoyed the spiritual leadership of the world until the senate of the United States failed to ratify the treaty by which the belligerent nations sought to effect the settlements for which they had fought throughout the war.

"It is inconceivable that at this supreme crisis and final turning point in the international relations of the whole world, when the results of the great war are by no means determined and are still questionable and dependent upon events which no man can foresee or count upon, the United States should withdraw from the concert of progressive and enlightened nations by which Germany was defeated and all similar governments (if the world be so unhappy as to contain any) warned of the certain consequences of any attempt of a like iniquity, and yet that is the effect of the course the senate of the United States has taken with regard to the treaty of Versailles.

"Germany is beaten, but we are still at war with her, and the old stage is reset for a repetition of the old plot. It is now ready for the resumption of the old offensive and defensive alliances which made settled peace impossible. It is now open again to every sort of intrigue. The old spies are free to resume their former abominable activities. They are again at liberty to make it impossible for governments to be sure what mischief is being worked among their own people, what internal disorders are being fomented.

"Without the covenant of the league of nations there may be as many secret treaties as ever to destroy the confidence of governments in each other, and their validity cannot be questioned. None of the objects we professed to be fighting for has been secured or can be made certain of without this nation's ratification of the treaty and its entry into the covenant.

"This nation entered the great war to vindicate its own rights and to protect and preserve free government. It went into the war to see it through to the end, and the end has not yet come. It went into the war to make an end of militarism, to furnish guaranties to weak nations and to make a just and lasting peace. It entered it with noble enthusiasms. Five of the leading belligerents have accepted the treaty and formal ratifications will soon be exchanged.

"The question is whether this country will enter and enter whole-heartedly. If it does not do so the United States and Germany will play a lone hand in the world. The maintenance of the peace of the world and the effective execution of the treaty depend upon the whole-hearted participation of the United States. I am not stating it as a matter of power. The point is that the United States is the only nation which has sufficient moral force with the rest of the world to guarantee the substitution of discussions for war. If we keep out of this agreement, if we do not give our guaranties, then another attempt will be made to crush the new nations of Europe.

"I do not believe that this is what the people of this country wish or will be satisfied with. Personally, I do not accept the action of the senate of the United States as the decision of the nation. I have asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the treaty, and my impression to that effect has recently been confirmed by the unmistakable evidences of public opinion given during my visit to seventeen of the states.

"I have endeavored to make it plain that if the senate wishes to say what the undoubted meaning of the league is, I shall have no objection. There can be no reasonable objection to interpretations accompanying the act of ratification itself. But when the treaty is acted upon, I must know whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it.

"We cannot rewrite this treaty. We must take it without changes which alter its meaning, or leave it, and then, after the rest of the world has signed it, we must face the unthinkable task of making another and separate kind of treaty with Germany.

"But no mere assertions with regard to the wish and opinion of the country are credited. If there is any doubt as to what the people of the country think on this vital matter, the clear and single way out is to submit it for determination at the next election to the voters of the nation, to give the next election the form of a great and solemn referendum, a referendum as to the part the United States is to play in completing the settlements of the war and in the prevention in the future of such outrages as Germany attempted to perpetrate.

"We have no more moral right to refuse now to take part in the execution and administration of these settlements than we had to refuse to take part in the fighting of the last few weeks of the war, which brought victory and made it possible to dictate to Germany what the settlements should be.

"Our fidelity to our associates in the war is in question, and the whole future of mankind. It will be heartening to the whole world to know the attitude and purpose of the people of the United States.

"I spoke just now of the spiritual leadership of the United States, thinking of international affairs. But there is another spiritual leadership which is open to us and which we can assume. The world has been made safe for democracy, but democracy has not been finally vindicated. All sorts of crimes are being committed in its name, all sorts of preposterous perversions of its doctrines and practices are being attempted.

"This, in my judgment, is to be the great privilege of the democracy of the United States, to show that it can lead the way in the solution of the great social and industrial problems of our time and lead the way to a happy settled order of life as well as to political liberty.

"The program for this achievement we must attempt to formulate, and in carrying it out we shall do more than can be done in any other way to sweep out of existence the tyrannous and arbitrary forms of power which are now masquerading under the name of popular government.

"Whenever we look back to Andrew Jackson we should draw fresh inspiration from his character and example. His mind grasped with such splendid definiteness and firmness the principle of national authority and national action. He was so indomitable in his purpose to give reality to the principles of the government, that this is a very fortunate time to recall his career and to renew our vows of faithfulness to the principles and the pure practices of democracy.

"I rejoice to join you in this renewal of faith and purpose. I hope that the whole evening may be of the happiest results as regards the fortunes of our party and the nation."

The democratic national committee at its meeting adopted resolutions indorsing the treaty of Versailles and denouncing as unpatriotic the attitude of the senators who would defeat it, directly or by nullifying reservations.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN'S VIEWS.

William J. Bryan also took advantage of the Jackson day gathering of democrats to make known his views on the Versailles treaty. The course recommended by him, as set forth in a speech at the Washington hotel, was to compromise with the republicans on the reservations and ratify the treaty at once instead of awaiting a referendum to the people which would require fourteen months' delay. He was especially opposed to article 10 of the league of nations covenant, saying:

"Neither can we go before the country on the issue raised by article 10. If we do not intend to impair the right of congress to decide the question of peace or war when the time for action arises, how can we insist upon a moral obligation to go to war which can have no force or value except as it does impair the independence of congress? We owe it to the world to join in an honest effort to put an end to war forever, and that effort should be made at the earliest possible moment."

SHOULD RATIFY TREATY.

The following correspondence was made public May 9:

"Portland, Ore., May 6, 1920.

"Primary election May 21. Please wire whether you consider it important to nominate candidates pledged to ratify Versailles treaty without Lodge reservations.

"G. E. HAMAKER,
"Chairman Multnomah County Democratic Central Committee."

To this the president replied:

"I think it imperative that the party should at once proclaim itself the uncompromising champion of the nation's honor and the advocate of everything that the United States can do in the service of humanity; that it should, therefore, indorse and support the Versailles treaty and condemn the Lodge reservations as utterly inconsistent with the nation's honor and destructive of the world leadership which it had established and which all the free peoples of the world, including the great powers themselves, had shown themselves ready to welcome.

"It is time that the party should proudly avow that it means to try without flinching or turning at any time away from the path for reasons of expediency to apply moral and Christian principles to the problems of the world. It is trying to accomplish social, political and international reforms and is not daunted by any of the difficulties it has to contend with.

"Let us prove to our late associates in the war that, at any rate, the great majority party of the nation, the party which expresses the true hopes and purposes of the people of the country, intends to keep faith with them in peace as well as in war.

"They gave their treasure, their best blood and everything that they valued in order, not merely to beat Germany, but to effect a settlement and bring about arrangements of peace which they have now tried to formulate in the treaty of Versailles. They are entitled to our support in this settlement and in the arrangements for which they have striven.

"The league of nations is the hope of the world. As a basis for the armistice, I was authorized by all the great fighting nations to say to the enemy that it was our object in proposing peace to establish a general association of nations under specific covenants for the purpose of affording mutual guaranties of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small states alike, and the covenant of the league of nations is the deliberate embodiment of that purpose in the treaty of peace.

"The chief motives which led us to enter the war will be defeated unless that covenant is ratified and acted upon with vigor. We cannot in honor whittle it down or weaken it as the republican leaders of the senate have proposed to do.

"If we are to exercise the kind of leadership to which the founders of the republic looked forward, and which they depended upon their successors to establish, we must do this thing with courage and unalterable determination.

"They expected the United States to be always the leader in the defense of liberty and ordered peace throughout the world, and we are unworthy to call ourselves their successors unless we fulfill the great purpose they entertained and proclaimed.

"The true Americanism, the only true Americanism, is that which puts America at the front of free nations and redeems the great promises which we made the world when we entered the war, which was fought not for the advantage of any single nation or group of nations but for the salvation of all.

"It is in this way we shall redeem the sacred blood that was shed and make America the force she should be in the counsels of mankind. She cannot afford to sink into the place that nations have usually occupied and become merely one of those who scramble and look about for selfish advantage.

"The democratic party has now a great opportunity to which it must measure up. The honor of the nation is in its hands.

"WOODROW WILSON."

PRESIDENT PLEADS FOR LEAGUE.

President Wilson issued the following appeal to the people of the United States Oct. 3, 1920:

"My Fellow Countrymen:

"The issues of the present campaign are of such tremendous importance, of such far-reaching significance for the influence of the country and the development of its future relations, and I have necessarily had so much to do with their development, that I am sure you will think it natural and proper that I should address to you a few words concerning them.

"Every one who sincerely believes in government by the people must rejoice at the turn affairs have taken in regard to this campaign. This election is to be a genuine national referendum. The determination of a great policy upon which the influence and authority of the United States in the world must depend is not to be left to groups of politicians of either party, but is to be referred to the people themselves for a sovereign mandate to their representatives. They are to instruct their own government what they wish done.

"The chief question that is put to you is, of course: Do you want your country's honor vindicated and the treaty of Versailles ratified? Do you in particular approve of the league of nations as organzied and empowered in that treaty? And do you wish to see the United States play its responsible part in it?

"You have been grossly misled with regard to the treaty, and particularly with regard to the proposed character of the league of nations, by those who have assumed the serious responsibility of opposing it. They have gone so far that those who have spent their lives, as I have spent my life, in familiarizing themselves with the history and traditions and policies of the nation, must stand amazed at the gross ignorance and impudent audacity which have led them to attempt to invent an 'Americanism' of their own, which has no foundation whatever in any of the authentic traditions of the government.

"Americanism as they conceive it reverses the whole process of the last few tragical years. It would substitute America for Prussia in the policy of isolation and defiant segregation. Their conception of the dignity of the nation and its interest is that we should stand apart and watch for opportunities to advance our own interests, involve ourselves in no responsibility for the maintenance of the right in the world or for the continued vindication of any of the things for which we entered the war to fight.

"The conception of the great creators of the government was absolutely opposite to this. They thought of America as the light of the world, as created to lead the world in the assertion of the rights of peoples and the rights of free nations; as destined to set a responsible example to all the world of what free government is and can do for the maintenance of right standards, both national and international.

"This light the opponents of the league would quench. They would relegate the United States to a subordinate role in the affairs of the world.

"Why should we be afraid of responsibilities which we are qualified to sustain and which the whole of our history has constituted a promise to the world we would sustain?

"This is the most momentous issue that has ever been presented to the people of the United States, and I do not doubt that the hope of the whole world will be verified by an absolute assertion by the voters of the country of the determination of the United States to live up to all the great expectations which they created by entering the war and enabling the other great nations of the world to bring it to a victorious conclusion, to the confusion of Prussianism and everything that arises out of Prussianism. Surely we shall not fail to keep the promise sealed in the death and sacrifice of our incomparable soldiers, sailors and marines who await our verdict beneath the sod of France.

"Those who do not care to tell you the truth about the league of nations tell you that article 10 of the covenant of the league would make it possible for other nations to lead us into war, whether we will it by our own independent judgment or not. This is absolutely false. There is nothing in the covenant which in the least interferes with or impairs the right of congress to declare war or not declare war, according to its own independent judgment, as our constitution provides.

"Those who drew the covenant of the league were careful that it should contain nothing which interfered with or impaired the constitutional arrangements of any of the great nations which are to constitute its members. They would have been amazed and indignant at the things that are now being ignorantly said about this great and sincere document.

"The whole world will wait for your verdict in November as it would wait for an intimation of what its future is to be.

"WOODROW WILSON."

ANOTHER PLEA FOR THE LEAGUE.

Speaking to a group of proleague republicans led by Hamilton Holt, who had gathered at the white house Oct. 27, President Wilson said:

"My Fellow Countrymen:

"It is to be feared that the supreme issue presented for your consideration in the present campaign is growing more obscure rather than clearer by reason of the many arbitrary turns the discussion of it has taken. The editors and publishers of the country would render a great service if they would publish the full text of the covenant of the league of nations, because, having read that text, you would be able to judge for yourselves a great many things in which you are now in danger of being misled. I hope sincerely that it will be very widely and generally published entire. It is with a desire to reclarify the issue and to assist your judgment that I take the liberty of stating again the case submitted to you in as simple terms as possible.

"Three years ago it was my duty to summon you to the concert of war, to join the free nations of the world in meeting and ending the most sinister peril that had ever been developed in the irresponsible politics of the old world. Your response to that call really settled the fortunes of war. You will remember that the morale of the German people broke down long before the strength of the German armies was broken. That was obviously because they felt that a great moral force, which they could not look in the face, had come into the contest, and that thenceforth all their professions of right were discredited and they were unable to pretend that their continuation of the war was not the support of a government that had violated every principle of right and every consideration of humanity.

"It is my privilege to summon you now to the concert of peace and the completion of the great moral achievement on your part which the war represented and in the presence of which the world found a reassurance and a recovery of force which it could have experienced in no other way.

"We entered the war, as you remember, not merely to beat Germany but to end the possibility of the renewal of such iniquitous schemes as Germany entertained. The war will have been fought in vain and our immense sacrifices thrown away unless we complete the work we then began, and I ask you to consider that there is only one way to assure the world of peace; that is by making it so dangerous to break the peace that no other nation will have the audacity to attempt it.

"We should not be deceived into supposing that imperialistic schemes ended with the defeat of Germany, or that Germany is the only nation that entertained such schemes or was moved by sinister ambitions and long-standing jealousies to attack the very structure of civilization. There are other nations which are likely to be powerfully moved or are already moved by commercial jealousy, by the desire to dominate and to have their own way in politics and in enterprise, and it is necessary to check them and to apprise them that the world will be united against them as it was against Germany if they attempt any similar thing.

"The mothers and sisters and wives of the country know the sacrifice of war. They will feel that we have misled them and compelled them to make an entirely unnecessary sacrifice of their beloved ones if we do not make it as certain as it can be made that no similar sacrifice will be demanded of mothers and sisters and wives in the future. This duty is so plain that it seems to me to constitute a primary demand upon the conscience of every one of us.

"It is inconceivable to most of us that any men should have been so false or so heartless as to declare that the women of the country would again have to suffer the intolerable burden and privation of war if the league of nations were adopted.

"The league of nations is the well considered effort of the whole group of nations who were opposed to Germany to secure themselves and the rest of mankind against the repetition of the war. It will have back of it the watchfulness and material force of all these nations and is such a guaranty of a peaceful future as no well informed man can question who does not doubt the whole spirit with which the war was conducted against Germany.

"The great moral influence of the United States will be absolutely thrown away if we do not complete the task which our soldiers and sailors so heroically undertook to execute.

"One thing ought to be said, and said very clearly, about article 10 of the covenant of the league of nations. It is the specific pledge of the members of the league that they will unite to resist exactly the things which Germany attempted, no matter who attempts them in the future. It is as exact a definition as could be given in general terms of the outrage which Germany would have committed if it could.

"Germany violated the territorial integrity of her neighbors and flouted their political independence in order to aggrandize herself, and almost every war of history has originated in such designs. It is significant that the nations of the world should have at last combined to define the general cause of war and to exercise such concert as may be necessary to prevent such methods.

"Article 10, therefore, is the specific redemption of the pledge which the free governments of the world gave to their people when they entered the war. They promised their people not only that Germany would be prevented from carrying out her plot but that the world would be safeguarded in the future from similar designs.

"We have now to choose whether we will make good or quit. We have joined issue, and the issue is between the spirit and purpose of the United States and the spirit and purpose of imperialism, no matter where it shows itself. The spirit of imperialism is absolutely opposed to free government, to the safe life of free nations, to the development of peaceful industry and to the completion of the righteous processes of civilization. It seems to me, and I think it will seem to you, that it is our duty to show the indomitable will and irresistible majesty of the high purpose of the United States, so that the part we played in the war as soldiers and sailors may be crowned with the achievement of lasting peace.

"No one who opposes the ratification of the treaty of Versailles and the adoption of the covenant of the league of nations has proposed any other adequate means of bringing about settled peace. There is no other available or possible means, and this means is ready to hand. They have, on the contrary, tried to persuade you that the very pledge contained in article 10, which is the essential pledge of the whole plan of security, is itself a threat of war. It is, on the contrary, an assurance of the concert of all the free peoples of the world in the future, as in the recent past, to see justice done and humanity protected and vindicated.

"This is the true, the real Americanism. This is the role of leadership and championship of the right which the leaders of the republic intended that it should play. The so called Americanism which we hear so much prating about now is spurious and invented for party purposes only.

"This choice is the supreme choice of the present campaign. It is regrettable that this choice should be associated with a party contest. As compared with the choice of a course of action that now underlies every other, the fate of parties is a matter of indifference. Parties are significant now in this contest only because the voters must make up their minds which of the two parties is most likely to secure the indispensable result.

"The nation was never called upon to make a more solemn determination than it must now make. The whole future moral force of right in the world depends upon the United States rather than upon any other nation, and it would be pitiful, indeed, if, after so many great free peoples had entered the great league, we should hold aloof.

"I suggest that the candidacy of every candidate for whatever office be tested by this question: Shall we, or shall we not, redeem the great moral obligations of the United States?"

HARDING'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

In formally accepting the republican nomination to the presidency Senator Harding spoke as follows to the notification committee and others gathered at his home in Marion, O., July 22:

"Chairman Lodge, members of the notification committee, members of the national committee, ladies and gentlemen:

"The message which you have formally conveyed brings to me a realization of responsibility which is not underestimated. It is a supreme task to interpret the covenant of a great political party, the activities of which are so woven into the history of this republic, and a very sacred and solemn undertaking to utter the faith and aspirations of the many millions who adhere to that party. The party platform has charted the way, yet, somehow, we have come to expect that interpretation which voices the faith of nominees who must assume specific tasks.

"Let me be understood clearly from the very beginning. I believe in party sponsorship in government. I believe in party government, as distinguished from personal government, individual, dictatorial, autocratic or what not. In a citizenship of more than a hundred millions it is impossible to reach agreement upon all questions.

"Parties are formed by those who reach a consensus of opinion. It was the intent of the founding fathers to give to this republic a dependable and enduring popular government, representative in form, and it was designed to make political parties not only the preserving sponsors, but also the effective agencies through which hopes and aspirations and convictions and conscience may be translated into public performance.

"Popular government has been an inspiration of liberty since the dawn of civilization. Republics have risen and fallen, and a transition from party to personal government has preceded every failure since the world began. Under the constitution we have the charted way to security and perpetuity. We know it gave to us the safe path to a developing eminence which no people in the world ever rivaled. It has guaranteed the rule of intelligent, deliberate public opinion expressed through parties. Under this plan a masterful leadership becomingly may manifest its influence, but a people's will still remains the supreme authority.

"The American achievement under the plan of the fathers is nowhere disputed. On the contrary, the American example has been the model of every republic which glorifies the progress of liberty, and is everywhere the leaven of representative democracy which has expanded human freedom. It has been wrought through party government.

Against One-Man Government.

"No man is big enough to run this great republic. There never has been one. Such domination was never intended. Tranquillity, stability, dependability—all are assured in party sponsorship, and we mean to renew the assurances which were rendered in the cataclysmal war.

"It was not surprising that we went far afield from safe and prescribed paths amid the war anxieties. There was the unfortunate tendency before; there was the surrender of congress to the growing assumption of the executive before the world war imperiled all the practices we had learned to believe in; and in the war emergency every safeguard was swept away. In the name of democracy we established autocracy. We are not complaining at this extraordinary bestowal or assumption in war; it seemed temporarily necessary; our alarm is over the failure to restore the constitutional methods when the war emergency ended.

"Our first committal is the restoration of representative popular government, under the constitution, through the agency of the republican party. Our vision includes more than a chief executive. We believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the vice-president, second official of the republic, shall be asked to participate.

"The same vision includes a cordial understanding and co-ordinated activities with a house of congress, fresh from the people, voicing the convictions which members bring from direct contact with the electorate, and cordial co-operation along with the restored functions of the senate, fit to be the greatest deliberative body of the world. Its members are the designated sentinels on the towers of constitutional government. The resumption of the senate's authority saved to this republic its independent nationality when autocracy misinterpreted the dream of a world experiment to be the vision of a world ideal.

"It is not difficult, Chairman Lodge, to make ourselves clear on the question of international relationship. We republicans of the senate, conscious of our solemn oaths and mindful of our constitutional obligations, when we saw the structure of a world supergovernment taking visionary form, joined in a becoming warning of our devotion to this republic.

"If the torch of constitutionalism had not been dimmed, the delayed peace of the world and the tragedy of disappointment and Europe's misunderstanding of America easily might have been avoided. The republicans of the senate halted the barter of independent American eminence and influence, which it was proposed to exchange for an obscure and unequal place in the merged government of the world. Our party means to hold the heritage of American nationality unimpaired and unsurrendered.

"The world will not misconstrue. We do not mean to hold aloof. We do not mean to shun a single responsibility of this republic to world civilization. There is no hate in the American heart. We have no envy, no suspicion, no aversion for any people in the world. We hold to our rights, and mean to defend, aye, we mean to sustain the rights of this nation and our citizens alike, everywhere under the shining sun. Yet there is the concord of amity and sympathy and fraternity in every resolution. There is a genuine aspiration in every American breast for a tranquil friendship with all the world.

"More, we believe the unspeakable sorrows, the immeasurable sacrifices, the awakened convictions and the aspiring conscience of human kind must commit the nations of the earth to a new and better relationship. It need not be discussed now what motives plunged the world into war, it need not be inquired whether we asked the sons of this republic to defend our national rights, as I believe we did, or to purge the old world of the accumulated ills of rivalry and greed; the sacrifices will be in vain if we cannot acclaim a new order, with added security to civilization and peace maintained.

"One may readily sense the conscience of our America. I am sure I understand the purpose of the dominant group of the senate. We were not seeking to defeat a world aspiration, we were resolved to safeguard America. We were resolved then, even as we are to-day, and will be to-morrow, to preserve this free and independent republic. Let those now responsible, or seeking responsibility, propose the surrender, whether with interpretations, apologies or reluctant reservations—from which our rights are to be omitted—we welcome the referendum to the American people on the preservation of America, and the republican party pledges its defense of the preserved inheritance of national freedom.

Will Sign Peace Declaration.

"In the call of the conscience of America is peace, peace that closes the gaping wound of world war, and silences the impassioned voices of international envy and distrust. Heeding this call and knowing as I do the disposition of the congress, I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a republican congress can pass its declaration for a republican executive to sign.

"Then we may turn to our readjustment at home and proceed deliberately and reflectively to that hoped for world relationship which shall satisfy both conscience and aspirations and still hold us free from menacing involvement.

"I can hear in the call of conscience an insistent voice for the largely reduced armaments throughout the world, with attending reduction of burdens upon peace loving humanity. We wish to give of American influence and example; we must give of American leadership to that invaluable accomplishment.

"I can speak unreservedly of the American aspiration and the republican committal for an association of nations, co-operating in sublime accord, to attain and preserve peace through justice rather than force, determined to add to security through international law, so clarified that no misconstruction can be possible without affronting world honor.

"This republic can never be unmindful of its power, and must never forget the force of its example. Possessor of might that admits no fear, America must stand foremost for the right. If the mistaken voice of America, spoken in unheeding haste, led Europe, in the hour of deepest anxiety, into a military alliance which menaces peace and threatens all freedom, instead of adding to their security, then we must speak the truth for America and express our hope for the fraternized conscience of nations.

"It will avail nothing to discuss in detail the league covenant, which was conceived for world supergovernment, negotiated in misunderstanding, and intolerantly urged and demanded by its administration sponsors, who resisted every effort to safeguard America, and who finally rejected it when such safeguards were inserted

"If the supreme blunder has left European relationships inextricably interwoven in the league compact, our sympathy for Europe only magnifies our own good fortune in resisting involvement. It is better to be the free and disinterested agent of international justice and advancing civilization, with the covenant of conscience, than be shackled by a written compact which surrenders our freedom of action and gives to a military alliance the right to proclaim America's duty to the world. No surrender of rights to a world council or its military alliance, no assumed mandatary however appealing, ever shall summon the sons of this republic to war. Their supreme sacrifice shall only be asked for America and its call of honor. There is a sanctity in that right we will not delegate.

"When the compact was being written, I do not know whether Europe asked or ambition insistently bestowed. It was so good to rejoice in the world's confidence in our unselfishness that I can believe our evident disinterestedness inspired Europe's wish for our association, quite as much as the selfish thought of enlisting American power and resources. Ours is an outstanding, influential example to the world, whether we cloak it in spoken modesty or magnify it in exaltation. We want to help; we mean to help; but we hold to our own interpretation of the American conscience as the very soul of our nationality.

"Disposed as we are, the way is very simple. Let the failure attending assumption, obstinacy, impracticability and delay be recognized and let us find the big, practical, unselfish way to do our part, neither covetous because of ambition nor hesitant through fear, but ready to serve ourselves, humanity and God.

Proposes a New Association.

"With a senate advising as the constitution contemplates, I would hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship, to commit the moral forces of the world, America included, to peace and international justice, still leaving America free, independent and self-reliant, but offering friendship to all the world.

"If men call for more specific details I remind them that moral committals are broad and all-inclusive, and we are contemplating peoples in the concord of humanity's advancement. From our own viewpoint the program is specifically American, and we mean to be Americans first to all the world.

"Appraising preserved nationality as the first essential to the continued progress of the republic, there is linked with it the supreme necessity of the restoration—let us say the rerevealment—of the constitution, and our reconstruction as an industrial nation. Here is the transcending task. It concerns our common weal at home and will decide our future eminence in the world. More than these, this republic, under constitutional liberties, has given to mankind the most fortunate conditions for human activity and attainment the world has ever noted, and we are to-day the world's reserve force in the great contest for liberty through security and maintained equality of opportunity and its righteous rewards.

"It is folly to close our eyes to outstanding facts. Humanity is restive, much of the world is in revolution, the agents of discord and destruction have wrought their tragedy in pathetic Russia, have lighted their torches among other peoples, and hope to see America as a part of the great red conflagration. Ours is the temple of liberty under the law and it is ours to call the sons of opportunity to its defense. America must not only save herself, but ours must be the appealing voice to sober the world.

"More than all else the present day world needs understanding. There can be no peace save through composed differences, and the submission of the individual to the will and weal of the many. Any other plan means anarchy and its rule of force.

"It must be understood that toil alone makes for accomplishment and advancement, and righteous possession is the reward of toil and its incentive. There is no progress except in the stimulus of competition. When competition—natural, fair, impelling competition—is suppressed, whether by law, compact or conspiracy, we halt the march of progress, silence the voice of aspiration and paralyze the will for achievement. These are but common sense truths of human development.

"The chief trouble to-day is that the world war wrought the destruction of healthful competition, left our storehouses empty and there is a minimum production when our need is maximum. Maximums, not minimums, is the call of America. It isn't a new story, because war never fails to leave depleted storehouses and always impairs the efficiency of production. War also establishes its higher standards for wages, and they abide.

"I wish the higher wage to abide, on one explicit condition—that the wage earner will give full return for the wage received. It is the best assurance we can have for a reduced cost of living. Mark you, I am ready to acclaim the highest standard of pay, but I would be blind to the responsibilities that mark this fateful hour if I did not caution the wage earners of America that mounting wages and decreased production can lead only to industrial and economic ruin.

"I want, somehow, to appeal to the sons and daughters of the republic, to every producer, to join hand and brain in production, more production, honest production, patriotic production, because patriotic production is no less a defense of our best civilization than that of armed force.

"Profiteering is a crime of commission, underproduction is a crime of omission. We must work our most and best else the destructive reaction will come. We must stabilize and strive for normalcy, else the inevitable reaction will bring its train of sufferings, disappointments and reversals. We want to forestall such reaction, we want to hold all advanced ground and fortify it with general good fortune.

Industrial Understanding.

"Let us return for a moment to the necessity for understanding, particularly that understanding which concerns ourselves at home. I decline to recognize any conflict of interest among the participants in industry. The destruction of one is the ruin of the other, the suspicion or rebellion of one unavoidably involves the other. In conflict is disaster, in understanding there is triumph. There is no issue relating to the foundation on which industry is builded, because industry is bigger than any element in its modern making. But the insistent call is for labor, management and capital to reach understanding.

"The human element comes first and I want the employers in industry to understand the aspirations, the convictions, the yearnings of the millions of American wage earners and I want the wage earners to understand the problems, the anxieties, the obligations of management and capital, and all of them must understand their relationship to the people and their obligation to the republic. Out of this understanding will come the unanimous committal to economic justice, and in economic justice lies that social justice which is the highest essential to human happiness.

"I am speaking as one who has counted the contents of the pay envelope from the viewpoint of the earner as well as the employer. No one pretends to deny the inequalities which are manifest in modern industrial life. They are less in fact than they were before organization and grouping on either side revealed the inequalities, and conscience has wrought more justice than statutes have compelled, but the ferment of the world rivets our thoughts on the necessity of progressive solution, else our generation will suffer the experiment which means chaos for our day to re-establish God's plan for the great tomorrow.

"Speaking our sympathies, uttering the conscience of all the people, mindful of our right to dwell amid the good fortunes of rational, conscience-impelled advancement, we hold the majesty of righteous government with liberty under the law to be our avoidance of chaos and we call upon every citizen of the republic to hold fast to that which made us what we are, and we will have orderly government safeguard the onward march to all we ought to be.

"The menacing tendency of the present day is not chargeable wholly to the unsettled and fevered conditions caused by the war. The manifest weakness in popular government lies in the temptation to appeal to grouped citizenship for political advantage. There is no greater peril. The constitution contemplates no class and recognizes no group. It broadly includes all the people, with specific recognition for none, and the highest consecration we can make to-day is a committal of the republican party to that saving constitutionalism which contemplates all America as one people and holds just government free from influence on the one hand and unmoved by intimidation on the other.

Question of Free Speech.

"It would be the blindness of folly to ignore the activities in our own country which are aimed to destroy our economic system and to commit us to the colossal tragedy which has both destroyed all freedom and made Russia impotent. This movement is not to be halted in throttled liberties. We must not abridge the freedom of speech, the freedom of press, or the freedom of assembly, because there is no promise in repression. These liberties are as sacred as the freedom of religious belief, as inviolable as the rights of life and the pursuit of happiness.

"We do hold to the right to crush sedition, to stifle a menacing contempt for law, to stamp out a peril to the safety of the republic or its people when emergency calls, because security and the majesty of the law are the first essentials of liberty. He who threatens destruction of the government by force or flaunts his contempt for lawful authority ceases to be a loyal citizen and forfeits his rights to the freedom of the republic.

"Let it be said to all of America that our plan of popular government contemplates such orderly changes as the crystallized intelligence of the majority of our people think best. There can be no modification of this underlying rule, but no majority shall abridge the rights of a minority.

"Men have a right to question our system in fullest freedom, but they must always remember that the rights of freedom impose the obligations which maintain it. Our policy is not of repression, but we make appeal to-day to American intelligence and patriotism, when the republic is menaced from within, just as we trusted American patriotism when our rights were threatened from without.

"We call on all America for steadiness, so that we may proceed deliberately to the readjustment which concerns all the people. Our party platform fairly expresses the conscience of republicans on industrial relations. No party is indifferent to the welfare of the wage earner. To us his good fortune is of deepest concern, and we seek to make that good fortune permanent.

"We do not oppose but approve collective bargaining, because that is an outstanding right, but we are unalterably insistent that its exercise must not destroy the equally sacred right of the individual in his necessary pursuit of livelihood. Any American has the right to quit his employment, so has every American the right to seek employment. The group must not endanger the individual, and we must discourage groups preying upon one another, and none shall be allowed to forget that the government's obligations are alike to all the people.

"I hope we may do more than merely discourage the losses and sufferings attending industrial conflict. The strike against the government is properly denied, for government service involves none of the elements of profit which relate to competitive enterprise. There is progress in the establishment of official revealment of issues and conditions which lead to conflict, so that unerring public sentiment may speed the adjustment, but I hope for that concord of purpose, not forced, but inspired by the common weal, which will give a regulated public service the fullest guaranty of continuity.

The Railroads.

"I am thinking of the railroads. In modern life they are the very base of all our activities and interchanges. For public protection we have enacted laws providing for a regulation of the charge for service, a limitation on the capital invested and a limitation on capital's earnings. There remains only competition of service on which to base our hopes for an efficiency and expansion which meet our modern requirements.

"The railway workmen ought to be the best paid and know the best working conditions in the world. Theirs is an exceptional responsibility. They are not only essential to the life and health and all productive activities of the people, but they are directly responsible for the safety of traveling millions. The government, which has assumed so much authority for the public good, might well stamp railway employment with the sanctity of public service and guarantee to the railway employes that justice which voices the American conception of righteousness on the one hand and assures continuity of service on the other.

"The importance of the railway rehabilitation is so obvious that reference seems uncalled for. We are so confident that much of the present day insufficiency and inefficiency of transportation is due to the withering hand of government operation that we emphasize anew our opposition to government ownership. We want to expedite the reparation and make sure the mistake is not repeated.

"It is little use to recite the story of development, exploitation, government experiment and its neglect, government operation and its failures. The inadequacy of trackage and terminal facilities, the insufficiency of equipment and the inefficiency of operation—all bear the blighting stamp of governmental incapacity during federal operation.

"The work of rehabilitation under the restoration of private ownership deserves our best encouragement. Billions are needed in new equipment, not alone to meet the growing demand for service but to restore the extraordinary depreciation due to the strained service of war. With restricted earnings and with speculative profits removed, railway activities have come to the realm of conservative and constructive service, and the government which impaired must play its part in restoration. Manifestly the returns must be so gauged that necessary capital may be enlisted and we must foster as well as restrain.

"We have no more pressing problem. A state of inadequate transportation facilities, mainly chargeable to the failure of governmental experiment, is losing millions to agriculture, it is hindering industry, it is menacing the American people with a fuel shortage little less than a peril. It emphasizes the present day problem and suggests that spirit of encouragement and assistance which commits all America to relieve such an emergency.

"The one compensation amid attending anxieties is our new and needed realization of the vital part transportation plays in the complexities of modern life. We are not to think of rails alone, but highways from farm to market, from railway to farm, arteries of life blood to present day life, the quickened ways to communication and exchange, the answer of our people to the motor age. We believe in generous federal co-operation in construction, linked with assurances of maintenance that will put an end to criminal waste of public funds on the one hand and give a guaranty of upkept highways on the other.

"Water transportation is inseparably linked with adequacy of facilities, and we favor American eminence on the seas, the practical development of inland waterways, the upbuilding and co-ordination of all to make them equal to and ready for every call of developing and widening American commerce. I like that recommittal to thoughts of America first which pledges the Panama canal, an American creation, to the free use of American shipping. It will add to the American reawakening.

Cost of Living.

"One cannot speak of industry and commerce, and the transportation on which they are dependent, without an earnest thought of the abnormal cost of living and the problems in its wake. It is easy to inveigh, but that avails nothing. And it is far too serious to dismiss with flaming but futile promise.

"Eight years ago, in times of peace, the democratic party made it an issue, and when clothed with power that party came near to its accomplishment by destroying the people's capacity to buy. But that was a cure worse than the ailment. It is easy to understand the real causes, after which the patient must help to effect his own cure.

"Gross expansion of currency and credit have depreciated the dollar just as expansion and inflation have discredited the coins of the world. We inflated in haste, we must deflate in deliberation. We debased the dollar in reckless finance, we must restore in honesty. Deflation on the one hand and restoration of the 100 cent dollar on the other ought to have begun on the day after the armistice, but plans were lacking or courage failed. The unpreparedness for peace was little less costly than unpreparedness for war.

"We can promise no one remedy which will cure an ill of such wide proportions, but we do pledge that earnest and consistent attack which the party platform covenants. We will attempt intelligent and courageous deflation, and strike at government borrowing which enlarges the evil and we will attack high cost of government with every energy and facility which attend republican capacity. We promise that relief which will attend the halting of waste and extravagance, and the renewal of the practice of public economy, not alone because it will relieve tax burdens but because it will be an example to stimulate thrift and economy in private life.

"I have already alluded to the necessity for the fullness of production, and we need the fullness of service which attends the exchange of products. Let us speak the irrefutable truth, high wages and reduced cost of living are in utter contradiction unless we have the height of efficiency for wages received.

"In all sincerity we promise the prevention of unreasonable profits, we challenge profiteering with all the moral force and the legal powers of government and people, but it is fair, aye, it is timely, to give reminder that law is not the sole corrective of our economic ills.

"Let us call to all the people for thrift and economy, for denial and sacrifice if need be, for a nationwide drive against extravagance and luxury, to a recommittal to simplicity of living, to that prudent and normal plan of life which is the health of the republic. There hasn't been a recovery from the waste and abnormalities of war since the story of mankind was first written except through work and saving, through industry and denial, while needless spending and heedless extravagance have marked every decay in the history of nations. Give the assurance of that rugged simplicity of American life which marked the first century of amazing development and this generation may underwrite a second century of surpassing accomplishment.

"The republican party was founded by farmers, with the sensitive conscience born of their freedom and their simple lives. These founders sprang from the farms of the then middle west. Our party has never failed in its realization that agriculture is essentially the foundation of our very existence, and it has ever been our policy, purpose and performance to protect and promote that essential industry.

Questions for Farmers.

"New conditions, which attend amazing growth and extraordinary industrial development, call for a new and forward-looking program. The American farmer had a hundred and twenty millions to feed in the home market and heard the cry of the world for food and answered it, though he faced an appalling task amid handicaps never encountered before.

"In the rise of price levels there have come increased appraisals to his acres without adding to their value in fact, but which do add to his taxes and expenses without enhancing his returns. His helpers have yielded to the lure of shop and city until, almost alone, he has met and borne the burden of the only insistent attempts to force down prices. It challenges both the wisdom and the justice of artificial drives on prices to recall that they were effective almost solely against his products in the hands of the producer and never effective against the same products in passing to the consumer.

"Contemplating the defenselessness of the individual farmer to meet the organized buyers of his products and the distributors of the things the farmer buys, I hold that farmers should not only be permitted but encouraged to join in co-operative association to reap the just measure of reward merited by their arduous toil. Let us facilitate co-operation to insure against the risks attending agriculture, which the urban world so little understands, and a like co-operation to market their products as directly as possible with the consumer in the interests of all. Upon such association and co-operation should be laid only such restrictions as will prevent arbitrary control of our food supply and the fixing of extortionate prices upon it.

"Our platform is an earnest pledge of renewed concern for this most essential and elemental industry and in both appreciation and interest we pledge effective expression in law and practice. We will hail that co-operation which again will make profitable and desirable the ownership and operation of comparatively small farms intensively cultivated and which will facilitate the caring for the products of farm and orchard without the lamentable waste under present conditions.

"America would look with anxiety on the discouragement of farming activity either through the government's neglect or its paralysis by socialistic practices. A republican administration will be committed to renewed regard for agriculture and seek the participation of farmers in curing the ills justly complained of and aim to place the American farm where it ought to be—highly ranked in American activities and fully sharing the highest good fortunes of American life.

"Becomingly associated with this subject are the policies of irrigation and reclamation, so essential to agricultural expansion and the continued development of the great and wonderful west. It is our purpose to continue and enlarge federal aid, not in sectional partiality, but for the good of all America. We hold to that harmony of relationship between conservation and development which fittingly appraises our natural resources and makes them available to developing the America of to-day and still holds to the conserving thought for the America of the morrow.

"The federal government's relation to reclamation and development is too important to admit of ample discussion to-day. Alaska alone is rich in resources beyond all imagination and needs only closer linking through the lines of transportation and a governmental policy that both safeguards and encourages development to speed it to a foremost position as a commonwealth rugged in citizenship and rich in materialized resources.

Tenets of His Belief.

"These things I can only mention. Within becoming limits one cannot say more. Indeed, for the present many questions of vast importance must be hastily passed, reserving a fuller discussion to suitable occasion as the campaign advances.

"I believe the budget system will effect a necessary, helpful reformation and reveal business methods to government business.

"I believe federal departments should be made more businesslike and send back to productive effort thousands of federal employes who are either duplicating work or not essential at all.

"I believe in the protective tariff policy and know we will be calling for its saving Americanism again.

"I believe in a great merchant marine—I would have this republic the leading maritime nation of the world.

"I believe in a navy ample to protect it and able to assure us dependable defense.

"I believe in a small army, but the best in the world, with a mindfulness for preparedness which will avoid the unutterable cost of our previous neglect.

"I believe in our eminence in trade abroad, which the government should aid in expanding, both in revealing markets and speeding cargoes.

"I believe in establishing standards for immigration which are concerned with the future citizenship of the republic, not with mere man power in industry.

"I believe that every man who dons the garb of American citizenship and walks in the light of American opportunity must become American in heart and soul.

"I believe in holding fast to every forward step in unshackling child labor and elevating conditions of woman's employment.

"I believe the federal government should stamp out lynching and remove that stain from the fair name of America.

"I believe the federal government should give its effective aid in solving the problem of ample and becoming housing of its citizenship.

"I believe this government should make its liberty and victory bonds worth all that its patriotic citizens paid in purchasing them.

"I believe the tax burdens imposed for the war emergency must be revised to the needs of peace and in the interest of equity in distribution of the burden.

"I believe the negro citizens of America should be guaranteed the enjoyment of all their rights, that they have earned the full measure of citizenship bestowed, that their sacrifices in blood on the battle fields of the republic have entitled them to all of freedom and opportunity, all of sympathy and aid that the American spirit of fairness and justice demands.

Mexican Policy.

"I believe there is an easy and open path to righteous relationship with Mexico. It has seemed to me that our undeveloped, uncertain and infirm policy has made us a culpable party to the governmental misfortunes in that land. Our relations ought to be both friendly and sympathetic; we would like to acclaim a stable government there and offer a neighborly hand in pointing the way to greater progress.

"It will be simple to have a plain and neighborly understanding, merely an understanding, about respecting our borders, about protecting the lives and possessions of American citizens lawfully within the Mexican dominions. There must be that understanding, else there can be no recognition, and then the understanding must be faithfully kept.

"Many of these declarations deserve a fuller expression, with some suggestions of plans to emphasize the faith. Such expression will follow in due time, I promise you.

"I believe in law enforcement. If elected I mean to be a constitutional president, and it is impossible to ignore the constitution, unthinkable to evade the law when our every committal is to orderly government. People ever will differ about the wisdom of the enactment of a law—there is divided opinion respecting the eighteenth amendment and the laws enacted to make it operative—but there can be no difference of opinion about honest law enforcement.

"Neither government nor party can afford to cheat the American people. The laws of congress must harmonize with the constitution, else they soon are adjudged to be void; congress enacts the laws and the executive branch of the government is charged with enforcement. We cannot nullify because of divided opinion; we cannot jeopardize orderly government with contempt for law enforcement. Modification or repeal is the right of a free people whenever the deliberate and intelligent public sentiment commands, but perversion and evasion mark the paths to the failure of government itself.

"Though not in any partisan sense, I must speak of the services of the men and women who rallied to the colors of the republic in the world war. America realizes and appreciates the services rendered, the sacrifices made and the sufferings endured. There shall be no distinction between those who know the perils and glories of the battle field or the dangers of the sea and those who were compelled to serve behind the lines or those who constituted the great reserve of a grand army which awaited the call in camp at home.

"All were brave, all were sacrificing, all were sharers of those ideals which sent our boys thrice armed to war. Worthy sons and daughters these, fit successors to those who christened our banners in the immortal beginning, worthy sons of those who saved the union and nationality when civil war wiped the ambiguity from the constitution, ready sons of those who drew the sword for humanity's sake the first time in the world in 1898.

"The 4,000,000 defenders on land and sea were worthy of the best traditions of a people never warlike in peace and never pacifist in war. They commanded our pride, they have our gratitude, which must have genuine expression. It is not only a duty, it is a privilege, to see that the sacrifices made shall be requited and that those still suffering from casualties and disabilities shall be abundantly aided and restored to the highest capabilities of citizenship and its enjoyment.

"The womanhood of America, always its glory, its inspiration and the potent, uplifting force in its social and spiritual development, is about to be enfranchised. In so far as congress can go the fact is already accomplished. By party edict, by my recorded vote, by personal conviction, I am committed to this measure of justice. It is my earnest hope, my sincere desire, that the one needed state vote be quickly recorded in the affirmation of the right of equal suffrage and that the vote of every citizen shall be cast and counted in the approaching election.

"Let us not share the apprehensions of many men and women as to the danger of this momentous extension of the franchise. Women have never been without influence in our political life. Enfranchisement will bring to the polls the votes of citizens who have been born upon our soil or who have sought in faith and assurance the freedom and opportunities of our land. It will bring the women educated in our schools, trained in our customs and habits of thought and sharers of our problems. It will bring the alert mind, the awakened conscience, the sure intuition, the abhorrence of tyranny or oppression, the wide and tender sympathy that distinguish the women of America. Surely there can be no danger there.

"And to the great number of noble women who have opposed in conviction this tremendous change in the ancient relation of the sexes as applied to government, I venture to plead that they will accept the full responsibility of enlarged citizenship and give to the best in the republic their suffrage and support.

"Much has been said of late about world ideals, but I prefer to think of the ideal for America. I like to think there is something more than the patriotism and practical wisdom of the founding fathers. It is good to believe that maybe destiny held this new world republic to be the supreme example of representative democracy and orderly liberty by which humanity is inspired to higher achievement.

"It is idle to think we have attained perfection, but there is the satisfying knowledge that we hold orderly processes for making our government reflect the heart and mind of the republic. Ours is not only a fortunate people, but a very commonsensical people, with vision high, but their feet on the earth, with belief in themselves and faith in God. Whether enemies threaten from without or menaces arise from within, there is some indefinable voice saying: 'Have confidence in the republic! America will go on!'

"Here is a temple of liberty no storms may shake, here are the altars of freedom no passions shall destroy. It was American in conception, American in its building; it shall be American in the fulfillment. Sectional once, we are all American now, and we mean to be all Americans to all the world.

"Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, my countrymen all: I would not be my natural self if I did not utter my consciousness of my limited ability to meet your full expectations or to realize the aspirations within my own breast, but I will gladly give all that is in me, all of heart, soul, mind and abiding love of country, to service in our common cause.

"I can only pray to the omnipotent God that I may be as worthy in service as I know myself to be faithful in thought and purpose. One cannot give more.

"Mindful of the vast responsibilities, I must be frankly humble, but I have that confidence in the consideration and support of all true Americans which makes me wholly unafraid. With an unalterable faith and in a hopeful spirit, with a hymn of service in my heart, I pledge fidelity to our country and to God and accept the nomination of the republican party for the presidency of the United States."

COOLIDGE FOR RECONSTRUCTION.

Calvin Coolidge in an address formally accepting the republican nomination for vice-president at notification ceremonies at Northampton, Mass., July 27, urged the country to summon its forces to solve the problems of reconstruction. He devoted the greater part of his address to a discussion of domestic issues, but called first for a "return to a thoroughly peace basis, because that is the fundamental American basis."

GOV. COX'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

In formally accepting the democratic nomination for president at Dayton, O., Aug. 7, Gov. Cox said:

"Chairman Robinson and Members of the Notification Committee:

"The message which you bring from the great conference of progressive thought assembled under the formal auspices of the democratic party inspires within me a pride and an appreciation which I cannot voice. At the same time, I am mindful of the responsibility which this function now officially places upon me. As I measure my own limitations the task ahead of us should be approached with more than a feeling of diffidence if I were not strengthened and reassured by the faith that one has only to practice true fidelity to conscience.

"It is not the difficult thing to know what we ought to do; the sense of right and wrong has been given with Divine equality. The mistakes of history are the result of weakness in the face of tempting interests. I thank God, therefore, that I take up the standard of democracy a free man, unfettered by promises and happy in the consciousness of untrammeled opportunity to render a service in the name of government that will hold for it the confidence which it deserves.

"We are in a time which calls for straight thinking, straight talking and straight acting. This is no time for wabbling. Never in all our history has more been done for government. Never was sacrifice more sublime. The most precious things of heart and home were given up in a spirit which guarantees the perpetuity of our institutions—if the faith is kept with those who served and suffered. The altar of our republic is drenched in blood and tears, and he who turns away from the tragedies and obligations of the war not consecrated to a sense of honor and of duty which resists every base suggestion of personal or political expediency is unworthy of the esteem of his countrymen.

"The men and women who by expressed policy at the San Francisco convention charted our course in the open seas of the future sensed the spirit of the hour and phrased it with clarity and courage. It is not necessary to read and reread the democratic platform to know its meaning. It is a document clear in its analysis of conditions and plain in the pledge of service made to the public. It carries honesty of word and intent.

"Proud of the leadership and achievement of the party in war, democracy faces unafraid the problems of peace. Indeed, its pronouncement has but to be read along with the platform framed by republican leaders in order that both spirit and purpose as they dominate the opposing organizations may be contrasted. On the one hand we see pride expressed in the nation's glory and a promise of service easily understood. On the other a captious, unhappy spirit and the treatment of subjects vital to the present and the future in terms that have completely confused the public mind

Senatorial Oligarchy.

"It was clear that the senatorial oligarchy had been given its own way in the selection of the presidential candidate, but it was surprising that it was able to fasten into the party platform the creed of hate and bitterness and the vacillating policy that possess it.

"In the midst of war the present senatorial cabal led by Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, was formed. Superficial evidence of loyalty to the president was deliberate in order that the great rank and file of their party, faithful and patriotic to the very core, might not be offended. But underneath this misleading exterior conspirators planned and plotted with bigoted zeal.

"With victory to our arms they delayed and obstructed the works of peace. If deemed useful to the work in hand no artifice for interfering with our constitutional peacemaking authority was rejected.

"Before the country knew, yea, before these men themselves knew, the details of the composite plan formed at the peace table they declared their opposition to it. Before the treaty was submitted to the senate in the manner the constitution provides they violated every custom and every consideration of decency by presenting a copy of the document, procured unblushingly from enemy hands, and passed it into the printed record of senatorial proceedings.

"From that hour dated the enterprise of throwing the whole subject into a technical discussion, in order that the public might be confused. The plan has never changed in its objective, but the method has.

"At the outset there was the careful insistence that there was no desire to interfere with the principle evolved and formalized at Versailles. Later it was the form and not the substance that professedly inspired attack. But pretense was futile when proposals later came forth that clearly emasculated the basic principle of the whole peace plan.

"It is not necessary to recall the details of the controversy in the senate. Senator Lodge finally crystallized his ideas into what were known as the Lodge reservations, and when congress adjourned these reservations held the support of the so-called regular republican leaders.

"From that time the processes have been interesting. Political expediency in its truest sense dwarfed every consideration either of the public interest or of the maintenance of the honor of a great political party. The exclusive question was how to avoid a rupture in the republican organization.

"The country received with interest, to say the least, the announcement from Chicago, where the national convention was assembled, that a platform plank dealing with the subject of world peace had been drawn leaving out the Lodge reservations and yet remaining agreeable to all interests meaning thereby the Lodge reservationists, the mild reservationists and the group of republican senators that openly opposed the league of nations in any form.

"As the platform made no definite committal of policy and was, in fact, so artfully phrased as to make almost any deduction possible, it passed through the convention with practical unanimity. Senator Johnson, however, whose position has been consistent and whose opposition to the league in any shape is well known, withheld his support of the convention's choice until the candidate had stated the meaning of the platform and announced definitely the policy that would be his if elected.

"The republican candidate has spoken, and his utterance calls forth the following approval from Senator Johnson:

"'Yesterday in his speech of acceptance Senator Harding unequivocally took his stand upon the paramount issue in this campaign—the league of nations. The republican party stands committed by its platform. Its standard bearer has now accentuated that platform. There can be no misunderstanding his words.'

"Senator Harding as the candidate of the party, and Senator Johnson are as one on this question and, as the latter expresses it, the republican party is committed both by platform in the abstract and by its candidate in specification. The threatened revolt among leaders of the party is averted but the minority position as expressed in the senate prevails as that of the party. In short, principle, as avowed in support of the Lodge reservations, or of the so-called mild reservations, has been surrendered to expediency.

No Separate Peace.

"Senator Harding makes this new pledge of policy in behalf of his party:

"'I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a republican congress can pass its declaration for a republican executive to sign.'

"This means but one thing—a separate peace with Germany. This would be the most disheartening event in civilization since the Russians made their separate peace with Germany and infinitely more unworthy on our part than it was on that of the Russians. They were threatened with starvation and revolution had swept their country.

"Our soldiers fought side by side with the allies. So complete was the coalition of strength and purpose that Gen. Foch was given supreme command, and every soldier in the allied cause, no matter what flag he followed, recognized him as his chief. We fought the war together, and now before the thing is through it is proposed to enter into a separate peace with Germany. In good faith we pledged our strength with our associates for the enforcement of terms upon offending powers, and now it is suggested that this be withdrawn.

"Suppose Germany, recognizing the first break in the allies, proposes something we cannot accept? Does Senator Harding intend to send an army to Germany to press her to our terms? Certainly the allied army could not be expected to render aid. If, on the other hand, Germany should accept the chance we offered of breaking the bond it would be for the express purpose of insuring a German-American alliance, recognizing that the allies—in fact, no nation in good standing—would have anything to do with either of us. This plan would not only be a piece of bungling diplomacy but plain, unadulterated dishonesty as well.

"No less an authority than Senator Lodge said, before the heat of recent controversy, that to make peace except in company with the allies would 'brand us everlastingly with dishonor and bring ruin to us.'

"And then, after peace is made with Germany, Senator Harding would, he says, 'hopefully approach the nations of Europe and of the earth, proposing that understanding which makes us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new relationship.'

"In short, America, refusing to enter the league of nations (now already established by twenty-nine nations) and bearing and deserving the contempt of the world, would submit an entirely new project. This act would either be regarded as arrant madness or attempted international bossism.

"The plain truth is that the republican leaders, obsessed with a determination to win the presidential election, have attempted to satisfy too many divergent views. Inconsistencies, inevitable under the circumstances, rise to haunt them on every hand, and they find themselves arrayed in public thought at least against a great principle. More than that, their conduct is opposed to the idealism upon which their party prospered in other days.

"Illustrating these observations by concrete facts, let it be remembered that those now inveighing against an interest in affairs outside of America criticized President Wilson in unmeasured terms for not resenting the invasion of Belgium in 1914. They term the league of nations a military alliance, which, except for their opposition, would envelop our country, when, as a matter of truth, the subject of a league of nations has claimed the best thought of America for years, and the League to Enforce Peace was presided over by so distinguished a republican as ex-President Taft, who, before audiences in every section, advocated the principle and the plan of the present league.

"They charge experimentation, when we have as historical precedent the Monroe doctrine, which is the very essence of article 10 of the Versailles covenant. Skeptics viewed Monroe's mandate with alarm, predicting recurring wars in defense of Central and South American states, whose guardians they allege we need not be. And yet not a shot has been fired in almost one hundred years in preserving sovereign rights on this hemisphere. They hypocritically claim that the league of nations will result in our boys' being drawn into military service, but they fail to realize that every high school youngster in the land knows that no treaty can override our constitution, which reserves to congress, and to congress alone, the power to declare war.

"They preach Americanism with a meaning of their own invention, and artfully appeal to a selfish and provincial spirit, forgetting that Lincoln fought a war over the purely moral question of slavery, and that McKinley broke the fetters of our boundary lines, spoke the freedom of Cuba, and carried the torch of American idealism to the benighted Philippines. They lose memory of Garfield's prophecy that America, under the blessings of God-given opportunity, would by her moral leadership and co-operation become a Messiah among the nations of the earth.

"These are fateful times. Organized government has a definite duty all over the world. The house of civilization is to be put in order. The supreme issue of the century is before us and the nation that halts and delays is playing with fire. The finest impulses of humanity, rising above national lines, merely seek to make another horrible war impossible.

"Under the old order of international anarchy war came overnight, and the world was on fire before we knew it. It sickens our senses to think of another. We saw one conflict into which modern science brought new forms of destruction in great guns, submarines, airships and poison gases.

"It is no secret that our chemists had perfected, when the contest came to a precipitate close, gases so deadly that whole cities could be wiped out, armies destroyed and the crews of battle ships smothered. The public prints are filled with the opinions of military men that in future wars the method, more effective than gases or bombs, will be the employment of the germs of diseases, carrying pestilence and destruction. Any nation prepared under these conditions, as Germany was equipped in 1914, could conquer the world in a year.

"It is planned now to make this impossible. A definite plan has been agreed upon. The league of nations is in operation. A very important work, under its control, just completed, was participated in by the Hon. Elihu Root, secretary of state under the Roosevelt administration. At a meeting of the council of the league of nations Feb. 11 an organizing committee of twelve of the most eminent jurists in the world was selected. The duty of this group was to devise a plan for the establishment of a permanent court of international justice as a branch of the league. This assignment has beeen concluded by unanimous action. This augurs well for world progress. The question is whether we shall or shall not join in this practical and humane movement. President Wilson, as our representative at the peace table, entered the league in our name, in so far as the executive authority permitted. Senator Harding, as the republican candidate for the presidency, proposes in plain words that we remain out of it. As the democratic candidate, I favor going into it.

Harding's Plan.

"Let us analyze Senator Harding's plan of making a German-American peace and then calling for a 'new relationship among nations,' assuming for the purpose of argument only that the perfidious hand that dealt with Germany would possess the power of influence to draw twenty-nine nations away from a plan already at work and induce them to retrace every step and make a new beginning. This would entail our appointing another commission to assemble with those selected by the other powers. With the Versailles instrument discarded the whole subject of partitions and divisions of territory on new lines would be reopened. The difficulties in this regard, as any fair mind appreciates, would be greater than they were at the peace session, and we must not attempt to convince ourselves that they did not try the genius, patience and diplomacy of statesmen at that time. History will say that, great as was the allied triumph in war, no less a victory was achieved at the peace table.

"The republican proposal means dishonor, world confusion and delay. It would keep us in permanent company with Germany, Russia, Turkey and Mexico. It would entail in the ultimate, more real injury than the war itself.

"The democratic position on the question, as expressed in the platform, is:

"'We advocate immediate ratification of the treaty without reservations which would impair its essential integrity, but do not oppose the acceptance of any reservation making clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States to the league associates.'

Reservations Favored.

"The first duty of the new administration clearly will be the ratification of the treaty. The matter should be approached without thought of the bitterness of the past. The public verdict will have been rendered, and I am confident that the friends of world peace as it will be promoted by the league will have in numbers the constitutional requisite to favorable senatorial action.

"The captious may say that our platform reference to reservations is vague and indefinite. Its meaning, in brief, is that we shall state our interpretation of the covenant as a matter of good faith to our associates and as a precaution against any misunderstanding in the future.

"The point is that after the people shall have spoken the league will be in the hands of its friends in the senate, and a safe index as to what they will do is supplied by what reservations they have proposed in the past.

"Some months ago, in a contributed article to the New York Times, I expressed my own opinion of the situation as it then was. I reproduce it here:

"'There can be no doubt but that some senators have been conscientious in their desire to clarify the provisions of the treaty. Two things apparently have disturbed them: First, they wanted to make sure that the league was not to be an alliance, and that its basic purpose was peace and not controversy. Second, they wanted the other powers signing the instrument to understand our constitutional limitations, beyond which the treaty making power cannot go. Dealing with these two questions in order, it has always seemed to me that the interpretation of the function of the league might have been stated in these words:

"'"In giving assent to this treaty the senate has in mind the fact that the league of nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The co-operation of the United States with the league and its continuance as a member thereof will naturally depend upon the adherence of the league to that fundamental purpose."

"'Such a declaration would at least express the view of the United States and justify the course which our nation would unquestionably follow if the basic purpose of the league were at any time distorted. It would also appear to be a simpler matter to provide against any misunderstanding in the future and at the same time to meet the objections of those who believe that we might be inviting a controversy over our constitutional rights by making a senatorial addition in words something like these:

"'"It will of course be understood that in carrying out the purpose of the league the government of the United States must at all times act in strict harmony with the terms and intent of the United States constitution, which cannot in any way be altered by the treaty making power."

"Unquestioned friends of the league have made other proposals. Our platform clearly lays no bar against any additions that will be helpful, but it speaks in a firm resolution to stand against anything that disturbs the vital principle.

"We hear it said that interpretations are unnecessary. That may be true, but they will at least be reassuring to many of our citizens, who feel that in signing the treaty there should be no mental reservations that are not expressed in plain words, as a matter of good faith to our associates. Such interpretations possess the further virtue of supplying a base upon which agreement can be reached, and agreement, without injury to the covenant, is now of pressing importance.

"It was the desire to get things started that prompted some members of the senate to vote for the Lodge reservations. Those who conscientiously voted for them in the final roll calls realized, however, that they acted under duress, in that a politically bigoted minority was exercising the arbitrary power of its position to enforce drastic conditions.

"Happily the voters of the republic, under our system of government, can remedy that situation and I have the faith that they will at the election this fall. Then organized government will be enabled to combine impulse and facility in the making of better world conditions. The agencies of exchange will automatically adjust themselves to the opportunities of commercial freedom. New life and renewed hope will take hold of every nation. Mankind will press a resolute shoulder to the task of readjustment and a new era will have dawned upon the earth.

Repeal of War Taxes.

"We have domestic problems to be settled. They are most pressing. Many conditions growing out of the war will not and should not continue. The work of readjustment will call for our best energy, ingenuity, unselfishness and devotion to the idea that it is the general welfare we must promote.

"One of the first things to be done is the repeal of war taxes. The entry of America into the world war projected our people into an unparalleled financial emergency, which was faced with a determination to make every sacrifice necessary to victory. Billions in liberty loans subscribed by patriots regardless of their financial condition were instantly placed at the disposal of the government, and other billions were gladly paid into the treasury through many forms of taxation. To have paid by current taxes more than one-third of the expense of the greatest war in the history of mankind is a reflection on the high sense of national duty with which we of America view the obligations of this generation.

"Immediately following the armistice, measures to modify onerous and annoying taxation should have been taken, and the republican congress, in which all tax laws must originate, and which for almost two years has exclusively held the power to ameliorate this condition, has not made a single effort or passed a single law to lift from the American people a load of war taxation that cannot be tolerated in a time of peace. Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once if a democratic administration is chosen in November.

"Without hampering essential national administrative departments, by the elimination of all others and strict economy everywhere, national taxes can be reduced in excess of $2,000,000,000 yearly. Annoying consumption taxes, once willingly borne, now unjustified, should be repealed. The incomes from war-made fortunes, those of nonproducers and those derived from industries that exist by unfair privilege, may be able to carry their present load, but taxes on the earnings of the wage earner, of the salaried and professional man, of the agricultural producer and of the small tradesman should be sharply modified.

Against Excess Profits Tax.

"I believe that a better form of taxation than the so called excess profits tax may be found, and I suggest a small tax, probably 1 to 1½ per cent. on the total business of every going concern. It is to be understood that the term 'business' as used does not include income received by wage earners, salaried men, agriculturists and the small business man, who should be exempt from this tax. The profiteer and some of the highly capitalized units have used the excess profits tax as a favorite excuse for loading on the consumer by means of highly inflated selling prices many times the amount actually paid the government.

"A necessary condition to the national contentment and sound business is a just proportion between fair profits to business and fair prices to the consumer. It is unquestioned that the enormous expansion of public and private credit made necessary as a part of war financing, the diversion of the products of many industries from their usual channels, as well as the disturbance to general business caused by the withdrawal of millions of men from producing fields, all contributed to the rise in prices. Reversion of these various agencies to a more stable condition will tend toward a recession in the enormously inflated present prices of many commodities and property values and there are now evidences that a sane adjustment is not far distant.

"Deep patriotic sentiment enthralled our people during the war and slight attention was given to the enormous economic changes that were then in progress, and when observed these changes were generally accepted as one of the trials necessary to be endured, and they were submerged in the thought and purpose for victory.

"While millions of free men, regardless of wealth and condition, were giving of their blood and substance, many corporations and men seized the very hour that civilization lay prostrate to secure for themselves fortunes wrung from the public and from the government, by the levying of prices that in many cases were a crime. Under present taxation laws much capital is drawing out of industry and finding investment in nontaxable securities. This will cease if the changes suggested are made.

"In the analysis of government, as the events of to-day enable us to penetrate the subject, we see the difference between the old and the progressive kinds of thinking. The belief of the reactionaries is that government should not function more widely than it did in the past, but they seem to forget that the fundamental of our plan is equal rights for all and special privileges for none.

"Modern life has developed new problems. Civilization continues to build along the same basic lines and, altruistic as we may all be disposed to be, the fact remains that except for the exchange of products between individuals, commercial units and nations, our development would be slow. All of this growth goes on under the protection of and with the encouragement of government. The least, therefore, that might be rendered unto government for this continuous service is a policy of fair dealing.

"Too often the genius of man prompts him to play for governmental advantage, and the success which has been achieved in this particular has led to the formation of groups which seek this very advantage. We are a busy people, preoccupied in too large degree with purely commercial considerations, and we have not recognized as we should that the failure of government to prevent inequalities has made it possible for mischievous spirits to develop prejudice against the institutions of government, rather than against administrative policy.

"There is a very important difference here. This difference bears directly on profiteering, which is to-day the most sinister influence in American life. It is not a new thing in America. The tribe of profiteers has simply multiplied under the favoring circumstances of war. For years large contributions have been made to the republican campaign fund for no purpose except to buy a governmental underhold and to make illegal profits as the result of preference. Such largesses are to-day a greater menace to our contentment and our institutions than the countless temporary profiteers who are making a mockery of honest business, but who can live and fatten only in time of disturbed prices.

"If I am called to service as president means will be found, if they do not already exist, for compelling these exceptions to the great mass of square dealing American business men to use the same yardstick of honesty that governs most of us in our dealings with our fellow men, or in language that they may understand to suffer the penalty of criminal law.

"There is another reason for the fabulous contributions to the present republican campaign fund. Much money, of course, has been subscribed in proper partisan zeal, but the great bulk has been given with the definite idea of gaining service in return.

"Many captains of industry, guided by a most dangerous industrial philosophy, believe that in controversy between employer and employe their will should be enforced, even at the point of the bayonet. I speak knowingly. I have passed through many serious industrial troubles. I know something of their psychology, the stages through which they pass, and the dangerous attempts that are sometimes made to end them.

"Disputes between labor and capital are inevitable. The disposition to gain the best bargain possible characterizes the whole field of exchange, whether it be product for product or labor for money. If strikes are prolonged public opinion always settles them. Public opinion should determine results in America. Public opinion is the most interesting characteristic of a democracy, and it is the real safety valve to the institutions of a free government. It may at times be necessary for the government to inquire into the facts of a tie-up, but facts, and not conclusions, should be submitted. The determining form of unprejudiced thought will do the rest. During this process governmental agencies must give a vigilant eye to the protection of life and property and maintain firmness but absolute impartiality. This is always the real test, but if official conduct combines courage and fairness our governmental institutions come out of these affairs untarnished by distrust.

Unassimilated Aliens.

"This is not an academic observation. It is the mere recital of experience. Unrest has been re-enforced in no small degree by the great mass of unassimilated aliens. Attracted by an unprecedented demand for labor they have come to our shores by the thousands. As they have become acquainted with the customs and opportunities of American life thousands of them have become citizens and are owners of their own homes. However, the work of assimilation too long was merely automatic. One million six hundred thousand foreign-born in this country cannot read or write our language. Our interest in them in the main has been simply as laborers, assembled in the great trade centers, to meet the demand of the hour. Without home or community ties, many have been more or less nomadic, creating the problem of excessive turnover, which has perplexed manufacturing plants.

"But this has not been the worst phase of the situation. Unfamiliar with law, having no understanding of the principles of our government, they have fallen an easy prey to unpatriotic and designing persons. Public opinion has had no influence upon them, because they have been isolated from the currents of opinion, all due to their not being able to read or write our language. It is the duty of the federal government to stimulate the work of Americanization on the part of church, school, community agencies, state governments and industry itself.

"In the past, many industries that have suffered from chronic restlessness have been the chief contributors to their own troubles. The foreigner with European standards of living was welcomed, but too often no attempt was made to educate him to domestic ideals, for the simple reason that it adversely affected the ledger. It has been my observation that the man who learns our language yields to a controlling public opinion and respects our laws; besides, in proportion as his devotion to American life develops his interest in the impulsive processes of revolution diminishes.

"We must be patient in the work of assimilation and studiously avoid oppressive measures in the face of mere evidence of misunderstanding. We have a composite nation. The Almighty doubtless intended it to be such. We will not, however, develop patriotism unless we demonstrate the difference between despotism and democracy.

"The necessity for the drastic laws of war days is not present now, and we should return at the earliest opportunity to the statutory provisions passed in time of peace for the general welfare. There is no condition now that warrants any infringement on the right of free speech and assembly nor on the liberty of the press. The greatest measure of individual freedom consistent with the safety of our institutions should be given. Excessive regulation causes manifestations that compel restraint. The police power, therefore, is called to action because the legislative authority acted unwisely.

"A forbearing policy is not the proper one for the deliberate enemy of our institutions. He is of the kind that knows conditions abroad and here. The difference between autocracy and democracy is well marked in his mind. He is opposed to government in any form, and he hates ours because it appeals to those whom he would convert to his creed. Any policy of terrorism is fuel to his flame of anarchy. Those whom he seeks to arouse, in time, realize the difference between his and their mental attitude, so that when the law lays hand upon his willful menace to government, the purpose of it becomes plain to them.

"Official contempt for the law is a harmful exhibition to our people. It is difficult to follow the reasoning of any one who would seek to make an issue of the question of law enforcement. The executive obligation, both national and state, on assuming the oath of office is 'to preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States.' The constitution, in its essence, is the license and limitation given to and placed upon the law-making body. The legislative branch of government is subjected to the rule of the majority.

"The public official who fails to enforce the law is an enemy both to the constitution and to the American principle of majority rule. It would seem quite unnecessary for any candidate for the presidency to say that he does not intend to violate his oath of office. Any one who is false to that oath is more unworthy than the law violator himself.

Labor and Capital.

"Morals cannot easily be produced by statute. The writ of injunction should not be abused. Intended as a safeguard to person and property, it could easily by abuse cease to be the protective device it was intended to be.

"Capital develops into large units without violence to public sentiment or injury to public interest—the same principle should not be denied to labor. Collective bargaining through the means of representatives selected by the employer and employe respectively will be helpful rather than harmful to the general interest. Besides, there is no ethical objection that can be raised to it.

"We should not by law abridge a man's right either to labor or to quit his employment. However, neither labor nor capital should at any time or in any circumstances take action that would put in jeopardy the public welfare.

"We need a definite and precise statement of policy as to what business men and workingmen may do and may not do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the economic predilections of judge or jury. This does not make for confidence in the courts nor respect for the laws, nor for a healthy activity in production and distribution. There surely will be found ways by which co-operation may be encouraged without the destruction of enterprise. The rules of business should be made more certain so that on a stable basis men may move with confidence.

"Government, however, should provide the means in the treatment of its employes to keep in touch with conditions and to rectify wrong. It is needless to say that, in order to be consistent, facts should at all times justify the presupposition that the government employes are properly compensated.

"The child life of the nation should be conserved; if labor in immature years is permitted by one generation it is practicing unfairness to the next.

Farmer and Consumer.

"Agriculture is but another form of industry. In fact, it is the basis of industry because upon it depends the food supply. The drift from countryside into the city carries disquieting portents. If our growth in manufacturing in the next few years holds its present momentum, it will be necessary for America to import foodstuffs. It therefore devolves upon government, through intensive scientific co-operation, to help in maintaining as nearly as possible the existing balance between food production and consumption. Farming will not inspire individual effort unless profits, all things considered, are equal to those in other activities.

"An additional check to depleted ranks in the fields would be the establishment of modern state rural school codes. The federal government should maintain active sponsorship of this. Rural parents would be lacking in the element which makes civilization enduring if they did not desire for their children educational opportunities comparable to those in the cities.

"The price the consumer pays for foodstuffs is no indication of what the producer receives. There are too many turnovers between the two. Society and government, particularly local and state, have been remiss in not modernizing local marketing facilities. Municipalities must in a large measure interest themselves in, if not directly control, community markets. This is a matter of such importance that the federal government can profitably expend money and effort in helping to evolve methods and to show their virtues.

"The farmer raises his crop, and the price which he receives is determined by supply and demand. His products in beef and pork and produce pass into cold storage, and ordinarily when they reach the consumer the law of supply and demand does not obtain.

"The preservation of foodstuffs by cold storage is a boon to humanity, and it should be encouraged. However, the time has come for its vigilant regulation and inasmuch as it becomes a part of interstate commerce, the responsibility is with the federal government. Supplies are gathered in from the farm in times of plenty. They can easily be fed out to the consumer in such manner as to keep the demand in excess of that part of the supply which is released from storage. This is an unfair practice and should be stopped. Besides, there should be a time limit beyond which perishable foodstuffs should not be stored.

"Every successful modern business enterprise has its purchasing, producing and selling departments. The farmer has maintained only one, the producing department. It is not only fair that he be enabled both to purchase and to sell advantageously, but it is absolutely necessary because he has become a competitor with the manufacturer for labor. He has been unable to compete in the past and his help in consequence has been insufficient. Therefore the right of co-operative purchasing and selling, in the modern view, should be removed from all question.

"Agricultural thought has not been sufficiently represented in affairs of government. Many of the branches of the government which deal remotely or directly with the soil and its problems and its possibilities would be more valuable to the general welfare if the practical experience of the farmer were an element in their administration.

To be specific, the interstate commerce commission, the federal reserve board, the federal trade commission and the United States tariff commission are administered by business men. Does any one contribute more to the making and success of railroads than the farmer or to the creation and prosperity of the banks, or to the stability of manufacturing and trade units, or to the agencies interested in exporting?

"Our objective should be a decreased tenantry. With the period of occupancy uncertain, the renter strips land of its fertile elements, and each year diminishes our national assets. Under the operation of the federal reserve and the farm loan acts encouragement has come to thousands who find that industry, character and intelligence are a golden security to the people's banker, the government of the United States.

"Multiply our home owners, and you will make the way of the seditious agitator more difficult. Bring into the picture of American life more families having a plot of garden and flowers all their own and you will find new streams running into the national current of patriotism.

"Help to equalize the burdens of taxation by making the holders of hidden wealth pay their share with those whose property is in sight. In short, remove the penalty imposed upon home-building thrift, and thousands of contented households under the shelter of their own roof will look upon government with affection, recognizing that in protecting it they protect themselves.

"There are more home owners in America than ever before. The prosperity of the country under democratic rule has been widely diffused. Never before has the great mass of the people shared in the blessings of plenty. There is much to be done, however, in multiplying our home owners. Nothing will bring more golden return to the welfare of the republic.

"Common prudence would suggest that we increase to our utmost our area of tillable land. The race between increased consumption and added acreage has been an unequal one. Modern methods of soil treatment have been helpful, but they have their limitations. There are still vast empires in extent, in our country, performing no service to humanity. They require only the applied genius of men to cover them with the bloom and harvest of human necessities. The government should turn its best engineering talent to the task of irrigation projects. Every dollar spent will yield compensating results

Transportation Problem.

"Any discussion of the question of food supply leads very quickly to the closely related matter of transportation. There is no one thing which brings us so intermittently to critical conditions as the insufficiency of our transportation facilities. Both the railroads and the public are to blame. There has been no material addition to the total mileage in the last ten years, and the increase in terminals has been much less than required.

"At the beginning of the war the rolling stock was sadly reduced and inadequate. The public had not given in pay for service sufficient revenues on which credit could be allowed by the banks. Moral assistance was withheld because of railroad policies that did not bring approval. Many of these corporations had made themselves a part of political activities—local, state and national. Then there were more or less sporadic instances of stock watering operations and the exploitation of utility properties for personal gain. Abuses were not general, but they were sufficient to bring the entire railroad systems of the country in disrepute. The good suffered with the evil.

"When the transportation lines were taken over by the government they were barely able to limp through the task of the day. Unity in operation, the elimination of the long haul and the merging of every mile of track and terminal and every car and engine into a coordinated plan of operation enabled the government to transport troops and supplies, at the same time affording, under great stress, a satisfactory outlet for our industries. It should be remembered in this connection that except for the motor truck, which supplemented transportation by rail, and except for the great pipe lines, which conveyed oil for commercial purposes, we should not, in all probability, have been able to throw our deciding strength into the balance and win the war.

"Any attempt to discredit the federal operation of railroads during the years of grave emergency is unfair. In the case of those who know the facts it is insincere. Too much cannot be said in praise of those who directed this work, nor of the men who physically operated the lines under the discouraging conditions of poor equipment. But all of this is water over the wheel. The problem of the railroads is still with us. The government and the public should render every co-operation in the utmost good faith to give thorough test to private ownership. The railroads have had their lesson. Government regulation is accepted now as not only a safeguard to the public, but as a conserving process to the utility. Financial credit is necessary to physical rehabilitation and it should be sufficient for the periods of maximum demand.

"We should not lose sight, however, of the vast possibilities of supplementary service by water. The great lakes and St. Lawrence navigation project, particularly, should claim the interest of the government. About one-third of our states would be supplied with an outlet for every ton of their exports. The opportunity to make of the lake harbors great ocean ports of entry is inspiring to contemplate.

"In the crop moving period the call on the railroads is staggering. Grain piles up in the elevators. With stagnation more or less general, the farmer sells his product under the most unfavorable conditions. The trackage and the terminals in middle states particularly are clogged with this traffic and interference with local movements of freight is inevitable. The solution would be simplified by utilizing the waterways.

"Aside from this, the accruing gain from every crop would be a consideration, for the reason that the price of grain in this country is made by the Chicago market and it is determined by the London quotations. The price in the British metropolis is a stated figure less the cost of transportation. The routing of these commodities by water would effect a saving of approximately 8 cents a bushel, which means that American grain would net just that much more.

Federal Reserve Act.

"For more than forty years before Woodrow Wilson was elected president in 1912, a reform of our banking and currency system had been almost universally demanded, and had been year after year deferred or refused by the stand-pat element of the republican party in obedience to orders. The control of money and interest rates had long been held by favored groups, who were thus able to dominate markets, regulate prices, favor friends, destroy rivals, precipitate and end panics and, in short, through their financial, social and political outposts be the real rulers of America.

"The federal reserve act was originated, advocated and made a law by a democratic president and congress against the bitter protests of the republican stand-patters, who almost without exception voted against it. Among these men are the familiar names of Senators Lodge, Penrose and Smoot, the inside senate cabal responsible for the existing status in the leadership of their party. The federal reserve act is admitted to be the most constructive monetary legislation in history. At a stroke it transferred the power over money and credit and all they represent from one financial district out into the keeping of the people themselves and instead of one center to which all paid tribute there are twelve citadels of financial freedom where every citizen has an equal right and where the principle that the credit of American business shall be free is the basis of administration.

"Every citizen should be alert to guard this great institution, which is his guaranty of credit independence. It should be kept from the hands of those who have never been its friends, and who by changes in a few obscure phrases could translate it into a greater power for evil than it ever has been for good. It is almost unnecessary to speak of the federal reserve system in connection with the winning of the war, as, next to the consecration of our manhood and womanhood itself, the greatest factor was the marshaling into one unit through the federal reserve banks of the stupendous wealth of America.

"To those of vision who look out beyond our shores into that commercial domain where we are so justly entitled to enter in a time of peace, latent power of the federal reserve system can be seen promoting in every quarter of the globe an ever widening flow of American commerce. We will soon have a merchant marine fleet of 11,000,000 tons aggregate, every ship flying the American flag and carrying in American bottoms the products of mill and mine and factory and farm. This would seem to be a guaranty of continued prosperity. Our facilities for exchange and credit, however, in foreign parts should be enlarged and under the federal reserve system banks should be established in important trading centers.

Diplomatic Service.

"I am impressed also with the importance of improving, if not reorganizing, our consular service. The certain increase in foreign trade would seem to demand it. This suggests another change. Our ambassadors to foreign countries have had assigned to them a military and a naval attache. The staff should be enlarged, so as to include an officer of the government whose exclusive duty would be to make observation and report development and improvement in educational and social problems generally.

"Government bureaus during the war had close contact with the business organization of the country. That experience revealed the modern need of reorganization along purely business lines. The advantages of a democracy in government need not be recounted. It has been held by experts that it involves the disadvantage of disbursements, authorized by the lawmaking power without sufficient knowledge of the need of the service or the possibilities of extravagance.

"The answer to this is the budget system. No successful business enterprise of any size can operate without it. For a hundred years the federal unit, and the states as well, made appropriations without determining the difference between department need and caprice, at the same time paying little attention to the relation as between income and expense. Many of the states have adopted a budget system, and with a success that carries no exception. Efficiency has been improved—departmental responsibility has been centered and economies have been effected. The same can be done by the federal government. The system will reveal at once, as it did in the states, a vast surplusage of employes. It awakens individual interest, encourages greater effort and gives opportunity for talent to assert itself. The normal course of least resistance develops in government bureaus hardpan, which retards progress. When the reorganization is made, pay should be commensurate with service. Many federal departments, whose ramifications touch the country generally, have lost valuable men to business. This has badly crippled postoffices, the railway mail service and other branches.

"I am convinced after considerable study of he subject that the expense of the government can, without loss of efficiency, be reduced to a maximum of $4,000,000,000, including sinking fund and interest on the national debt.

Armaments.

"When we enter the league of nations we should at the same time diminish our cost for armament. To continue expenditures in either the war or the navy department on a vast scale, once our membership in the league is assured, would seem to be a very definite refutation of the advantages of the world plan which we believe it possesses. An appealing fundamental in the league method is the reduction of armaments. We cannot afford to do it until other nations do likewise. If we do not enter the league hundreds of millions of dollars must be spent for armament. If we go in—and I believe the people will insist on it—then we can count on economies.

On the World War.

"Since the last national conventions of the two great parties a world war has been fought, historic, unprecedented. For many, many months civilization hung in the balance. In the despair of dark hours it seemed as though a world dictator was inevitable, and that henceforth men and women who had lived in freedom would stand at attention in the face of the drawn sword of military autocracy. The very soul of America was touched as never before with a fear that our liberties were to be taken away. What America did needs no reiteration here. It is known of all men. History will acclaim it; poets will find it an inspiration throughout the ages.

"And yet there is not a line in the republican platform that breathes an emotion of pride or recites our national achievement. In fact, if a man from Mars were to depend upon the republican platform or its spoken interpretation by the candidate of that party as his first means of information he would not find a syllable telling him that the war had been won and that America had saved the world. How ungenerous, how ungracious all of this is; how unfair that a mere group of leaders should so demean themselves in the name of the party of Lincoln and McKinley and Roosevelt.

"The discourtesy to the president is an affair of political intrigue. History will make it odious. As well might it be directed at a wounded soldier of the war. One fell in the trench; the strength of the other was broken in the enormous labors of his office.

"But others were ignored—the men and women who labored at home with an industry and a skill that words cannot recount! What of the hands that moved the lathe by day and the needle by night? What of the organizations, superbly effective, that conserved food and fed the world—that carried nourishment to the very front trench in the face of hell's furies—that nursed the wounded back to life—that buried the dead in the dark shelter of the night—that inspired business men and artisans of all parties to work in harmony?

"What of the millions of men, women and children of all creeds, religious and otherwise, who stood in the ranks as firm as soldiers overseas, undivided by things they once quarreled about?

"What of the government itself—confirming the faith of our fathers as sufficient to meet the storms of time?

"Why the sneer at labor with the veiled charge that it was a mere slacker?

"The spectacle is sufficient to convince any unprejudiced man that the republican leaders who have taken charge of their party and nominated its candidate are no more possessed of the spirit of the hour than they were in 1912 when they precipitated a revolution within the rank and file of a great organization. If further proof were needed, the action of the present congress supplies it. Not a constructive law can be cited. Money and time were wasted in seeking to make a military triumph an odious chapter in history—and yet is it not significant that after two years of sleuthful inquiry, there was nothing revealed in that vast enterprise, carrying billions of dollars in expense, upon which they could base even a whisper of dishonesty?

"The Mexican situation, trying to our patience for years, begins to show signs of improvement. Not the least of the things that have contributed to it is a realization by the people of that country that we have neither the lust for their domain nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights. Peace smiles upon the border and incentive to individual effort seems to be making a national aspiration.

"Many elements have made our republic endure; not the least of which is a sustained gratitude. The richest traditions of our land are woven from historic threads that tell the bravery of our soldiers of every war. They make the first impressions of history upon the minds of our children and bind the hearts of generations together.

"Never in all time will the performance of our soldiers in the late war be surpassed. From farm, forest and factory they gathered together in the training camps—from countryside and city—men whose hands were calloused by labor, others whose shoulders showed the stoop of office task—the blood of many nations flowing in their veins—and the same impulse ran from the front trench in Europe back to the first day in training.

"We must not forget that war breaks into the plans of young men, and their first chart of life is in a sense more important than any calculation later on. In college and shop, in every calling they were building the base for their careers. Thousands of them by the circumstances of injury or the disturbance of domestic conditions which war always brings were compelled to change their whole course of life. We owe a debt to those who died, and to those the honored dead left dependent. We owe a debt to the wounded; but we must realize that considerable compensation is due those also who lost much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations. The genius of the nation's mind and the sympathy of its heart must inspire intensive, thoughtful effort to assist those who saved our all.

"I feel deeply that the rehabilitation of the disabled soldiers of the recent war is one of the most vital issues before the people, and I, as a candidate, pledge myself and my party to those young Americans to do all in my power to secure for them without unnecessary delay the immediate training which is so necessary to fit them to compete in their struggle to overcome that physical handicap incurred while in the service of their government. I believe also that the federal board of vocational rehabilitation as far as possible should employ disabled soldiers themselves to supervise the rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, because of their known sympathy and understanding. The board itself and all agencies under it should be burdened with the care of securing for the disabled soldier who has finished his training adequate employment. These men will inspire future generations no less than they have themselves been inspired by the heroes of the past.

"No greater force for patriotic effort was found when we were drawn into the late conflict than the example and activity of our veterans of previous wars. Under the colors they loved gathered the soldiers of the past, bringing quickly to their support the new army of the republic. Response in the southland by veterans who wore the gray inspired the youth with a zeal which aided greatly in the quick mobilization of our forces.

In Praise of Women.

"The women of America, in emotion and constructive service, measured up during the war to every requirement and emergency exacted of them. Their initiative, their enthusiasm and their sustained industry, which carried many of them to the heavy burdens of toil, form an undying page in the annals of the time, while the touch of the mother heart in camp and hospital gave a sacred color to the tragic picture that feeble words should not even attempt to portray. They demonstrated not only willingness but capacity. They helped win the war and they are entitled to a voice in the readjustment now at hand.

"Their intuition, their sense of the humanitarian in government, their unquestioned progressive spirit will be helpful in problems that require public judgment. Therefore they are entitled to the privilege of voting as a matter of right and because they will be helpful in maintaining wholesome and patriotic policy.

It requires but one more state to ratify the national amendment and thus bring a long delayed justice. I have the same earnest hope as our platform expresses, that some one of the remaining states will promptly take favorable action.

"Senator Harding's theory of the great office to which he aspires, putting a thoroughly fair interpretation on his own words, is that the government of this country, so far as it is embodied in the executive, should be what he is pleased to call 'government by party,' as in contrast with the exercise by the president of his own best final judgment under the responsibility assumed by his solemn oath of office, taking into consideration the views of others, of course, in arriving at that final judgment, but recognizing no group of any kind, not sworn, as he is, to the faithful performance of the particular duties in question, and not subject to impeachment, as he is, in case of serious malfeasance in the performance of those duties.

"The latter is the conception of the presidency held by Washington, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson in initiating our great experiment in political and personal freedom under the constitution. It is the conception held by Lincoln and Roosevelt, by Cleveland and Wilson, and all other presidents of the past to whom history has assigned a significant place in the normal growth of our free institutions. It is the conception of the presidency to which, in case of success of the democratic party in the coming election, my own best efforts shall be dedicated, with a solemn sense of responsibility to the Power above, to the people of the United States as a whole, and to the sacred oath of allegiance to the constitution and the laws. There is, and will always be, a useful place for parties in the conduct of a free government; but any theory of a government by party, which must weaken this solemn sense of personal responsibility, or alter its traditional direction and turn it toward party or faction, can only accentuate the possible evils of party and thwart its possible advantages.

"I am sincerely grateful to the democratic party for the opportunities of public service which it has brought to me in the past, and for the willingness which it has shown to extend those opportunities to a still greater field; but I am glad to say that it has always recognized that my official duties were to the people as a whole, and has in no case attempted to interfere, under pretext of party responsibility, with my right of personal judgment, under oath, in the performance of those duties.

Education.

"There must be an awakened interest in education. The assumption that things are all right is an error. There is more or less of a general idea that because our school system generally is satisfactory and in most instances excellent, sufficient progress is being made. The plain fact reveals two startling things—one, a growing decimation in the ranks of teachers, and the other, the existence of 5,500,000 illiterates. It is true that 1,600,000 of these are foreign born. The army of instructors has been more or less demoralized through financial temptation from other activities which pay much better. We owe too much to the next generation to be remiss in this matter.

"Very satisfactory progress is being made in several states in the teaching of native born illiterates. The moonlight school in Kentucky has, in fact, become a historic institution. The practice has spread into other commonwealths, and bands of noble men and women are rendering great service.

"There should be no encroachment by the federal government on local control. It is the healthful, reasonable individualism of American national life that has enabled the citizens of this republic to think for themselves, and, besides, state and community initiative would be impaired by anything approaching dependence. The central government, however, can inventory the possibilities of progressive education, and in helpful manner create an enlarged public interest in this subject.

"I accept the nomination of our party, obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by trust in Him the way will be shown for helpful service."

ROOSEVELT ACCEPTANCE.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, in formally accepting the democratic nomination for vice-president of the United States at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 9, urged ratification of the peace treaty, "which to make it a real treaty for a real peace must include a league of nations."

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES.

According to the final reports filed with the clerk of the house of representatives in Washington, D. C., Nov. 22 and 30, the national campaign cost the republicans $4,022,580 and the democrats $1.308,007.

WOMAN VOTE IN ELECTION.

With full suffrage everywhere, the woman voters of the country went to the polls almost as numerously as the men. In nearly all the states no distinction is made as to sex in the balloting, so that it is impossible to say just how many women's votes were cast in the presidential election on Nov. 2. The reports indicate that they ranged from 35 to nearly 50 per cent of the total. In Illinois the total woman vote was 795,453 out of 2,094,714, or 38 per cent.

THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD.

The general education board was organized in New York Feb. 27, 1902, and incorporated by an act of congress signed Jan. 12, 1903. The purposes of the board are to promote education in the United States, without distinction as to race, sex or creed, and especially to promote, systematize and make effective various forms of educational beneficence. The principal of the general funds held by the board on Oct. 31, 1920, was $30,918,063. In addition, the board held gifts of $77,610,000, of which $46,692,183 represented unappropriated principal of the gift of Sept. 20, 1919, of $20,000,000 for medical education and of Dec. 18, 1919, of $50,000,000 for increasing teachers' salaries in colleges and universities. The total of all appropriations made by the board from the date of its organization to June 30, 1920, was $55,312,965.

The following are officers of the board: Wallace Buttrick, president; Abraham Flexner and Trevor Arnett, secretaries; E. C. Sage, assistant secretary; L. G. Myers, treasurer; L. M. Dashiell, assistant treasurer.

The following are members of the board: Frederick T. Gates, J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., Albert Shaw, Wallace Buttrick, Starr J. Murphy, Edwin A. Alderman, Harry Pratt Judson, Wickliffe Rose, Jerome D. Greene, Anson Phelps Stokes, Abraham Flexner, George E. Vincent, James H. Dillard, Charles P. Howland, Trevor Arnett.

ILLINOIS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION ADJOURNS.

The Illinois constitutional convention voted on Dec. 9, 1920, to adjourn until Sept. 6, 1921. This action came after it was apparent that the downstate delegates could not agree upon the redistricting of the state into five new Supreme court districts, giving Cook county two judges, thus maintaining a court of seven members. Prior to the adjournment there had been much talk of the Chicago and Cook county delegates' abandoning the convention entirely on account of the action of the downstate members in limiting Cook county's representation in the general assembly.

NEW PRESIDENT IN AUSTRIA.

Dr. Michael Hainisch was elected president of Austria Dec. 9, 1920, by the national assembly in Vienna.

MINISTER VOPICKA RESIGNS.

Charles J. Vopicka of Chicago, minister to Roumania and other Balkan states, sent his resignation to President Wilson in December, 1920.

NONPARTISAN ALDERMANIC ELECTIONS, CHICAGO.

The first election of aldermen in Chicago under the nonpartisan law passed by the state legislature and approved June 28, 1919, was held Feb. 24, 1920. Twenty-six out of thirty-five wards elected their aldermen, while in the other nine no one candidate received a majority of the votes, making necessary a supplementary election on April 6, when the two men in each of these wards receiving the highest number of votes on Feb. 24 were the candidates. All nominations are by petition.

THE CHICAGO CHURCH FEDERATION.

President—The Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston.
Vice-President—George W. Dixon.
Vice-President—The Rev. Ernest B. Allen.
Executive Secretary—Walter R. Mee.
Recording Secretary—N. Clarence Brown.
Treasurer—Thomas G. Bolger.

The Chicago Church federation in 1920 represented thirteen protestant denominations and more than 600 churches.

THIRTY-NINTH STREET, CHICAGO, BECOMES PERSHING ROAD.

The name of Pershing road was officially bestowed on 39th street by the city council of Chicago on Dec. 8, 1920, after permission had been obtained from Gen. John J. Pershing, in whose honor the change was made. It was at the request of citizens interested in the improvement of the thoroughfare that the action was taken by the aldermen.

STREET LIGHTING IN CHICAGO.

The municipal street lighting system of the city of Chicago is the largest municipally operated system in the world. Electrical energy is purchased from the sanitary district of Chicago, generated at its hydro-electric plant at Lockport, Ill. Power is transmitted a distance of thirty miles over three 44,000 volt, 3 phase, 60 cycle, transmission circuits mounted on steel towers paralleling the main drainage canal, and delivered to the terminal station at 31st street and Western avenue. From the terminal station the electrical energy is distributed over 12,000 volt city underground transmission cables to eleven city substations, from which the distributing lamp circuits are supplied and controlled. The investment in transmission cables, substations, conduits, wires, cables, lamps and equipment has a present value of over $8,500,000.

In addition to the municipally operated system, electric lights are rented from private corporations to light those portions of the city where the municipal system has not been extended; also gas and gasoline lights are operated under contract to light the less intensively populated sections where the investment necessary for electric lights would be uneconomical.

The following table is a synopsis of the lamps in service and the annual cash cost for 1918 and 1919:

UNION STOCKYARDS, CHICAGO.

The Union stockyards of Chicago, occupying its present site since 1865, is the largest live stock market in the world. Its yard area of 500 acres contains approximately 13,000 pens, which have a daily capacity for 75,000 cattle, 150,000 sheep, 300,000 hogs and 6,000 horses.

Since the Union stockyards of Chicago were established there have been received and sold on this market a grand total of more than 550,000,000 animals for an aggregate sum of $10,700,000,000, for every dollar's worth of which sales there was an actual delivery of the property.

For the last ten years an average yearly total of over 16,000,000 animals was sold for the stupendous annual average sum of over $350,000,000. That means that a general average of considerably more than $1,000,000 worth of living property was sold and delivered every business day during the last ten years on the Chicago live stock market. These figures do not embrace the enormous daily transactions of "Packingtown," which are second in magnitude only to those of the Union stockyards proper.

More than twenty-six states supply Chicago with live stock and during the last ten years there have been sold and shipped alive more than 40 per cent of the cattle, 22½ per cent of hogs and 26 per cent of sheep, showing the constant healthy competition in buying live stock at Chicago.

The Chicago live stock market supplies the world with meats. Nowhere is there such a demand for live animals. Packers buy thousands of carloads on other markets and ship them to Chicago for slaughter, and speculators buy and ship them to Chicago for sale.

The city of Chicago alone consumes more than 400,000,000 pounds of meats per year, equal to 800,000 head of cattle annually, and her packers send millions of tons of meat annually to the four corners of the earth.

Eastern buyers, exporters, independent local slaughterers and country feeder buyers constantly compete with the larger packers for the daily offerings. The Union stockyards of Chicago receives the greatest number of animals and has the largest number of buyers to purchase and use them.

RATES OF FARE FOR TAXICABS.

Fixed by Chicago city ordinances. Sightseeing cars and autobuses having a capacity of eight persons or more not included.

I. Rates by Distance.

For first half-mile (or fraction thereof) for one person.....40 cents
For each succeeding quarter-mile (or fraction thereof).....10 cents
For each additional person for the whole journey.....25 cents
For each four minutes of waiting (or fraction thereof).....10 cents

Waiting time shall include (a) the time during which the taxicab is not in motion, beginning ten minutes after call time at the place to which it has been called; (b) the time consumed by unavoidable delay at street crossings or bridges, and (c) the time consumed while standing at the direction of the passenger.

No charge shall be made (a) for time lost for inefficiency of the taxicab or its operator, or (b) for time consumed by the premature arrival in response to a call.

II. Hour Rates.

For trip of two miles or more.

Car seating two persons, $2.50; minimum charge for trip, $1.

Seating three to five persons, $3.50; minimum charge for trip, $1.50.

Seating more than five persons, $4.50; minimum charge for trip, $2.

Where the trip is for two miles or more and the passenger at the time of hiring any such vehicle expressly elects, as such passenger may do, to pay therefor by the hour, the operator in charge of such vehicle shall supply the passenger with a card upon which shall appear the name of the owner, the name and license number of the operator and the exact time of the hiring; and the charge for such service, in the absence of such express agreement, shall not exceed the rates prescribed above as the "hour rate."

The rate of fare to be asked or demanded for such vehicles shall be determined in accordance with the time which the vehicle is in use by the passenger or passengers engaging the same.

In determining the seating capacity of any such vehicle neither the operator's seat nor any portion thereof shall be computed, but the said capacity shall be determined by the number of persons which can be accommodated in the interior or tonneau of such vehicle.

No charge shall be made for the time consumed in responding to a call or in returning to the place from which such vehicle is called.

Baggage—Every passenger upon any public automobile, autocar or other similar vehicle shall be allowed to have conveyed with him upon such vehicle, without extra charge therefor, his ordinary light traveling baggage in an amount not to exceed fifty pounds. A fee of 20 cents may be charged for conveying a trunk.

Lost Baggage—Whenever any package, article of baggage or goods of any kind shall be left in or upon any vehicle licensed under the provisions of this article, the operator of such vehicle shall, upon discovery of such package, baggage or goods, forthwith deliver the same to the vehicle bureau, department of police, in the city hall.

ILLINOIS RAILROAD RATES INCREASED.

Federal Judge G. A. Carpenter granted a temporary injunction Nov. 29, 1920, by which fourteen railroad companies operating in Illinois were permitted to raise their passenger rates from 3 to 3.6 cents a mile on Dec. 1, the date set for the increase by the interstate commerce commission. Earlier in the year the state authorities attempted to enforce the old Illinois rate of 2 cents a mile, but were enjoined from doing so by the federal courts. These at that time set 3 cents a mile as a reasonable rate. A few days prior to Judge Carpenter's decision the interstate commerce commission in Washington entered an order commanding the Illinois railroads to charge 3.6 cents a mile for interstate passenger traffic.

COOK COUNTY COMMITTEES.

Under a ruling of the Illinois State Supreme court, announced June 16, 1920, the primary law of 1919 was declared unconstitutional. This had the effect of nullifying the election of new county committees at the primary on April 12, 1920, and of reinstating the old committees elected under the primary act of 1910. This opinion was expressed by Attorney-General Brundage as follows:

"The primary act of 1919 being invalid and the repealing clause thereof inoperative, it follows that the primary act of 1910, as subsequently amended, is in force and that all the committeemen and committees elected thereunder, prior to 1920, continue to serve until their successors are chosen."

The court decision caused considerable confusion, especially among the republicans on account of factional differences. The old committees, however, continued to act and they are consequently given here very much the same as in The Almanac and Year-Book for 1920.

EARTHQUAKES ON PACIFIC COAST.

Los Angeles, Cal., and vicinity suffered some damage from earthquakes in July, 1920. On the 16th four rather severe shocks were felt, and while there was considerable alarm relatively few persons were injured. Most of these were cut and bruised by falling debris in their homes. So far as could be learned no deaths resulted from the shocks. Fall river valley, eighty miles northeast of Redding, Cal., experienced four shocks July 23-24, but no damage was done.

FREIGHT TUNNELS UNDER CHICAGO.

Underlying nearly all the streets in the central business section of Chicago are sixty miles of tunnels connecting the freight terminals of the railroads with commercial houses. The tunnels are provided with narrow gauge (2 ft.) electric railroads equipped with electric locomotives and steel cars. These are used chiefly in transporting goods to and from railroad freight yards and in carrying coal to business houses. Excavated and waste material from new buildings is removed through the tunnels and disposed of, permitting the work of construction to go on without interruption. In 1914 the Chicago Utilities company, which now owns the tunnel system, had in operation 117 electric motors and 3,000 coal, freight and other cars. In addition it had charge of some 24,000 telephones.

The original franchise for the tunnel system was granted Feb. 20, 1899, to the Illinois Telephone and Telegraph company, which was organized in 1898 by A. G. Wheeler and associates for the purpose of establishing an independent telephone system. By an amendatory ordinance granted July 15, 1903, the company was given the right to construct and operate a subway system for the transportation of mail matter, newspapers, packages and freight generally. The tunnels are 19 feet below city datum or 33 feet below the surface of the streets, the trunk line tunnels being limited in size to 12 feet 9 inches in width by 14 feet in height, and the smaller ones to 6 feet in width and 7 feet 6 inches in height. Part of the tunnel system was put into operation Aug. 15, 1906, but the whole of it was not in use until Sept. 1, 1907.

The Illinois Telephone and Telegraph company was succeeded in October, 1903, by the Illinois Tunnel company, which was followed in November, 1904, by the Chicago Subway company. The property of the Subway company and underlying concerns was acquired in April, 1912, by the Chicago Utilities company, the authorized capital stock of which is $53,000,000.

[Compiled by W. C. Wermuth for the Chicago Motor Safety league.]

Abbreviations Used.

C. O.—Refers to Brundage's "Chicago code," 1911.

C. P.—Refers to "Journal council proceedings, city of Chicago.

Hurd—Refers to Hurd's "Revised Statutes of Illinois," 1917.

M. V. L.—Refers to the motor vehicle law to be found in 1919 session laws of state of Illinois, pages 68 to 689, also in Callaghan's Illinois laws, annotated, 1917-1920, pp. 1779-1802.

S. P.—Refers to "Municipal code of south park commissioners," 1919.

W. P.—Refers to ordinances of west Chicago park commissioners.

Definitions.

1. The motor vehicle law divides motor vehicles into two classes: (a) Those designed and used for carrying of not more than seven persons; (b) those designed and used for carrying freight as well as for carrying more than seven persons. (M. V. L., sec. 2.)

2. The term "motor vehicle" includes automobiles, locomobiles, motor bicycles, tractors, traction engines and all other vehicles propelled otherwise than by muscular power, but excludes cars of electric and steam railways and motor vehicles running upon fixed rails; and also excludes bicycles, tricycles or other vehicles propelled by muscular pedal power. (M. V. L., sec. 1; C. P., Dec. 11, 1911.)

Accidents.

1. Drivers must stop when person or property has been injured. Must give true name and address on demand by any one. (M. V. L., sec. 40; C. O., sec. 1981; S. P., sec. 49; W. P., sec. 98.)

2. If vehicle causing an injury is operated by person licensed under city ordinance, operator must report accident to police. Failure to make report may result in revocation of license. (C. O., sec. 1981 as amended, Dec. 8, 1913.)

3. Must not permit any part of person's body to protrude from vehicle. (W. P., sec. 95.)

4. Must not come in contact with man, beast or vehicle. (W. P., sec. 94.)

Arrest.

1. In place of taking person into custody, officer may notify arrested person to appear in court, providing such person produces license or registration card. Failure to obey notice results in warrant. (C. P., Dec. 11, 1911, as amended July 1, 1912.)

Bridges.

1. Vehicles must not be driven across a bridge at a speed of more than three (3) miles an hour. (C. O., sec. 1111.)

2. Unnecessary stopping upon bridges prohibited. (C. O., sec. 1113.)

3. Keep to the right when crossing a bridge. (C. O., sec. 1114.)

4. Driving on a bridge while it is opening or shutting or after signal for opening has been given is prohibited. (C. O., sec. 1110.)

5. When a bridge has been opened and closed vehicles cross in the following order: First, those occupying the streets on which the bridge is situated; second, those occupying the cross streets upon the left hand side of the bridge looking from the bridge; third, those occupying the cross streets upon the right hand side of the bridge, looking from the bridge. (C. O., sec. 1115.)

6. Do not attempt to cross or break into the line of vehicles while crossing the bridge. (C. O., sec. 1116.)

Chauffeurs.

1. A chauffeur is any person operating a motor vehicle as a mechanic or employe, and any one operating a motor vehicle for hire or pecuniary profit. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

2. A chauffeur, or his duly authorized agent, must apply for registration upon blanks furnished by secretary of state. The applicant must pass an examination as to his qualifications. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

3. Application must be accompanied by (a) photograph taken within thirty days; (b) written statement signed by at least two reputable citizens that the applicant is a fit and proper person and competent to operate a motor vehicle; (c) a fee of $5. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

4. Applicant must be over 18 years of age and must indorse his usual signature to license immediately upon its receipt. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

5. Renewal fee, Jan. 1 of each year, $3. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

6. Operation of motor vehicle by chauffeur under influence of liquor requires secretary of state to cancel license. Renewal may be made in not less than three months thereafter in discretion of secretary of state. (M. V. L., sec. 27.)

7. Chauffeur provided with badge to be worn in conspicuous place when driving. Loaning or borrowing badge prohibited. (M. V. L., sec. 28.)

8. No one may employ as chauffeur any one not licensed. (M. V. L., sec. 29.)

ILLINOIS STATE PARTY CONVENTIONS IN 1920.

REPUBLICAN.

The state convention of the republican party was held in Springfield, May 10. It was called to order by Frank L. Smith, chairman of the republican state central committee. Congressman William A. Rodenberg of East St. Louis served both as temporary and permanent chairman and George Barr of Joliet as temporary and permanent secretary. The delegates numbered 1,741. Addresses were made by Senators Lawrence Y. Sherman and Medill McCormick. Congressman Rodenberg and others, lauding the achievements of the republican party in general and of Gov. Frank O. Lowden in particular.

Ten delegates at large to the republican national convention in Chicago were chosen, each with four-fifths of a vote. They were: Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, Springfield; Senator Medill McCormick, Chicago; Representative Frank L. Smith, Dwight; Representative William A. Rodenberg, East St. Louis; Harold L. Ickes, Chicago; Fred W. Upham, Chicago; Louis L. Emmerson, Mount Vernon; William Hale Thompson, Chicago; Samuel A. Ettelson, Chicago. The alternates chosen were Orville F. Berry, David E. Shanahan, Henry I. Greene, W. B. McHenry, Eugene Pike, Walter H. Wood, Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, Mrs. Ernest Griffen, Otis B. Duncan and Irene P. Mantonya.

Before the convention opened it had been announced that Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago and the majority of the Cook county delegates were going to take control and force the adoption of the Cook county republican platform embodying the policy on which Mayor Thompson had acted during the world war and after, and for which he had been sharply criticized by patriotic citizens of Chicago and the country generally. This platform, among other planks, contained the following:

To get out of Europe at once by immediately passing a simple resolution of peace.

To stay out of Europe forever by opposing the ratification of the covenant of the league of nations, either with or without reservations.

To oppose militarism in any form, especially the adoption of compulsory military training.

To demand the prompt repeal of all laws, war time or otherwise, which in any way interfere with the rights of free speech, free assembly and a free press.

To exempt from taxation all incomes under $5,000, conscripting excess profits and also all inheritances over $1,000,000.

Gov. Lowden and his friends opposed the adoption of the Thompson platform on the ground that it virtually condemned the governor's war record and if presented to the national convention as the policy of Illinois republicans would cause antagonism to the Illinois candidate for the presidency. After seven hours' debate the Thompson platform was defeated by a vote of 1,110 to 631. The mayor secured only thirty-two out of the delegates from the state outside of Cook county, while the governor had forty-seven of the 646 Cook county delegates.

The committee on resolutions, by a vote of fourteen to eleven, had adopted a majority report embodying the Lowden view of what ought to be done. The governor wanted no platform of any kind and asked only that it elect the delegates at large and then adjourn. That is what occurred, the only other action taken being the adoption by a unanimous vote of the following resolution:

"The times demand a statesman. In a period of transition and change, social unrest and economic instability, of class appeals and governmental inefficiency and helplessness, wise leadership is demanded. The leader must be a man of clear vision, of sound judgment, of wide experience, of proved courage, of executive and administrative ability of a high order. He must be a stern and resolute American. He should come from the heart of the nation.

"Illinois offers such a man in Frank O. Lowden, its great war governor.

"Born west of the Mississippi, in Minnesota, reared to manhood on the prairies of Iowa, attaining success in Illinois, Gov. Lowden is perhaps the last product of pioneer days who will be offered for president of the United States. As a country and city school teacher he obtained a broad conception of ideal citizenship. In the practice of his profession he saw the value of courts and the necessity for upholding the law. As a farmer he comprehended the magnitude of the great agricultural areas of the country and the necessity for their development. In congress he learned how laws are made and obtained a broad idea of the country at large. As governor of Illinois he solved the problems that came before him as chief executive of this great state and placed it in the forefront.

"He has a deep insight into public questions, based upon a breadth of experience and a practical acquaintance with the personal and public problems of everyday life. Knowing men, knowing government and its problems, possessing a fine ideal of America, progressive, sane and reliable, Gov. Lowden, we believe, stands out to-day as the most available candidate for the presidency. He has wrought so well in Illinois that its citizens must emphatically recommend him for the nomination for president by the republican national convention in Chicago June 8. With this in view it is

"Resolved, That the republicans of Illinois, in the state convention, assembled in Springfield this Monday, May 10, do hereby indorse Gov. Frank O. Lowden for president of the United States and instruct the delegates to the republican national convention to use every honorable means to bring about his nomination and to vote for him until he is nominated or until they are released by him."

DEMOCRATIC.

The Illinois democratic state convention was held in Springfield May 10, 1920, with more than 800 delegates present. Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet was chairman. Charles Boeschenstein of Edwardsville was re-elected national committeeman and Congressman A. J. Sabath of Chicago was chosen to represent Illinois on the platform committee of the national convention. The following were elected delegates at large to the San Francisco convention: Robert M. Sweitzer, John F. O'Malley, Carter H. Harrison and Edward F. Dunne, all of Chicago; Frank Quinn of Peoria, Charles Boeschenstein of Edwardsville, Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton and Francis S. Peabody of Wheaton. The alternate delegates at large chosen were: Mrs. Howard T. Willson of Virden, Mrs. Anna L. Smith of Chicago, Mrs. W. B. Hart of Benton, Mrs. Nelson W. Backus of Freeport, L. G. Stevenson of Bloomington, Oscar F. Mayer, Carl R. Latham and C. F. Glennon, Chicago.

Electors at large from Illinois were chosen as follows: Charles C. Craig, Galesburg; W. E. Lancaster, Quincy; Richard H. Colby, Chicago, and John Bullington, Taylorville. The framing of the platform and the naming of candidates for university trustees and clerks of three Appellate courts were deferred until Sept. 21. Action on the wet and dry issue, the soldiers' bonus, the completion of the Illinois waterway and other questions was also deferred to Sept. 21.

Resolutions were passed commending the Wilson administration, favoring the immediate ratification of the treaty of Versailles, including the covenant of the league of nations, but with some interpretative reservations; pledging renewed support for woman suffrage and indorsing James Hamilton Lewis for the vice-presidency of the United States.

ZONING COMMISSION ORDINANCE.

Under the law passed by the Illinois legislature and approved June 28, 1919, empowering city councils to provide for residential, commercial and industrial zones the board of aldermen of Chicago passed an ordinance Feb. 18, 1920, creating a zoning commission and defining its powers and duties. The commission was to be composed of the commissioner of buildings, the president of the board of public improvements, the commissioner of health, the corporation counsel, the chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, the chairman of the committee on buildings and city hall of the city council, the chairman of the committee on local industries of the city council, six aldermen in addition to the chairmen of the committees mentioned to be named by the mayor and nine additional members holding no other office or employment in the city government to be appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council. The mayor was to appoint one of the members of the commission its chairman. The officers of the city who were made ex officio members of the commission were to serve without compensation.

The zoning commission was given the power to employ a competent zoning expert or experts and such employes as might be necessary to make all surveys, investigations, maps and compilations for the preparation of reports and an ordinance or ordinances in pursuance of the act of the Illinois assembly passed June 28, 1919, and in force July 1, 1919, entitled "An act to confer certain additional powers upon city councils in cities and presidents and boards of trustees in villages concerning buildings, the intensity of the use of lot areas, the classification of buildings, trades and industries with respect to location and regulation, the creation of residential, industrial, commercial and other districts, and the exclusion from and regulation within such districts of classes of buildings, trades and industries."

The commission was also authorized to hold public hearings upon the subject of the proposed districting; to publish from time to time such maps, books and other matter as will give the city council and the general public information as to progress in the work; to make and publish a tentative report to the city council covering the zoning of the entire city; to formulate and publish a final report with ordinance or ordinances and maps covering the entire city to the end that wide publicity may be given before the enactment of any ordinance creating such districts.

Finally the commission is empowered to prepare and submit with the final report to the city council an ordinance or ordinances to carry into effect the report, making classifications of districts for purposes of regulation, limitation and restriction of buildings and uses of the same, describing fully each kind of district and establishing within the city districts of one or more of the classes so specified, and defining the limits of each of such districts.

In addition to the foregoing the commission was given the duty of providing for a public hearing and speedy consideration of any zoning ordinance or ordinances presented by the city council, to hear and consider objections to any such formally proposed ordinance or ordinances, to report as promptly as possible and to perform such other functions in relation to the zoning question as were not reserved to the city council itself. In case any districting ordinance reported to the city council should be amended by that body it would have to be referred back to the commission to take such action as might be required by law.

[The commission provided for in the zoning ordinance had not been appointed by the mayor up to Dec. 1, 1920.]

ILLINOIS PRIMARY LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The Illinois primary election law, approved June 28, 1919, providing for the nomination of candidates by political parties was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme court June 16, 1920. The decision of the court was unanimous and was announced orally by Chief Justice Cartwright. In the second clause of the ninth section of the act it was provided that at the presidential primary held in 1920, and at such primary held every four years thereafter, there should be elected by the qualified electors of each political party, respectively, in each ward of incorporated cities and villages having 500,000 or more inhabitants, a ward committeeman for each political party: "Provided, that in counties having within their limits an incorporated city or village having 500,000 or more inhabitants the county central committee of each political party of such county at its regular meeting in the month of December, or at an adjourned meeting in the year 1919, and at such regular meeting every four years thereafter, shall divide the territory in such county lying outside such city or cities into not less than six and not more than nine districts of contiguous territory, to be known as county committeeman's districts and designated as such by number." In section 10 it was provided in part:

"In the organization and proceedings of the county convention, each precinct committeeman shall have one vote and one additional vote for each fifty votes or major fraction thereof of his party cast in the precinct for governor at the general election then next preceding, and each ward or district committeeman shall have one vote for each precinct in his ward or district and one additional vote for each fifty votes or major fraction thereof of his party cast in the county for governor at the general election then next preceding."

It was urged by those attacking the law, and the point was sustained by the state Supreme court, that these provisions violated the constitutional requirement of uniformity and equality of privileges of electors.

"Such arbitrary power," said the court, "conferred with no regulation concerning size, population and the number of voters and without any rule for the exercise of the power under that provision, affords much opportunity for inequality. Under it the county central committee may from whim, caprice, favoritism or other motive create a district of such inequality as to destroy the constitutional provision for the freedom and equality of elections, which requires that every qualified voter shall be practically equal in his right with that of every other. Section 10 gives the small ward unequal, unbalanced and controlling power, destroys the equality and freedom of elections and discriminates against electors similarly situated. Section 10 violates constitutional rights and therefore is void. The act cannot be operated without section 10, and consequently the whole act is void."

The case reached the Supreme court through an appeal taken on behalf of William Fox of Chicago by Attorney Thomas R. Marshall. Fox was arrested for alleged fraudulent voting at the primary of April 13, 1920, under the name of W. B. Booth. Mr. Marshall, entering the case, after the arrest of Fox, as his attorney, took a writ of error to the Supreme court, claiming that the primary act was unconstitutional on the ground cited above.

The effect of the decision, according to Attorney-General Edward J. Brundage, was to make illegal the county and state committees chosen at the April primary and in consequence make the acts of such committees illegal. On June 26 the attorney-general ruled that the precinct committeemen elected in 1918 would hold over until September, 1922. This ruling applied to areas outside of Chicago, precinct instead of ward committeemen being elected every two years.

On Oct. 23 the state Supreme court handed down a decision that the primary laws existing in Illinois prior to the act of 1919 were not repealed by the passage of the act of that year on the ground that an unconstitutional law does not repeal a former law or part of a law by implication. Justices Thompson, Farmer and Duncan dissented.

ILLINOIS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

In accordance with an act passed by the 51st general assembly and approved June 21, 1919, a convention to revise the state constitution of Illinois was held in 1920 at Springfield. At noon on Jan. 6 the 102 delegates chosen at the election of Nov. 4, 1919, met and after a brief opening address by Gov. Frank O. Lowden organized by electing unanimously Charles E. Woodward, republican, of Ottawa as president. Bert H. McCann, republican, clerk of the house for a number of years, was elected secretary by a vote of eighty-two to seventeen, his only opponent being Lieut.-Col. John J. Bullington of Taylorville, a democrat. A committee on rules and organization was then chosen and instructed to report at the next session of the convention, which was fixed for Jan. 14. The men on this committee were, in addition to President Woodward, Henry I. Green, Urbana; Charles H. Hamill, Chicago; William E. Trautman, East St. Louis; George C. Gale, Galesburg; David E. Shanahan, Chicago; Edward C. Curtis, Grant Park; William Wall, Mound City; Frank Quinn, Peoria, and P. A. Pearce, Carmi.

The committee reported on the date named and its recommendations were adopted. The rules defined the duties of the president and secretary and prescribed the form in which proposals were to be made by the delegates and the committees to which they were to be referred. They also fixed the regular order in which proposals were to be handled, this being, briefly, as follows:

Introduction; first reading; reference to committee; report of committee and placing on general orders; consideration in committee of the whole; report by committee of the whole to the convention and reference to the committee on style and phraseology; report of that committee; second reading; vote on passage by yeas and nays; re-reference to committee on style and phraseology and then to the committee of the whole; report by the committee of the whole and placing on the order of third reading; third reading and passage by a majority vote of all delegates elected.

COMMITTEES AND CHAIRMEN.

The rules, in addition to many other details of procedure, provided for the appointment by the president of a number of committees. These with their chairmen were as follows:

Agriculture—Henry M. Dunlap.
Bill of Rights—Thomas Rinaker.
Chicago and Cook County—Morton D. Hull.
Corporations and Co-Operative Associations—Edgar E. Fyke.
County and Township Government—Arthur M. Smith.
Distinction Between Constitutional and Legislative Subjects—Cyrus E. Dietz.
Education—Rodney H. Brandon.
Executive Department—William E. Trautman.
Expenditures and Supplies—Harry H. Stahl.
Future Amendment of the Constitution—Joseph W. Fifer.
Industrial Affairs and Labor—Wm. J. Sneed.
Initiative, Referendum and Recall—F. R. Dove.
Judicial Department—Frederic R. DeYoung.
Legislative Department—Edward C. Curtis.
Military Affairs—William H. Beckman.
Miscellaneous Subjects—Martin J. O'Brien.
Municipal Government—Bruce H. Garrett.
Phraseology and Style—Charles H. Hamill.
Public Works and Improvements—Cicero J. Lindly.
Qualifications and Election of Delegates—Oscar Wolff.
Revenue, Taxation and Finance—Geo. C. Gale.
Rules and Procedure—Charles E. Woodward.
Schedule—George A. Dupuy.
Suffrage—William H. Cruden.

Many sessions of the convention were held in the spring and summer, but no proposal had reached the final stage at the time this issue of The Daily News Almanac and Year-Book went to press. Up to the end of June sixteen proposals had been reported from the committee of the whole. Then an adjournment was taken and the convention did not reassemble until in November.

GOVERNMENT OF ILLINOIS.

Legislative power is vested in a general assembly, consisting of a senate and house of representatives, both elected by the people. The state is divided into fifty-one senatorial districts, each of which elects a senator and three representatives. The general assembly makes laws and appropriates money for the government of the state and in general stands in the same relation to the state as congress does to all the states as a whole. The powers and duties of the chief executive officers are as follows:

Governor—The governor is vested with the chief executive power of the state. He is the commander in chief of the military and naval forces and may call out the militia to maintain the peace. He is required to inform the general assembly, by message, of the condition of affairs of the state and to recommend needed legislation. He may, by proclamation, call a special session of the assembly or adjourn it in case of disagreement between the two houses. He has the power to appoint certain officers and during a recess of the senate may fill vacancies or remove certain officers and may call special elections to fill vacancies in certain offices. He may make requisitions upon the governors of other states for the return of fugitives from justice or offer rewards for the arrest of offenders against the laws of the state. He exercises a general supervision over the penitentiaries and may grant reprieves, commutations and pardons and may restore the rights of citizenship to ex-convicts. He may approve acts of the legislature and exercise the veto power.

Lieutenant-Governor—This officer is ex officio president of the senate and has the power to cast the deciding vote in case of a tie. In case of the death, conviction on impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, absence from the state or other disability on the part of the governor, the lieutenant-governor succeeds to the office to the close of the term.

Secretary of State—The secretary of state is charged with the safekeeping of the original laws and resolutions of the general assembly, with all books, bills and documents deposited with him by either house, and with all bonds, records and papers filed in his office. He keeps a record of the official acts of the governor; furnishes certified copies of the same to the assembly on request and certified copies of any of the records of his office on the payment of the statutory fees. He countersigns and affixes the seal of the state to all proclamations and commissions issued by the governor; issues licenses for incorporations and certificates of organization to cities and villages and incorporated towns. He has charge of most of the buildings and grounds belonging to the state in Springfield, furnishes supplies for the general assembly and supervises the printing and distribution of all the public documents of the state. He calls the house of representatives to order at the beginning of each general assembly and presides over the same until the election of a speaker. He is the keeper of the great seal of the state and is the custodian and sealer of weights and measures.

Auditor—The auditor is required to keep all the accounts of the state; to audit the accounts of all officers or other persons authorized to receive moneys from the state treasury; to personally sign all warrants drawn on the treasury; to institute suits wherein the state is a plaintiff, and to make a biennial report of the business of his office to the governor. With the governor and treasurer he determines the state tax rate. He exercises a general supervision over state banks, building, loan and homestead associations.

State Treasurer—The state treasurer is custodian of the revenues and public moneys of the state. He must make monthly settlements with the auditor and a biennial report to the governor.

Superintendent of Public Instruction.—The superintendent exercises a general supervision over all the public schools of the state. He is the general and legal adviser of the county superintendents and must report biennially to the governor the general condition of all the schools of the state, the amount raised by taxation for school purposes and the manner of its expenditure and the general condition of all the school funds. He may grant state certificates to teachers or cause them to be withheld and must visit charitable institutions which are educational in character.

Attorney-General—It is the duty of the attorney-general to represent the state in the Supreme court in all cases in which the state is interested; to act as counsel for all state officials; to be the legal adviser of the governor and other state officers in matters relating to their official duties, and, on request, to furnish them, as well as either branch of the general assembly, with written opinions upon constitutional or legal questions.

Meetings.

Regular meetings of the city council are held every Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, unless otherwise ordered at a regular meeting. Special meetings may be held at any time, on call of the mayor or any three or more aldermen; such call shall be in writing, duly signed, and shall be presented to the clerk, who shall proceed immediately to prepare notices of the same and shall cause them to be served on members of the council at least twenty-four hours prior to the day and hour set for the special meeting except for special meetings called on account of death of a member of the council or in an extreme emergency; such notices shall describe, in brief, the nature or objects of the call.

Organization of the Council.

For the purpose of facilitating the adoption of rules for the succeeding council, and to effect and recommend a nonpartisan organization thereof, the following shall be the procedure: On the second Tuesday in March of each year the members of the council shall convene as a committee of the whole for the selection of a committee on committees and rules. The committee on committees and rules shall consist of five members, one to be chosen from each of the districts following, by a majority of the aldermen therein present and voting:

District 1 .....Wards 1 to 7, inclusive
District 2 .....Wards 8 to 14, inclusive
District 3 .....Wards 15 to 21, inclusive
District 4 .....Wards 22 to 28, inclusive
District 5 .....Wards 29 to 35, inclusive

The members shall vote by roll call of their respective districts.

In the event that in any district no candidate shall receive a majority after five roll call ballots have been taken, then the selection for such district shall be made by all the members of the council present and voting, and the candidate receiving the highest number of votes shall be chosen to represent such district.

The committee on committees and rules shall prepare the rules and plan of organization, select the chairmen and members of the various committees, and report at the first regular meeting of the succeeding city council.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE.

City hall, first floor, south end.

City Clerk—James T. Igoe, D.
Chief Clerk to City Clerk—Edward J. Padden, D.
Duties—The city clerk keeps the corporate seal of the city and all city council documents. He attends the meetings of the council and keeps the journal of its proceedings. Most of the city licenses are issued through his office. He is secretary of the board of trustees of the firemen's pension fund. The city clerk also issues hunters' licenses.

Duties—The city treasurer is an elective, charter officer of the city of Chicago; he is also school treasurer of the city of Chicago; treasurer of the firemen's pension fund, public school teachers' pension and retirement fund, public school employes' pension fund, public library employes' pension fund, municipal pension fund of Chicago, and house of correction employes' pension fund. The treasurer receives all moneys belonging to the corporation, deposits the funds in bank, keeps separate accounts of each fund or appropriation. He is the custodian of the taxes, license fees and all other moneys and securities belonging to the various funds of which he is the treasurer. All disbursements of funds are made by the treasurer on warrants signed by officials who are designated by statute.
The legislature, by statutory enactments, requires the city treasurer to render reports at stated periods showing the condition of the treasury of the city and the balance of money in the treasury, and to make such additional reports as the city council from time to time shall require. For this reason and for the further purpose of supervising and limiting expenditures to the amounts appropriated by the city council for each object and purpose, the treasurer is by statute required to keep the accounts of all funds or appropriations and of the debits and credits pertaining thereto. The city's books and accounts must be kept open by the treasurer for inspection by the committee on finance and all members of the city council whenever information concerning the city's financial affairs is required.
As school treasurer he is required by the state school law to keep books and accounts concerning the financial affairs of the board of education, including a record of the revenues collected from taxation or received from the state common school fund, etc., and to make reports at stated periods concerning the state of the school treasury and the balance of money in that treasury at the time such reports are made. His books and accounts concerning school matters must be kept open for inspection by the members of the board of education whenever information concerning the financial affairs of the board of education is required. His bond at the present time is fixed at $2,000,000.

FOREST PRESERVE PROPERTY.

The forest preserve district of Cook county on Sept. 1, 1920, held title to more than 16,000 acres in the district. Some details as to the various preserves follow:

Deer Grove Preserve—1,150 acres of hilly wooded land; 850 acres set aside and fenced for deer; twenty-five acres of artificial lake, which has developed into a home for water fowl.

Elk Grove Preserve—1,600 acres of virgin timber land; has lily ponds and bird refuges.

Des Plaines River Valley Preserve—667 acres (Wheeling tract); old grove portage of Indian days and scene of reception given Father Marquette, French explorer, who surprised the Pottawatomie Indians here—the white man's first visit to Cook county, 1673; Northwestern park tract, extending from the town of Des Plaines to Higgins road, containing tracts of natural forests and sites of half a dozen Indian villages.

North Branch Chicago River Valley Preserve—Includes Indian reservation, Forest Glen, Turnbull, Badek and Glen View tracts; Indian reservation contains all the forest land awarded to Billy Caldwell, the old Indian chief; Turnbull tract contains old Turnbull homestead, established by one of Cook county's pioneers in Indian days; Badek tract, another favorite Indian haunt.

Thatcher Park Preserve—Contains also Steele tract; preserve consists of hundreds of acres of oak and maple forest.

Salt Creek Valley Preserve—On both banks of Salt creek from the Des Plaines river to the west county line; picturesque river valley with splendid timber land.

Beverly Hills Preserve—Promontory of rock on the south side long used as picnic grounds.

Palos Hills Preserve—Contains more than 7,000 acres of hilly forest land extending along the drainage canal and back into the Sag district.

Chicago Heights Preserve—Forest tract with small bodies of water and streams; located at junction of Lincoln and Dixie highways.

Thornton and Glenwood Preserves—Adjoining tracts; fine forest land; said to have been site of a battle between Americans and British in the revolutionary war.

There are also preserves in Hegewisch, South Chicago, Chicago Heights and Edgebrook.

Some of the tracts have been improved with paths, roads, wells, fountains, shelter houses, parking spaces and comfort stations, also dams and artificial lakes.

On account of the growing popularity of golf, the board expects to open for the public in 1921 an eighteen-hole course at Palos Hills and another at 39th street and Harlem avenue. A nine-hole course at Edgebrook now is in use.

During the months of May, June, July, August and September, 1919, approximately 1,200 permits were issued for picnic and camping purposes. The records show the following attendance:

May	134,255
June	243,490
July	393,300
August	359,150
September	261,525
October	90,000
November	42,920
Total	1,524,640

CHICAGO ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.

In December, 1919, Mrs. Harold F. McCormick presented to Cook county a tract of 300 acres of land, valued at about $300,000 and lying on the west bank of the Des Plaines river near Riverside, as a site for a large zoological garden. The plan committee of the Cook county forest preserve met on Dec. 31 and voted unanimously to accept the gift, and it was agreed that the zoo, in honor of the donor, should be named the "McCormick Zoological Gardens." However, Mrs. McCormick in her deed of gift stipulated that the name should be "The Chicago Zoological Gardens," and that is the official title. The committee representing the board consists of Commissioner Frank J. Wilson (chairman), George A. Miller and William H. Maclean. Joseph Dillabaugh is secretary of the committee.

CHICAGO BRIDGE SYSTEM.

The first ferry across the river was established in 1829, where the Lake street bridge now is. In 1833 a floating bridge of logs was in operation just north of the present Randolph street bridge. A foot bridge over the north branch was built in 1832 at Kinzie street. The first drawbridge over the main branch of the river was placed at Dearborn street in 1834. In 1854 a pivot bridge was built at Clark street. These and other bridges of that time were built by the persons most directly benefited by them. It was not until 1857 that a bridge was built entirely at the city's expense. This was the structure over the south branch at Madison street. It cost $30,000. Until 1872 the swing bridges were turned by hand, but in the year named steam power was installed on the Dearborn street structure and later most of the other bridges in the downtown section were similarly equipped. In 1895 the Rush, Lake and Van Buren street bridges were operated by electric motors. The last named structure, which was opened for traffic in that year, was the first of the Scherzer rolling type. The Halsted street lift bridge, the first and only one of its kind, was opened in 1894 and was operated by steam. It cost the city $242,880.

In 1920 Chicago had forty-five bridges with movable spans and thirty with fixed spans. There were also thirty-nine viaducts and eight foot bridges. Most of the movable bridges are operated by electricity. The bridges and viaducts had a value of more than $7,000,000.

The Franklin-Orleans bridge was opened to traffic Oct. 23, 1920. With its approaches it cost nearly $2,000,000.

NEW UNION RAILWAY STATION.

Ordinances for a new union passenger station and new freight terminals on the west side were passed by the city council March 23, 1914, after many months of investigation and consideration. Under the ordinances the union passenger station, to be occupied by the Pennsylvania, Burlington, Alton and St. Paul railroads, is to be located on the block bounded by Canal, Adams, Clinton and Jackson streets. Under Canal street there will be a subway connecting a large concourse on the east of that thoroughfare with the station. Sixteen passenger tracks will lead to the south and ten to the north. This part of the passenger terminal will reach practically from Carroll avenue on the north to Roosevelt road on the south. The Pennsylvania freighthouses will be located immediately north of Roosevelt road and extend to Taylor street, while the Burlington freighthouses will be between Harrison and Taylor streets and near Canal street. In exchange for rights in certain streets the railroads agreed to make improvements as follows:

Improvements.	Cost.
Viaduct, Monroe street	$100,000
Viaduct, Roosevelt road	270,000
Viaduct, Congress street	300,000
Viaducts, 14th and 16th streets	400,000
Viaducts, Taylor, Polk, Harrison, Van Buren, Jackson, Adams, Madison, Randolph and Lake streets	1,760,000
Elevated Roadway, Canal and Kinzie streets	650,000
Revamping of Canal street, Washington street to Roosevelt road	2,375,000
Total	5,855,000

To fit in with these improvements the city agreed to the following improvements at the costs estimated:

Bridge, Monroe street	$500,000
Double decked bridge, Kinzie street	600,000
Land to widen Canal street to 100 feet	760,753
Total	$1,860,753

In addition, the roads agreed to pay $1,511,000 in cash compensation.

The total cost to the railroads of the improvements under the terminal ordinances was estimated at $65,000,000, exclusive of money previously paid for land.

Feb. 19, 1915, the city council passed an ordinance providing for the vacation of certain streets and alleys in connection with the Baltimore & Ohio freight terminal ordinance, making it possible for that road to vacate part of its old yards, which are needed for the new union terminal. The city, in payment for the streets and alleys surrendered to the railroad company, received $111,304.77.

Work on the union terminal was begun Feb. 22, 1915. It is progressing slowly, having been delayed by the war and the subsequent high cost of labor and materials.

HOUSE NUMBER SYSTEM IN CHICAGO.

The present house number system in Chicago was established by an ordinance passed June 22, 1908, and effective Sept. 1, 1909. This applied to all streets except those between the river, 12th street and the lake. Sept. 20, 1910, the city council passed an amendment to the ordinance making it applicable to the entire city. The change in business district went into effect April 1, 1911. The system is laid out on two base lines, State street dividing the east and west streets and Madison street the north and south streets. Numbers are assigned on the basis of 800 to the mile or 100 to the prevailing block of 660 feet or one-eighth of a mile.

MUSIC IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

Founded by Theodore Thomas.

The Theodore Thomas orchestra was organized in Chicago in 1890-1891 by a number of men interested in promoting the highest class of instrumental music. The Orchestral association was incorporated Dec. 16, 1890, and Theodore Thomas, famous for many years as a conductor, was engaged to lead the new organization, which was then named the Chicago orchestra. The preparations were completed in 1891 and the first public rehearsal was given at the Auditorium Friday afternoon, Oct 16, of that year. Financially the result of the first season was discouraging, the fifty or more gentlemen guaranteeing the expenses being compelled to meet a deficit of about $53,000. Receipts, however, continued to increase from year to year until the orchestra was finally placed on a permanent basis. This was accomplished when Orchestra hall, erected by subscriptions from more than 8,000 persons, was completed at 220 South Michigan avenue, and the organization was provided with a home of its own. The first concert there was given Wednesday evening, Dec. 14, 1904. Theodore Thomas died Jan. 4, 1905, and the orchestra, which until then had been called the Chicago orchestra, was named the Theodore Thomas orchestra. Feb. 24, 1913, the title was changed to the Chicago Symphony orchestra (founded by Theodore Thomas). Frederick Stock, after the death of Mr. Thomas, was made conductor, a position he held until Oct. 2, 1918, when he withdrew until he could acquire citizenship in the United States. His place was taken by Eric De Lamarter. Mr. Stock resumed the position of conductor in May, 1919. The plan of giving two performances a week—a public rehearsal on Friday afternoon and a concert on Saturday evening—has been followed from the beginning. The season consists of twenty-eight weeks, beginning in October and ending in April.

The first officers of the Orchestral association were: N. K. Fairbank, president; C. Norman Fay, vice-president; P. A. McEwan, treasurer and secretary; Milward Adams, manager.

The valuation since 1875 is the equalized valuation fixed by the state board of equalization. From 1867 to 1875 the valuation was made by the city for the city tax. From 1898 to 1908, inclusive, the assessed value was one-fifth of the actual value. In 1909 the rate was fixed at one-third and in 1919 at one-half. The total valuation includes capital stock and railroads.

ASSESSMENT OF TAXABLE PROPERTY IN COOK COUNTY.

The above figures are one-fifth of the actual valuation down to and including 1908. The rate was changed to one-third in 1909 and to one-half in 1919.

LEGAL MOVING RATES IN CHICAGO.

The legal moving rates in Chicago as fixed by city ordinance are as follows:

HORSE DRAWN VEHICLES.

1. For trunks, baggage, goods, wares and merchandise (other than household furniture and pianos): For each article not exceeding 350 pounds, for the first two miles or fractional part thereof, 50 cents; for each additional mile, 25 cents.

2. For household furniture (other than pianos): For the use of a one-horse vehicle, including driver, $1.25 per hour; for the use of two or three horse vehicle, including driver, $1.50 an hour; for each additional man, 50 cents an hour.

3. For pianos: Where distance to be traveled is three miles or less, $3; for each additional mile or part thereof, 50 cents; for each flight of stairs, up or down, 50 cents; for use of hoist, $5.

AUTOMOBILE TRUCKS.

The rates to be charged for the use of any automobile, auto car or other similar vehicle used as a public cart for the transportation of goods, wares and merchandise shall not exceed $3.50 an hour, which shall include the time of loading and unloading and shall include the services of the operator thereof; for the services of each additional man, 50 cents an hour; no charge to be made while truck is disabled.

RECORDS AND REPORTS OF REMOVALS.

Under an ordinance passed by the Chicago city council Feb. 18, 1920, every person or company owning or operating any moving van or other vehicle used in moving or hauling for hire in Chicago shall keep a record of the place from which and the place to which the household goods or personal property of any person or persons changing residence or business place are taken. The record shall show the name and address of the mover, the name of the person for whom the moving was done, the address from which or to which in or outside the city such moving was done, the date of such removal and the character of the goods moved. Such records are to be filed in the office of the bureau of statistics and the municipal reference library of Chicago and the head of such bureau shall furnish to any person inquiring therefor information as to any particular change or removal; for this information a charge of 50 cents is made. The office of the municipal reference librarian is in the city hall.

ELEVATION OF CHICAGO AND LAKE MICHIGAN.

Mean sea level or mean tide at New York is the standard plane to which all elevations in the United States are referred, and the figures here given are heights above that plane. They are from the official records of the United States lake survey which have been maintained since 1860. The monthly mean surface of Lake Michigan has varied from 583.57 in June, 1886, to 578.98 in December, 1895. The annual mean surface has varied from 582.96 in 1886 to 579.47 in 1896.

The actual fluctuations in water surface from which these means are obtained have a much larger range and the immediate change in a few hours is often as great as two feet. The mean level of Lake Michigan from 1860 to 1914 (the average of all monthly means) was 581.20, and for the period from 1860 to 1875 it was 581.63, indicating that the mean level remains about the same, although the daily, monthly and annual fluctuations may be quite large. The highest known monthly mean was in 1838—584.7—and the lowest was in 1819—578.0—these being somewhat indeterminate. The United States lake survey has adopted as a standard low water for reference of soundings on its charts 578.5, a little higher than the lowest ever known as a monthly mean.

The Chicago city datum is 579.94 and this plane is used in most local works, including the harbor improvements made by the United States. This is about one foot above the lowest monthly mean of recent years and 1.26 feet below the mean level 1860-1914.

For general purposes the level of Lake Michigan should be taken as being somewhere between 581 and 582 feet. The heights of land in Chicago vary from 590 to 652 (Galewood) but the average may be placed at about 600 feet. The downtown section runs from 586 to 593 feet.

CHICAGO PARKS AND BOULEVARDS.

LINCOLN PARK SYSTEM.

Commissioners (appointed by governor with consent of senate)—Sheldon Clark, John H. Hardin, Andrew Lanquist, Albert W. Goodrich, Bertram M. Winston, Samuel M. Felton, William Wrigley, Jr.

Officers—President, John H. Hardin; vice-president, Sheldon Clark; auditor, Andrew Lanquist; secretary and superintendent, John C. Cannon; advisory counsel, Emil C. Wetten; treasurer, Frederick H. Rawson.

Office—In Lincoln park near Clark and Center streets.

The Lincoln park district consists of the towns of North Chicago and Lake View, with Fullerton avenue as the dividing line, and is bounded on the north by Devon avenue, on the south by the Chicago river, and extends from Lake Michigan on the east to the north branch of the river and North Western avenue on the west.

The area of the Lincoln park district is 12.64 square miles. The total area of the parks and boulevards is 642.63 acres, with 11.755 miles of boulevards.

Lincoln Park—Lincoln park, previously known as Lake park, began its history under its present name by resolution passed by the common council of Chicago under date of June 5, 1865. The park proper is 317 acres in extent and extends from Diversey boulevard to Oak street along the lake front. To this 200.59 acres of land has been added by filling in Lake Michigan north of Diversey boulevard. This extension contains a 57 acre yacht harbor. The park contains a large floral department, also an extensive zoological garden containing about 1,800 animals. Boating and bathing facilities are furnished and the park lagoon—one mile in length—gives an admirable course for racing. The Academy of Sciences is located in the park at the foot of Center street. This building was erected in 1893 and contains about 250,000 specimens. It is noted for its collection of local natural history specimens and for its complete collection of mollusks. The park has provided facilities for outdoor games during both the winter and summer seasons.

Stanton Park—At Vedder, Vine and Rees streets; area 4.78 acres; equipped with fieldhouse and outdoor gym facilities.

Lake Shore Playground—Area 9.16 acres; is situated between Pearson street and Chicago avenue, extending from the Chicago avenue pumping works to the lake. This park is fitted up as a playground, containing a shelter house, and with outdoor and indoor gymnasium apparatus.

Seward Park—Contains 1.78 acres; is fitted with outdoor and indoor gymnasium and has a fieldhouse which contains reading rooms, assembly hall, clubrooms, a branch of the public library and facilities for gymnastic work and aquatic sports.

Hamlin Park—Wellington avenue and Robey street; area 8.64 acres; is fully equipped with fieldhouse and out-of-door gymnasium facilities.

Welles Park—Western avenue and Montrose boulevard; fieldhouse and out-of-door gymnasium facilities; area 8.17 acres.

Gowdy Square—Goethe street on the north and Astor street on the west; area .46 acre.

SMALL PARKS, PLAYGROUNDS AND BATHING BEACHES.

Bureau of Parks, Public Playgrounds and Bathing Beaches.

Secretary—Walter Wright.
Superintendent of Playgrounds—T. A. Gross.
Director in charge of beaches and pools—T. R. Daly.
Director in charge of activities—H. J. Fisher.
Director in charge of maintenance—F. K. Kaiser.
Chief Clerk—P. J. Lynn.
Office of the bureau—1004 city hall.

The bureau of parks, public playgrounds and bathing beaches is a bureau of the department of public works. It maintains and has jurisdiction over seventy municipal playgrounds, five bathing beaches, four natatoriums, sixty-five small parks, city forestry or street trees and Gage farm nursery.

The playgrounds are open all year around from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night and each is in charge of a director and attendant, and during the spring, summer and fall a young woman assistant director or physical instructor.

The bathing beaches under the jurisdiction of the bureau are the Clarendon beach, the largest municipal bathing beach in the world; the 51st street bathing beach, 76th street bathing beach, Rocky Ledge beach at the foot of 79th street and the Rogers Park beach at the foot of Kenilworth avenue.

The city has obtained possession of the shore property extending from 75th street to 79th street, and it is intended to establish a large beach and park at this location.

Three of the four natatoriums are open the year around and no charge is made for their use. They are very popular in their respective neighborhoods, as is shown by the large attendance. Instruction is given in swimming during the winter months.

The small parks vary in size from a beauty spot of one-tenth of an acre to a forty acre park and are used to give every possible means of recreation to the people. Play apparatus, tennis courts, wading pools, etc., are established wherever possible.

City forestry is also under the jurisdiction of the bureau of parks and the work of trimming trees goes on throughout the year. An emergency truck is used to remove the dead and dangerous trees in the parkways throughout the city so as to prevent accidents to pedestrians.

Following is a list of the small parks, playgrounds, bathing beaches and natatoriums under the jurisdiction of the bureau of parks, public playgrounds and bathing beaches, with the area of the parks in acres and size of the playgrounds:

FIELD MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY.

President—Stanley Field.
Vice-Presidents—Martin A. Ryerson, Watson F. Blair.
Director of the Museum and Secretary—Frederick J. V. Skiff.
Treasurer—Solomon A. Smith.
Assistant Secretary and Recorder—D. C. Davies.

The Field Museum of Natural History, established in 1894 at the close of the World's Columbian exposition of 1893, is located in Grant park, near the lake, south of Roosevelt road extended. The building includes three full stories, a basement and clerestory. It is treated with a monumental order of Greek Ionic architecture, the principal fronts and is about eighty feet in height. The material for the exterior is Georgia white marble and the frame of the structure is steel, being divided into a large pedimented central pavilion and two long wings terminated by a smaller pavilion at each end. This order rests upon a stylobate, or basement story, and is crowned by an attic pierced with windows.

One of the principal features of the building is the terrace (incompleted) extending around the structure. This terrace is forty feet wide and rises six feet above the surrounding territory. It has a retaining wall, steps and balustrades of the same marble as the building proper. The entrances are provided with an ample flight of steps leading up to the central doorways.

The interior of the building is 750 feet by 350 feet in dimensions, but with its exterior outer lines, including entrances and the incompleted terrace, the structure covers about eleven acres of ground.

The great Stanley Field hall, seventy feet wide, 300 feet in length, and extending to the roof, a distance of seventy-five feet, with a grand stairway opposite the main entrance, divides the building east and west. From this hall, east and west, extend at right angles exhibition halls forty feet in width and 200 feet in length, these exhibition halls being again connected by transverse exhibition halls 45 feet in width and 320 feet in length, parallel to and adjoining the central hall and also at the east and west end of the building. On the two main floors there are thirty of these exhibition halls.

The basement, fourteen feet high, will be devoted to the division of taxidermy, to the installation of the Egyptian tomb and the exhibition of primitive land and water transportation. It will also be used for the workshops of the mechanical force and for storage purposes. The first and second floors contain the exhibition halls, the administrative offices, the library and reading room. The third floor is occupied by the curators and their assistants with large, convenient spaces set aside for study collections and the herbarium. On this floor are also the departmental libraries, offices, well equipped laboratories, classrooms, illustration studios, photograph gallery, etc. The clerestory is intended for scientific and technical work of a more particular character, where light must be controlled and clear atmosphere preserved. It is at present occupied in part by the printing shop.

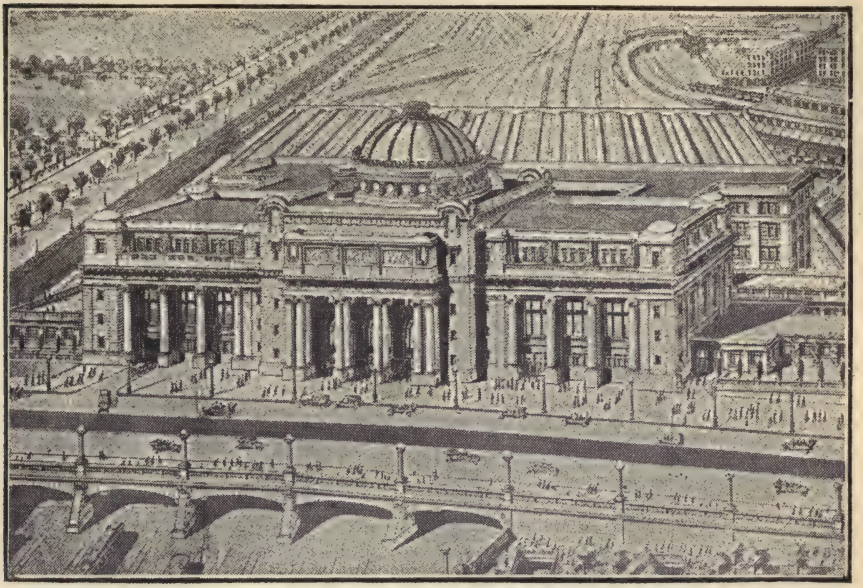
The museum is provided with a theater, accommodating 1,000 people, the main entrance to which is on the west side of the building. This theater is known as "James Simpson theater." There are four classrooms or small lecture halls on the third floor, each of which will accommodate eighty persons.

The building has been planned and designed to accomplish three purposes: First, the most perfect exhibition halls that could be arranged for the display of scientific collections; second, the adequate housing and equipment of the scientific working parts which belong with such collections; third, the construction of a building which would measure up to the highest standard of architecture and add to the monumental appearance of the city.

The nucleus of the exhibition material was gathered by gift and purchase at the World's Columbian exposition. Most of this material, however, has since been rearranged, readapted or discarded. Several departments created at the organization have been abandoned, until after a lapse of twenty-five years and the expenditure of approximately $7,000,000 the museum is now divided into five departments —namely, anthropology, botany, geology, zoology and the N. W. Harris public school extension. Many expeditions for the purpose of obtaining study, exhibition and exchange material and data have been dispatched all over the world. The results of these expeditions, investigations and researches have been published by the museum from time to time, which publications have been distributed to kindred societies and institutions both at home and abroad. An important contribution of $250,000 by Norman W. Harris was announced in December, 1911, for the extension of the work of the museum into the public schools of Chicago. The plans for carrying out Mr. Harris' wishes were placed in operation in the spring of 1913. The museum has a working library of about 70,000 titles, an extensive exchange system, fully equipped departmental laboratories, a herbarium of more than 700,000 sheets, study collections in mammals and birds reaching many thousand specimens, a large taxidermy section, a well equipped printing shop, illustration studios and assaying and lapidary rooms. In North American ethnology, in the world's mineralogy, in economic botany, the museum is particularly prominent, while its series of mounted mammals furnishes examples of advanced museum methods. The building will be open to the public after, approximately, June 1, 1921, on all days except Christmas and Thanksgiving. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged except on Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays, when admission is free to all. Teachers, scholars and students will be admitted free.

The museum is incorporated under state law and the administrative control rests in a board of trustees with president, secretary, etc. The executive of the museum is the director, under whom there are five head curators with divisional assistant curators, preparators, etc. The entire museum records, the accessions system, the historical files, publications and supplies are in charge of a recorder.

LAKE FRONT IMPROVEMENT PLAN.



NEW ILLINOIS CENTRAL STATION TO BE BUILT ON EAST ROOSEVELT ROAD.

On July 21, 1919, the city council of Chicago passed an ordinance prepared by the Chicago Plan commission providing for the establishment of harbor district No. 3, the construction by the Illinois Central Railroad company of a new passenger station, the electrification of certain lines of the Illinois Central and Michigan Central companies within the city and the development of the lake front. It was estimated that the Illinois Central would spend $110,000,000 for electrification and the construction of the new passenger station. The ordinance was signed by the mayor on July 31.

The new harbor is to be built between 16th and 31st streets extended into Lake Michigan. Provision is made for the reclamation of submerged lands lying east of the railroad tracks for park and driveway purposes. Work on the new station is to be begun within six months after the ordinance becomes effective. The preliminary work of preparing for electrification must be started within sixty days after the ordinance becomes effective and be completed within two years. The entire suburban service is to be electrified within five years from the expiration of the two years mentioned, the freight service north of East Roosevelt road within two years after the suburban lines are electrified, the entire freight service south of East Roosevelt road to the city limits within five years after the freight lines north of East Roosevelt road are electrified, and the entire through passenger service within five years after the freight lines south of East Roosevelt road are electrified.

An outline of the benefits made possible for Chicago by the passage of the ordinance includes these:

1. Erection of largest passenger terminal in world.
2. Construction of stadium seating 100,000.
3. Building of aquarium, rivaling New York's.
4. Electrification of 405 miles of I. C. tracks.
5. Harbor development with eight miles of docks.
6. Reclaiming of 1,500 acres of lake for parks.
7. Water course five miles long and 600 feet wide.
8. Depression of I. C. tracks nine to fourteen feet.
9. Construction of five viaducts north of Roosevelt road and seven south.
10. Freight facilities costing over $18,000,000.
11. Four bathing beaches accommodating 120,000 persons.

The passenger terminal will have fifty-two tracks, ten more than the largest now in existence. The station proper will conform in design to the Field museum in marble a block away.

The stadium will be in the city's front yard, Grant park, with tunnels under and viaducts over the tracks that easy access may be gained.

CHICAGO IMPROVEMENTS IN 1920.

[By Edward J. Glackin, secretary of the board of local improvements.]

In 1920 the board of local improvements made the following progress in improvements which are projects of the Chicago Plan commission:

1. On May 14, 1920, the Michigan avenue bridge was formally opened and dedicated. The entire Michigan avenue improvement will be completed some time in 1921.
2. Opening and extending Ogden avenue from Union park to Lincoln park. The assessment roll was filed in court and the case placed on trial. It is hoped to have the assessment confirmed in 1921.

3. Widening North and South Western avenue from Howard street to 119th street. The assessment was confirmed for the portion between 69th and 119th streets and the city will take possession in 1921. As Western avenue between 31st and 69th streets is already wide enough, as soon as the board takes possession between 69th and 119th streets there will be the entire distance of Western avenue between 31st and 119th streets that will be the proper width. The assessment roll will be filed about May 1, 1921, for the widening of that part of Western avenue from 31st street to Lawrence avenue.

The assessment roll has already been filed for widening Western avenue from Lawrence avenue to Howard avenue, and the board expects to have the assessment confirmed early in 1921.

4. Widening Randolph street from Sangamon street to Ogden avenue. The assessment roll is filed in court, and it is expected that same will be confirmed early in 1921.

5. Widening Polk street from Halsted street to Canal street. The ordinance for the improvement passed the council and commissioners were appointed, who began work on the spread of the assessment.

6. Widening North and South Ashland avenue from Rogers avenue to Beverly avenue. Public hearings were held on the entire improvement. In the proceeding for widening Ashland avenue from Beverly avenue to 69th street the commissioners were appointed and began work on the assessment roll, which it is expected will be ready to file early in 1921. In the proceedings for widening Ashland avenue from 31st to 69th street the ordinance was prepared and sent to the council for passage.

7. Widening East and West South Water street and River street from Lake street to Michigan avenue, and opening a street between Dearborn, Clark, Lake and East South Water streets. Public hearings were held on the improvement and ordinance was passed by the council.

8. Widening Robey street from Montrose avenue to 95th street. Public hearings were held on this proposed improvement in November.

9. Opening and widening Peterson avenue from Caldwell avenue to Ridge avenue and Ridge avenue from Peterson avenue to Clark street. The ordinance for the improvement was passed by the council and the commissioners were appointed. The assessment roll will be filed in 1921.

10. Opening and widening Fullerton avenue from Oak Park avenue to Laramie. The ordinance for this improvement was passed by the council and the commissioners were appointed. The assessment roll will be filed in 1921.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

The postal savings bank was opened at the main postoffice, Chicago, Aug. 1, 1911. Any one 10 years old or over may open an account. No account may be opened for less than $1, nor will fractions of a dollar be accepted for deposit. Depositors are now allowed to deposit a total of $2,500, any part or all of which may be deposited in any month.

Deposits are evidenced by postal savings certificates issued in denominations of $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $200 and $500.

Depositors of the postal savings system by applying therefor thirty days in advance may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits on Jan. 1 or July 1 of each year for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100 and $500, bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, payable semiannually and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year from the date of issue, both principal and interest payable twenty years from that date in United States gold coin.

Postal savings banks have also been established at the following postal stations: Armour, Auburn Park, Austin, C, Canal, Chicago Avenue, Chicago Lawn, Cragin, D, Dauphin Park, Douglas Park, Eastside, Edgewater, Elsdon, Englewood, 51st Street, Garfield Park, Grand Crossing, Hawthorne, Hegewisch, Humboldt Park, Hyde Park, Irving Park, Jackson Park, Jefferson, Lake View, Lincoln Park, Logan Square, McKinley Park, Morgan Park, North Halsted, Norwood Park, Ogden Park, Pilsen, Pullman, Ravenswood, Riverdale, Rogers Park, Sheridan Park, South Chicago, Stockyards, 20th Street, Washington Heights, West Pullman, Wicker Park, North Clark Street, Kenwood, Roosevelt Road, Armitage Avenue, Albany Avenue, Wabash Avenue, Windsor Park and at stations No. 10 (Hull House) and No. 195 (Boston Store).

The Chicago office ranks third in the United States with total deposits June 30, 1920 of $7,926,478 and 20,090 depositors.

GARNISHMENT LAW OF ILLINOIS.

Section 14 of the act of 1872 as amended in 1897 and 1901 declares: "The wages for services of a wage earner who is the head of a family and residing with the same, to the amount of fifteen ($15) dollars per week, shall be exempt from garnishment. All above the sum of fifteen ($15) dollars per week shall be liable to garnishment."

Employers are obliged to pay wages amounting to $15 or less, notwithstanding the service of a writ of garnishment, providing the person to whom wages are due makes affidavit that he is the head of a family and is living with the same.

RUSSIAN ANARCHISTS ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

Department of justice agents and city policemen searched fifteen hiding places of Russian anarchists in Chicago on the night of Oct. 7-8, 1920, made two arrests and seized a large quantity of anarchist literature. The men arrested were Nicolai John Jazzinski and John Holoeny. The former was known as the chief propagandist of the Russian federations controlling the communist party of America and the latter as the leader of the Union of Russian Workers, an organization advocating the destruction by violence of the present government. The documents seized urged the slaying of soldiers and police, the abolition of religion, the seizure of wealth and the overturning of all recognized forms of authority.

THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching was founded by Andrew Carnegie in 1905 and incorporated by the congress of the United States in 1906 for the purpose of providing retiring allowances for teachers and officers of universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, and, in general, of advancing the profession of the teacher and the cause of higher education.

In the administration of its endowment, which now amounts to $15,000,000, the foundation has restricted its allowances to professors and officers in a list of seventy-three institutions, selected for their educational standing, and has published a series of widely influential reports and bulletins concerning educational conditions. The president of the foundation is Henry S. Pritchett; its trustees are presidents of universities and colleges and financiers. Further information may be had by addressing the secretary, Clyde Furst, 576 5th avenue, New York.

The Art Institute of Chicago was incorporated May 24, 1879, for the "founding and maintenance of schools of art and design, the formation and exhibition of collections of objects of art and the cultivation and extension of the arts of design by any appropriate means." The museum building upon the lake front, first occupied in 1893, has never been closed for a day. It is open to the public every weekday from 9 to 5, Sundays from 12:15 to 9 p. m. Admission is free to members and their families at all times, and free to all upon Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Upon other days the entrance fee is 25 cents.

All friends of art are invited to become members. Annual members pay a fee of $10 a year. Life members pay $100 and are thenceforth exempt from dues. Sustaining members pay $25 or more a year. Governing members are elected by the trustees and pay $100 upon election and $25 a year thereafter. Upon the payment of $400 governing members become governing life members and are thenceforth exempt from dues. All receipts from life memberships are invested and the income only expended. All members are entitled, with their families and visiting friends, to admission to all exhibitions, receptions, public lectures and entertainments given by the Art institute and to the use of the Ryerson reference library of art. Visitors desiring to see the collections under guidance may make appointments with the museum instructors at the office of the director.

MUSEUM.

The Art museum now ranks among the first three in the country. It contains excellent examples of the old masters and of the modern painters. There is also a large and comprehensive collection of sculptures, including reproductions of the work of the greatest sculptors, ancient and modern. There is an extensive collection of architectural casts. Other fields of art are represented by collections of etchings, engravings, textiles, oriental art, Egyptian and classical antiquities, etc. There is a constant succession of passing exhibitions, thirty-five or more in a year. All students enjoy the full use of the collections and the library. The number of visitors to the museum during the year ended Dec. 31, 1919, was 940,975.

SCHOOL.

The school of the Art Institute offers carefully planned courses of training for workers in the several arts, including painting, sculpture, designing and illustration, and for teachers of the arts.

The school is conducted upon the most modern methods and has grown to be the most comprehensive and probably the largest fine arts school in the United States. Distinguished teachers from a distance are called in from time to time. Students may enter at any time. The tuition rates are as follows:

ILLINOIS STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE.

The State Council of Defense of Illinois terminated its career of usefulness Nov. 21, 1919, the final meeting being held on that date at the office of Samuel Insull, the chairman, at 72 West Adams street, Chicago. In the course of its existence the council expended a little more than $190,000, but it handled a total of $447,646.51, of which $306,146.51 was profit from the lake front war exposition and was turned over to the national committee on public information at Washington. The remainder, $141,500, was profit from the seed corn campaign and was turned over to the department of agriculture.

Besides Mr. Insull, the members of the council were J. Ogden Armour, B. F. Harris, Dr. Frank Billings, Mrs. Bowen, John H. Harrison, Levy Mayer, John G. Oglesby, Victor A. Olander, David E. Shanahan, John A. Spoor, Fred W. Upham, Charles H. Wacker and John H. Walker. John P. Hopkins served as secretary until his death on Oct. 13, 1918. He was succeeded by Roger C. Sullivan.

MUNICIPAL PIER AND OUTER HARBOR.

Four outer harbor sites along Chicago's lake front were established by the city council Nov. 20, 1911. The ordinances provided for the following districts:

No. 1—From the mouth of the Chicago river north to Chicago avenue and extending one mile into Lake Michigan.

No. 2—From the mouth of the Chicago river south to Randolph street and extending one mile into the lake.

No. 3—From the south end of Grant park south to 31st street and extending one mile into the lake.

No. 4—All of the Calumet river within the city and all of Lake Calumet.

Feb. 7, 1912, the harbor and subway commission submitted to the council committee on harbors, wharves and bridges preliminary plans and drawings for the initial development of "outer harbor district No. 1." In this report the commission stated that it had proceeded on the theory that joint and parallel action by the federal government would be taken to protect the initial piers recommended by the construction of an adequate outer breakwater. The plan proposed by the commission provided for the construction of five piers extending eastward from the shore line between the mouth of the Chicago river and Chicago avenue, with a uniform length for four piers of 2,500 feet and one pier of 3,000 feet. At the election of April 3, 1912, a proposition to issue $5,000,000 in bonds for harbor construction was approved by popular vote. It was found, however, that the O'Connor harbor act contained a provision prohibiting the city from acquiring title to property along the lake shore line where it has been filled in or where the riparian rights were in dispute. The harbor law was re-enacted in amended form in June, 1913, by the legislature and in August of the same year land along the lake shore between Illinois and Ohio streets was acquired for $300,000, and arrangements for building the first pier were made at once. Contracts were let and work was actually begun March 16, 1914. The pier was practically completed near the close of 1915 and was used in 1916.

The pier extends 3,000 feet into the lake from the foot of Grand avenue. It rests on a foundation of concrete and piling, the superstructures being of brick and steel. The headhouse, as the building at the shore end of the pier is called, contains the administration offices and the entrances to the two freight and passenger buildings. Each of these is two stories in height, 2,340 feet long and 100 feet in width. The upper story is for passengers and the lower for freight. Between these buildings, which stand parallel to each other, is a roadway eighty feet in width. Between each building and the outer line of the dock is a six-foot dock. The total width of the pier is 292 feet. On the outer end is a recreation building, 665 feet long, containing a dance and concert hall, restaurant and other features of entertainment.

The total cost of the pier was approximately $3,400,000, not including engineering and inspection. It is municipally owned and operated.

YOU can invest profitably by mail either for cash or on the Partial Payment Plan. We send you the facts enabling the most thorough analysis. Thousands of well satisfied investors throughout the United States are profiting from the constructive achievements of our organization during the past eighteen years.

The securities of electric, oil, gas and industrial properties sponsored by H. M. Byllesby & Co. enjoy records of stability and satisfactory returns to the investor.

Prominent among these representative enterprises are:

Standard Gas & Electric Company | Northern States Power Company
Shaffer Oil & Refining Company | Oriental Navigation Company
Leonard Morton & Co.

The Byllesby organization is completely equipped with departments specializing in engineering, construction, management, accounting and legal affairs.

Electric and gas properties operated and managed by this organization serve 500 cities and towns with 2,200,000 population, including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louisville, Oklahoma City, Pueblo, San Diego, Stockton and Tacoma.

The oil properties compose a complete and extensive industrial cycle —production, transportation and refining; the navigation company operates a large fleet of steel freighters over the trade routes of the world; Leonard Morton & Co. is a conspicuously successful retail merchandise mail order house.

All of these enterprises serve mankind with necessities.

TABLET TO THE A. E. F.

A bronze tablet erected at the northwest corner of the federal building in memory of the American soldiers who fought in France was unveiled Oct. 19, 1919, by the Sons of the Revolution. Attorney Samuel B. King, president of the society in Illinois, made the introductory speech.

The unveiling marked the anniversary of the surrender of the British army to the American and French army, which closed the revolutionary war, at Yorktown, Va. The principal speaker was Gen. L. Collerdet, military attache from the French embassy at Washington. The tablet reads:

"The minute men of 1775, who left the plow and shouldered the musket that men in America might be free and equal, were beholden to France for the victory. To the men of 1917 in khaki and blue the spirit of the minute men is beholden for the redemption of the debt to France that was made when the commander of the American army in France said 'Lafayette, we are here.'"

Are the Doctors Always Right?

When they tell you that the pains and aches in your back and limbs are "rheumatic" or that your fatigue and run-down condition are a result of "nerves" they are not always right. Often the trouble can be traced to a simple and easily remedied source—suffering feet.

When your shoes are comfortable your feet are comfortable. And not until you have absolute and perfect foot comfort will you ever be free of "nerves."

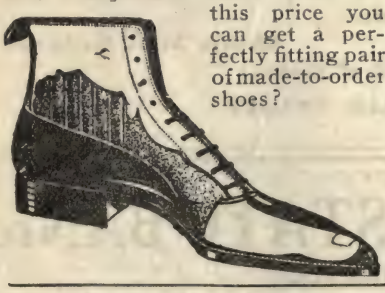
are the most comfortable shoes you can buy at any price. Made to your measure from a plaster of paris cast, they relieve all pressure from aching corns and bunions because they allow of perfect foot freedom. The best-looking, best-wearing, best-feeling shoes on the market. Price $20 and upward—casting $10. Why buy uncomfortable ready-made shoes when for this price you can get a perfectly fitting pair of made-to-order shoes?



Do You Suffer from Fallen Arches?

Martin Larson's Self-Adjustable Sta-Right Arch Protector for men, women and children gives instant relief from fallen arches. Fits smoothly inside the stocking. May be worn with shoes of any make. Price $10 a pair—with special plaster cast, $20 a pair.

General Information.

The Chicago public library is a free public institution, established under the Illinois library law of 1872. It derives its revenue from an annual library tax of approximately one mill. A board of directors of nine members is appointed by the mayor, three annually for terms of three years. The library occupies the site formerly known as Dearborn park, bounded by Michigan avenue, Washington street, Garland court and Randolph street. The cost of the building was about $2,000,000, including the furniture, book stacks and machinery. There are forty-seven branches, seven high school branches, 116 delivery stations and eighty-five deposit stations.

The right of drawing books from the public library belongs to all who reside in the city of Chicago, and also to those who make their homes in the suburbs within the limits of Cook county and are regularly employed in the city. In order to become a book borrower it is necessary only to file an application giving the name and residence of the applicant and bearing the signature of a second person, who must be an actual resident of the city, appearing as such in the latest city or telephone directory. This person becomes the guarantor to the library for the proper observance of the library regulations on the part of the applicant. These regulations merely provide that books drawn for home use must be returned within the stated period and must not be defaced or injured.

At the close of 1919 the public library contained 1,075,190 volumes. The aggregate circulation for the year was 7,509,267 volumes, which does not include the use of books kept on the open shelves at the main library or its branches or the periodicals or newspapers used in the reading rooms.

Henry Lindlahr, M.D., Medical Supervisor

Let Us Rebuild You

BY OUR

for

PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT, HEALTH BUILDING, AND FOR THE RELIEF OF CHRONIC AILMENTS.

The Lindlahr System of Natural Therapeutics

Attempts to combine certain features of such modern methods as: Osteopathy, Chiropractic, Neuropathy, Naprapathy, Spondylotherapy, Massage, Swedish Movements, the Proper Combining of Natural Foods, Hydrotherapy (water treatment), Sun and Air Baths, Physical Culture and Corrective Gymnastics, Scientific Relaxation, Mental Therapeutics and Homeopathy when indicated.

Why keep trying one thing after another when the Lindlahr System contains so many Methods of Natural Healing?

Come here and receive the benefit of many good methods combined.

Those living outside our Sanitarium who come in for treatment are given the same advantages as our Sanitarium patients with reference to Treatment, Consultation, Advice.

In this work Dr. Lindlahr is assisted by a staff of physicians thoroughly trained in the Lindlahr System.

You are invited to call for a Free Preliminary Consultation. Consult us to-day.

Can You Fill This Job?

We are being called upon constantly to recommend applicants who have been examined and coached by us in special and general executive work.

Our success in training men and women for important executive positions has given us a nation-wide reputation for developing employes for positions paying $2,500 to $10,000 a year and up.

The practical value of our service has been tested by men holding responsible positions with practically every large corporation in this country, including Armour & Co., American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the United States Steel Corporation, the Ford Motor Company, Swift & Co., etc.

A short period of preliminary training by mail, under the personal direction of LaSalle experts, has been sufficient to increase the earning power of thousands of men from 100% to 600%.

It will cost you nothing to investigate. Mark and mail the coupon below, indicating the kind of position for which you would like to qualify. We will send full particulars, also a free copy of "Ten Years' Promotion in One," a book that has been an inspiration to more than 250,000 ambitious men. Send for your copy now.

EDWARD HINES LUMBER CO.

MAIN OFFICE AND YARDS: 2431 SO. LINCOLN ST.
CHICAGO
Telephone "Canal" 349

Bird's-eye view taken from tower 200 feet high, showing our three large yards, covering over 45 acres, and a water frontage of over one mile. The piling just opposite locomotive (over 1,000 in number) are 60 feet long and appear like a bundle of matches. This gives you a comparative idea of the enormous size of our plant.

HINES { MEANS NOT ONLY } Anything and Everything in LUMBER

SOME REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD

REGISTER YOUR PROPERTY

UNDER THE

TORRENS SYSTEM

By JOSEPH F. HAAS, Registrar of Titles of Cook County

What is the Torrens System in Cook County? It is a system of registering the title of land, with a guarantee by the people of Cook County that the title as registered is correct.

It is the modern, up-to-date method of holding and transferring title to real estate.

BECAUSE

1. Cook County guarantees each Torrens title with three billion dollars of taxable assets.
2. The Indemnity Fund of over fifty thousand dollars insures the immediate cash payment of any damages sustained.
3. Protection is given owners against judgments rendered against people of the same or similar name.
4. Special protection is afforded against tax sales and tax deeds.
5. Owners are protected against fraudulent signatures on deeds or other instruments.
6. Adverse possession does not run against land registered under the Torrens System.
7. A Torrens Certificate of Title is conclusive evidence of good and valid title.
8. Defects in title are wiped out forever by initial registration.
9. Transfers may be made in one-third the time required under other systems.
10. The transfer fee is only $3.00 no matter what the value may be of the property transferred.
11. The Circuit Court of Cook County retains a continuing jurisdiction for the purpose of protecting the title to Torrens property.
12. No statute of limitations runs against the guarantee of a Torrens Certificate.

Cook County Guarantees

REAL ESTATE OWNERS
LAWYERS, BROKERS AND LAYMEN

PROMPT AND EFFICIENT SERVICE BY THE OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF DEEDS

TORRENS LAND CERTIFICATES

Absolutely guarantee title to land when registered. Under this system, transfers and loans can be closed without cost to the seller within forty-eight hours.

THE COUNTY ABSTRACT PLANT

Furnishes merchantable abstracts of title 40% cheaper than prices charged by abstract companies.

A WONDERFUL COMBINATION

Bolshevism or Atheistic Radicalism cannot live in the atmosphere of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. When men are thus born again they become considerate of one another, and differences are easily adjusted.

The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago is now training in its Day and Evening Classes (Fall Term, 1920) above 1,700 men and women to effectively teach and preach the Gospel, and in addition about 7,000 students are enrolled in its Bible Correspondence Courses.

In the school year ending August 31, 1920, the students of the Day and Evening Classes, as part of their practical training, conversed personally on spiritual matters with 63,528 different persons and reported 7,556 professed conversions. They conducted 7,672 religious services, made 32,388 visits to hospitals, lodging houses, etc., and distributed 427,863 tracts and copies of the Gospels.

On just such work as this depends largely the Security of Our Lives and Property

The Moody Bible Institute was founded in 1886 by D. L. Moody. It is interdenominational, and through the gifts of the Christian public has always furnished the training of its students FREE.

Under present conditions it requires greatly increased financial support to meet current needs and to provide new equipment adequate to its greatly enlarged enrollment. An investment in this work is an investment for God, the home, the church, for law and order, for rebuilding foundations of righteousness.

INTERESTING FACTS AND FIGURES

In 1907, when the traction problems were solved by the so-called "Settlement Ordinances" (after the entire question had been submitted to a referendum vote of the residents of Chicago), a value was established by the City of Chicago through an independent valuing commission covering the properties as they then existed. The valuation established by the city, $55,000,000, was more than $30,000,000 below the value claimed by the companies and was reached by arbitrarily disregarding many millions of capital that actually had been invested in the properties.

To this 1907 valuation the city, under the ordinances, provided that the companies should add the amounts actually expended on capital account when authorized and certified by the Board of Supervising Engineers. These expenditures, covering track extensions and additions to equipment, brought the total purchase price as of January 31, 1920, up to $158,538,423. This represented the figure at which the city might have taken over the properties if it chose to exercise its right at that date.

The companies pay to the city of Chicago for the privilege of operating their cars in the streets 55 per cent of their net receipts annually. This has amounted in thirteen years to approximately $23,873,065.74.

During the year ended January 31, 1920, the Surface Lines carried a total of 1,302,275,756 passengers. Of these 743,742,491 were revenue passengers and 528,760,761 were transfer passengers. Out of each 8 cent fare collected the companies pay out 5.78 cents for labor and materials alone. When taxes, bond interest, the city's 55 per cent, damage claims and other charges are paid there is left to the companies out of each fare less than one-third of a cent.

There are approximately 1,059 miles of track in the Surface Lines system, and an army of 15,000 employes is engaged in the operation and maintenance of the properties.

Suggestions for Visitors.

Chicago, aside from its importance as a great business center, has numerous attractions which make it the ideal vacation city, and its location on the shores of Lake Michigan justifies its recognition as the ideal summer resort. The Surface Lines offer the most convenient transportation in Chicago.

Here are a few suggestions to the visitor who desires to become acquainted with some of Chicago's attractions and for the general information of those who would like to have a more comprehensive idea of what to see and how to see it.

NEW MUNICIPAL PIER—Here is one of Chicago's newest and greatest wonders—a great recreation center and a steamboat landing extending 3,000 feet into the lake and costing about $5,000,000. Here one may enjoy the cooling breezes of Lake Michigan while getting an expansive view of the city's sky line. There are many attractions on the pier itself during the season, including observation towers, board walk, children's playground, open air and inclosed restaurants, public dining room for picnickers and immense freight and passenger boat terminals. No one should miss this trip. Take through route No. 1 car in Wabash avenue, State street car in State street, Broadway car in Dearborn or Randolph street, Clark street or through route No. 22 car in Clark street, or Lincoln avenue car in LaSalle street; ride north to Grand avenue and transfer east to the lake. Cars operate on the pier.

CLARENDON BATHING BEACH—This municipal enterprise is one of the newest attractions in Chicago. It is owned and operated by the city and should be visited by every one. Costly buildings beautify the premises. Ten thousand bathers can use the beach at one time, and even if one does not care to "take a dip" a pleasant afternoon can be spent here. Take through route No. 1 car in Wabash avenue or Broadway car in Dearborn or Randolph street, ride north to Sunnyside avenue and walk east to the lake.

CHICAGO'S GREAT ZOO—No collection of animals in the United States is more complete or interesting than the one in Lincoln park. Here are 1,700 specimens which are a continual source of delight to children and grownups alike. One cannot visit the "Zoo" too often. Take through route No. 1 car in Wabash avenue, Clark street or through route No. 22 car in Clark street, Broadway car in Dearborn or Randolph street, or Lincoln avenue car in LaSalle street, ride north to main entrance of Lincoln Park at Center street.

CHICAGO'S WONDERFUL PARKS.

DOUGLAS PARK—Has many attractions, such as athletic field, flower gardens, boating facilities and natatorium. Take Roosevelt road car in Dearborn or Adams street, or Ogden avenue car in State or Randolph street, ride west to park at Roosevelt road and California avenue.

GARFIELD PARK—Has many attractions, including flower gardens, boating facilities, public golf course, largest conservatory in the United States, several statues. Take Madison street car in Madison street to park entrance at Central Park avenue.

HUMBOLDT PARK—Offers facilities for boating and other recreation and has some attractive statues. Take Division street car in State or Washington street and ride west to park at terminus of line.

JACKSON PARK—One of Chicago's most beautiful spots, on part of which was located the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893. Here are splendid boating facilities, a bathing beach, two public golf courses, flower gardens, government life saving station and La Rabida sanitarium. Take Jackson park car or Stony Island-93d car in Wabash avenue to "Midway" at 59th street.

LINCOLN PARK—One of the city's most interesting attractions. See Zoo with 1,700 animals, Academy of Sciences, bathing beach and golf course near Diversey boulevard, conservatory, flower gardens, boating and other recreation facilities; also the world famous Saint Gaudens statue of Abraham Lincoln. Take through route No. 1 car in Wabash avenue, Clark street or through route No. 22 car in Clark street, Broadway car in Dearborn street or Lincoln avenue car in LaSalle street, ride north to main entrance of park at Center street.

WASHINGTON PARK—Offers facilities for boating and other recreation. Take Indiana-51st car in Wabash avenue and ride south to terminus at park, or take Cottage Grove car in Wabash avenue and ride south to 55th street entrance.

AMUSEMENT RESORTS.

RIVERVIEW PARK—A large amusement park with many attractions and space for picnicking purposes. Take Riverview-Larrabee car in Dearborn street and ride north to park at terminus of this line. Or take through route No. 2 car in Clark street or Clybourn avenue car in Wells street, ride north to terminus at Belmont avenue and walk north two blocks to gate.

WHITE CITY—A large amusement park with many things to interest a visitor. Take Wentworth avenue or through route No. 2 or No. 22 car in Clark street, or take State street car in State street, ride south to 63d street and transfer east to park gate at South Park avenue. Or take Cottage Grove-71st or through route No. 4 or No. 5 in Wabash avenue, ride south to 63d street and transfer west to park gate at South Park avenue.

MADISON GARDENS—Those who enjoy roller skating can spend a very pleasant evening at Madison Gardens at the corner of Madison and Rockwell streets. There are special facilities for those who are learning, special instructors for ladies and children. An orchestra furnishes appropriate music. Take Madison street cars to the doors.

OTHER POINTS OF INTEREST.

ACADEMY OF SCIENCES—A noted museum of natural history having many interesting specimens. Open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily and 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Sundays. Free. Take through route No. 1 car in Wabash avenue, or Clark street or through route No. 22 car in Clark street, or Broadway car in Dearborn street, or Lincoln avenue car in LaSalle street, ride north to Lincoln park entrance at Clark and Center streets.

CHICAGO HISTORICAL SOCIETY—Depository of valuable historical documents and relics of Chicago's early days. Open daily 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., except Saturday afternoons and Sundays. Free. Take State street car on State street, or through route No. 1 car on Wabash avenue, ride north to Ontario street and walk one block west. Or take Clark street or through route No. 22 car on Clark street, ride north to Ontario street and walk east one block to Dearborn.

FIELD MUSEUM—One of Chicago's "seven wonders" is this costly collection of natural history material gathered from the remotest corners of the world. Its original home in Jackson park was the Fine Arts building of the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. A permanent building to house this great institution has been erected in Grant park at a cost of $4,000,000. The museum is open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily; free on Saturdays and Sundays.

CUBS' PARK—Home grounds of Chicago's National league team. Take Clark street or through route No. 22 car in Clark street and ride north to entrance at Addison street.

SOX PARK—Home grounds of Chicago's representative in the American Baseball league may be reached by taking Wentworth avenue or through route No. 2 or No. 22 car in Clark street. Ride south to 35th street and walk one block west to park entrance.

HAYMARKET SQUARE—This largest market for truck garden produce was the site of the anarchist riot in 1886. The activity of this place any weekday morning is worth watching. Take Ogden avenue car in State, Randolph or Lake street, and ride west to Desplaines street. Or take Madison street car west as far as Desplaines street and walk north two blocks to Randolph street. A stroll for several blocks west through the market will be interesting.

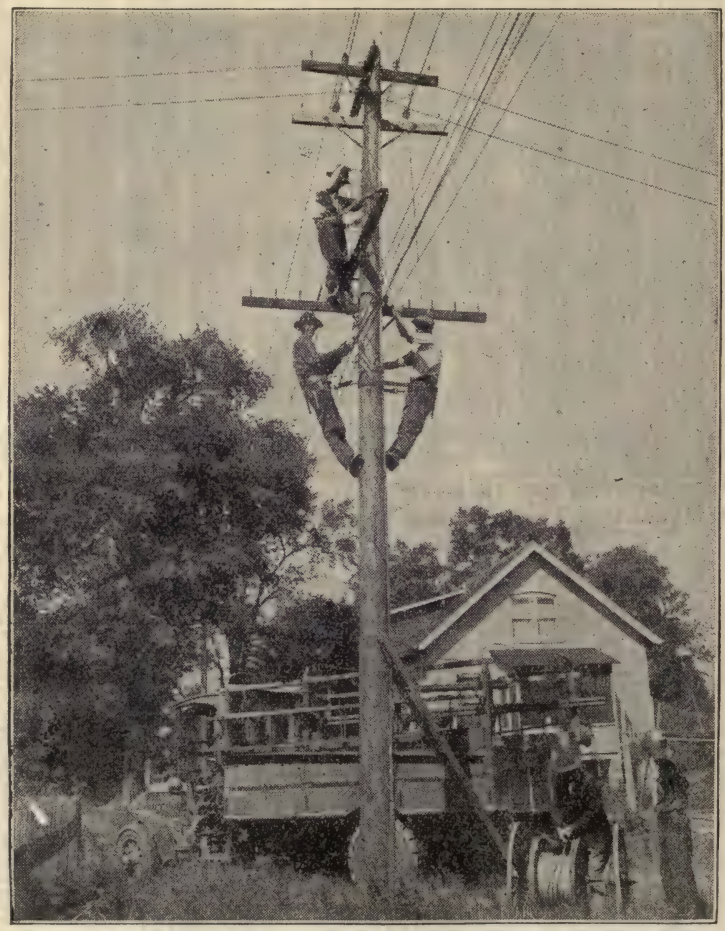
*The six months indicated which were affected by the strike in all the Chicago newspapers are not included in the daily average for 1912. †Price increased from 1 to 2 cents on May 14, 1917.

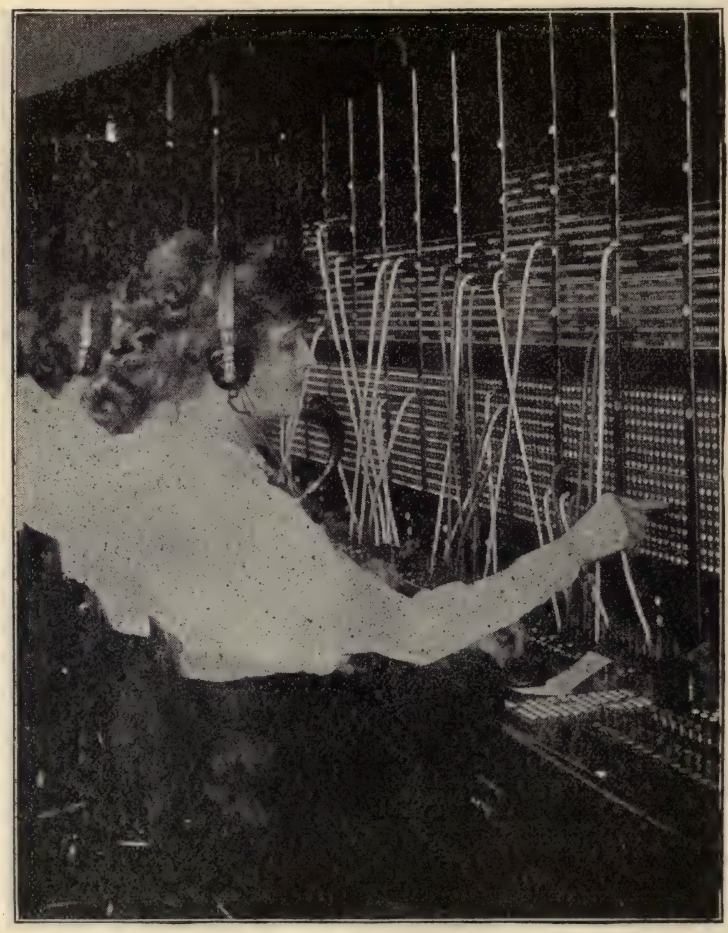


Chicago has more telephones per capita than any large city in the world. The Chicago Telephone Company adds largely to its plant every year to provide facilities for rapid growth. The photograph shows a construction gang stringing a line of new cable.

CHICAGO TELEPHONE COMPANY

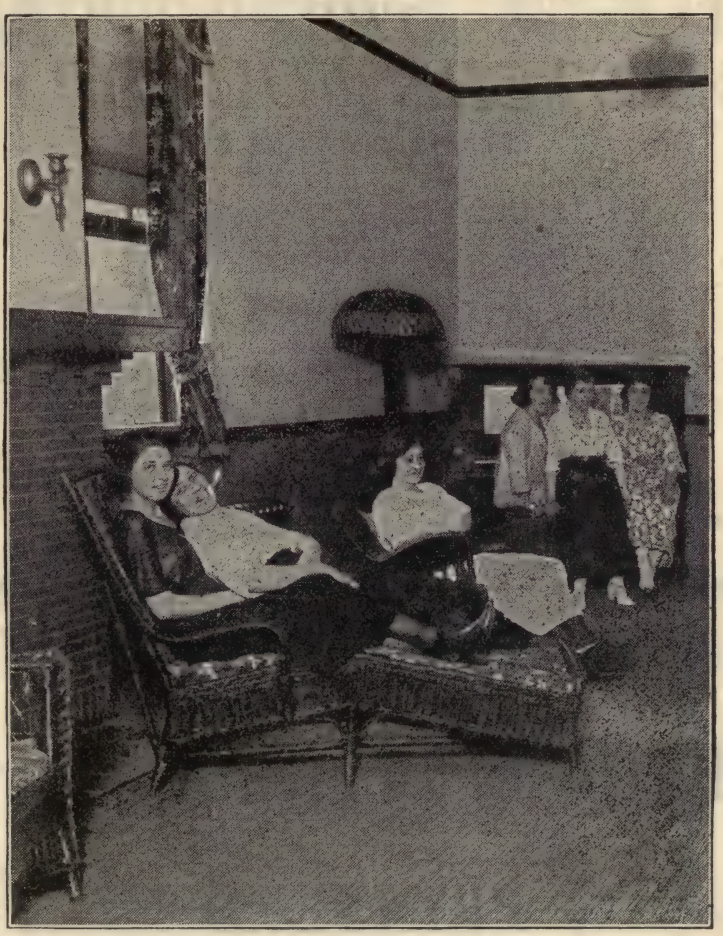
Chicago is the greatest telephone using community in the world. Here are a few sections of one of the huge switchboards of the Chicago Telephone Company through which thousands of calls pass every day.

CHICAGO TELEPHONE COMPANY



The telephone operator has her finger on the pulse of the city. This picture shows the splendid type of young women who are serving Chicago in the city's sixty-four telephone offices.

CHICAGO TELEPHONE COMPANY



The Chicago Telephone Company is ever mindful of the welfare and comfort of its employees. This picture shows one corner of a rest and recreation room for operators at one of the big offices.

CLINICAL, ANALYTICAL AND DIAGNOSTIC WORK

We maintain an expert in each department of Chemistry, Bacteriology and Pathology

for medical diagnosis

Wasserman Tests and other blood tests our specialty.

Vaccines Autogenous prepared. Also stock vaccines.

Tolerance Tests for kidney efficiency both in Bright's disease and diabetes.

Examinations of urine, sputum, blood, gastric contents, food, milk, water, drugs, etc.

In addition to the above we maintain a

"HEALTH PROTECTION SERVICE"

—a simple method of checking up on body efficiency, designed to guard the health of busy men and women. The service consists of quarterly urinalyses, blood and physical examinations and blood pressure determinations —the results of which are embodied in complete reports containing helpful, to-the-point suggestions.

WE INVITE YOUR INQUIRY

in connection with any phase of our work. We shall be glad to send you the information—to-day.

A Remarkable Record

IN recognition of the results obtained from safety measures in practice on the Chicago Elevated Railroads, the American Museum of Safety in 1916 awarded "Honorable Mention" to the Chicago Elevated Railroads in the Brady Medal contest among electric railroads.

Twelve years without one fatal accident

More than two billion passengers—equivalent nearly to the population of the world—have been carried by the Chicago Elevated Railroads during twelve years without a single fatal accident while on their trains.

Safety first, last and always is the constant watchword of the Elevated management. Civic pride alone, aside from individual interest, should induce Elevated patrons to co-operate in the elimination and prevention even of minor accidents.

The flexibility of outdoor advertising makes it applicable to any sales plan, commodity or territory.

It is adaptable to both local and national advertising. As a national medium, it localizes national advertising to any given community.

As a local medium, it directs attention to the local dealer, placing his name before the buying public in a quiet, effective, forceful manner.
